Hearst Slate For Landon Faces Defeat In California

Publisher-Merriam Bloc Trails in Inter-Party Controversy.

Kansan Is Ahead In South Dakota

Tennessee Republicans Pledge 4 New Votes to Governor.

Yesterday's Politics.

In the California Republican primary the uninstructed delegates to the national convention, some of who m are friendly to Landon, were running ahead of the Hearst-Merriam delegate slate pledged to the Kansas Governor. In the Democratic primary the Roosevelt delegates were receiving more than four times as many votes as the EPIC and Townsend candidates combined.

In South Dakota the uninstructed slate, pledged to Landon, had a growing lead over the Borah slate.

Senator John H. Bankhead and other incumbents seeking renomination in Alabama appeared to have safe leads.

Speaking at Zanesville, Ohio, Senator Borah said last night that if either Landon or Knox goes to Cleveland "with a fair expression of the people that he is their choice, I'm not going to stand in the way."

Missouri's Democratic State Convention pledged that State's 30 votes to Roosevelt at the Philadelphia convention.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, May 5.—First returns from California's Presidential primary tonight gave a noticeable edge in favor of an uninstructed Republican delegation over a slate favoring Gov. Alf M. Landon.

A Democratic ticket for President Roosevelt had a wide lead overEpic and Townsendite delegate States.

In 1759 precincts out of 11,708 in the State the slate for the Kansas Governor, whose silence with reference to placing his name on the California ballot caused a Republican controversy, had 38,099 votes against 49,428 for the uninstructed ticket headed by Carl Warren, friend of former President Herbert Hoover.

The ticket headed by Epic leader Upton Sinclair, also favoring Roosevelt and a production-for-use plank in the Democratic national platform, had 17,162 in the same precincts.

Representative John S. McGroarty, also favoring Roosevelt and a pension plan, had 10,211.

Large Turnout.

Though the bitterest fight was on the Republican side, the Democratic turnout to the polls was larger in the returns counted. Of the total vote 62.96 were Democrats as against their registration lead in the State of 56.92 per cent.

The uninstructed delegation is favored by several "regular" Republican leaders, including former President Herbert Hoover, but Gov. Frank F. Merriam and Publisher William Randolph Hearst are backing the slate behind the Kansas Governor.

"Cinch" Election.

A. J. Zirpoli, president of the Young Democrats of California, said the election would be a "cinch" for the delegate slate personally picked by President Roosevelt.

Senator William C. McAdoo, leader of the Roosevelt ticket, said election of either the Sinclair or McGroarty slate would be "a slap in the face" for the President.

The Democrats elected 48 delegates to the national convention, and they will have 44 votes. The Republicans chose 44 delegates, with 44 votes. Except for the Roosevelt and Landon groups, each ticket is pledged to its leader, these being Sinclair, McGroarty and, for the uninstructed Republican group, Earl Warren, friend of Hoover and Republican State chairman.

When Landon supporters asserted the uninstructed group was a move to put Herbert Hoover's name before the Republican Convention the Warren faction denied it and said a free delegation was desired so that the ticket could vote for the best man for the nominee. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover voted before noon at Palo Alto.

The polls closed at 7 p. m. (Pacific standard time) 10 p. m. in Washing-

Colladay Leads 21 G. O. P. Aids In D. C. Revolt

Quits State Committee in Split With Rover; Holds 'Rump' Session.

Forces led by Edward F. Colladay and Leo A. Rover split into two factions and elected officers separately last night at a stormy meeting of the District Republican State committee.

Colladay, for 19 years a national committeeman of his party from the District, walked out with 21 of his followers and conducted a "rump" meeting.

Rover, former United States attorney here, continued the meeting of the majority group after the Colladay faction departed. Some 53 delegates remained in the Rover meeting.

After the split the Rover faction met on the first floor of the National Capital Republican Club at 1600 Rhode Island avenue northwest while the Colladay wing met simultaneously in an upstairs room.

Centers Around Colladay.

For the first time it developed that one of the prime points at issue—behind the scenes, at any rate—was whether Colladay should be re-elected national committeeman and a delegate to the Republican National Convention in Cleveland.

Officers elected by the majority group after Colladay and his cohorts walked out were: Rover, chairman; Claude Owen, vice chairman; Joshua Evans, jr., secretary; Edgar C. Snyder, treasurer; Charles D. Carroll, Frank J. Coleman, Colladay, M. A. English, jr., Robert V. Fleming, C. C. Glover, jr., Douglas L. Hatch, West A. Hamilton, John R. Hawkins, Frank J. Hogan, Julian L. Latimer, jr., Ralph W. Lee, Luther W. Linkins, Thomas P. Littlepage, jr., Dr. C. H. Marshall, Charles H. Pardoe, Mrs. Edmund H. Parry, jr., Samuel J. Prescott, Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Dr. E. J. Scott and Frank T. Shull, executive committee.

Despite the rift, four of the majority group officers—Snyder, Colladay, Linkins and Mrs. Speel—were chosen from the minority ranks after the smaller group severed relations.

Minority Picks Officers.

A skeleton slate described as "temporary officers," as though a compromise would be sought, was elected by the minority faction. It included James C. Wilkes, chairman; Clyde D. Garrett, secretary, and Snyder as treasurer. Snyder also was named to draft a platform.

Unless a compromise is effected both factions again will meet separately tomorrow night to elect two national committee members, three Cleveland delegates and three alternates.

Delegates who remained affiliated with the majority faction were: Albert W. Atwood, C. A. Baker, Judge James A. Cobb, Charles F. Consaul, M. A. English, jr., William A. Gallagher, C. C. Glover, jr., West A. Hamilton, Douglas L. Hatch, Mrs. Joseph Horgan, Charles Jacobsen, the Rev. H. W. Jernagin,

Coy Trio of Hybrid Bear Cubs Keeps Crowd Waiting at Debut

White Polar Father Misses Zoo Party; Brown Kodiak Mother's Indifference Annoys Cameramen; Offspring Appear an Hour Late.

Phineas T. Barnum, were he alive, would have revelled in the "stupendous, breath-taking and awe-inspiring spectacle" enacted yesterday at the zoo when the three little Whatsit bears were placed on exhibition for the first time absolutely

While newsreel cameras greedily devoured the action, Zoo Director William M. Mann drew nervously on a cigarette, newspaper photographers risked their lives on iron grillwork over the cage and curious hundreds munched peanuts in their abstraction, three of the world's strangest animals made their debut.

And over all there hovered, perhaps, the shade of Barnum, to whom a freak was a fortune. And here were three freaks. Three hybrid cubs, two males and one female.

New Zeppelin Will Visit City Later in Week

Big Craft Is Expected Here Friday or Saturday on First U. S. Hop.

The German dirigible, Hindenburg, will fly over Washington on its way to Lakehurst, N. J., it was learned last night.

The airship, which will leave Friedenichshafen, Germany, today on its first flight to the United States, is expected to reach Washington late Friday or early Saturday.

Distinguished Guests Aboard.

By the Associated Press.

Friedenichshafen, Germany, May 5.—A famous explorer, a priest, a high foreign office official, an American airship commander, a millionaire, and a lord mayor will be among the 50 passengers aboard the new dirigible, Hindenburg, when it leaves tomorrow on its first voyage to the United States.

(The giant craft is expected at Lakehurst, N. J., some time Saturday. Its route to America depends upon weather conditions.)

Passengers include Sir Hubert Wilkins, the explorer, and Lady Wilkins; Father Paul Schulte, a Catholic priest, who is known as the "flying father;" Ministerial Director Karl Ritter, of the German Foreign Office; United States Naval Commander William B. Leeds and Mrs. Leeds, and Lord Mayor Fritz Krebs, of Frankfort-am-Main.

Seven newspapermen will make the inaugural trip.

Mrs. Maddox Placed On Probation in Theft

Lillian Maddox, who recently was freed in Montgomery County for the slaying of Edward V. Killeen, was placed on probation for one year yesterday when she pleaded guilty to a charge of shoplifting.

Mrs. Maddox pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial when she appeared in Police Court a month ago. Yesterday her attorney, Harry Whelan, changed the plea to guilty.

'Bomb' Is Sent To Gov. Curley By Parcel Post

Executive Drops Package in Water; Explosive Not in Evidence.

By the United Press.

Boston, May 5.—Gov. James M. Curley of Massachusetts late today received through the mails a package containing all the mechanisms of an infernal machine. There was no immediate trace of explosives, however.

Curley, who examined the package after it had been handed to him by a State House messenger at his executive offices, immediately doused it in a washroom.

The instrument in the package, bearing a nearby Somerville postmark and addressed in long hand to "Gov. Curley, State House, Boston," consisted of clock mechanism and a bakelite tube with connecting wires to two flashlight batteries.

State Police Investigate.

Capt. John Stokes and Charles T. Van Amburg, of the State police, and postal authorities investigated. A handwriting expert was to be called in to examine the writing on the package.

Van Amburg, noted ballistician, said there was no evidence of explosives in the bakelite tube, but that water in which the package was submerged would be analyzed for possible traces of dissolved powder.

"The infernal machine," Van Amburg said, "is a well-constructed one and easily would have accomplished the purpose intended."

Stokes said that "if loaded with dynamite the bomb would have been of sufficient force to blow up part of the Governor's office."

The package, wrapped in coarse brown paper, was delivered to the executive offices by John Pettigrew, temporary postoffice worker at the State House substation, who handed it to Alfred E. Smith, a messenger.

Arrived by Parcel Post.

Pettigrew told investigators the package arrived at the State House by parcel post at approximately 1:30 p. m. and that he delivered it two hours later with other mail for Curley.

Asked why he did not hesitate to open the package, Curley remarked:

"I figured that when your time comes you will die and not before."

Smith, who took the package from the postal employe, said he became suspicious when he noticed ticking, but decided to show it to Curley before he "dunked it."

Curley, who will announce tomorrow night whether he will seek re-nomination or be a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, said no guards would be posted at his Jamaica Plain home.

Mexico City, May 5 (U.P.).—President Lazaro Cardenas underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis late today. The Health Department announced. His condition was pronounced satisfactory.

Missing Persons Unit Added To Police Department Here

Establishment of a missing persons bureau, to which a detective sergeant and a policewoman will be assigned, was announced yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Maj. Brown said he has been planning the additional bureau for some time and has made a survey of such bureaus in police departments of several cities for ideas for the efficient functioning of the new squad.

"The new bureau is absolutely essential in these times," the police chief said.

"Under the present system the men on the beats are made to check the homes of the persons reported missing, and thus take much time from their other duties.

"When there is a large number of persons missing it is sometimes necessary to assign several detectives to the cases. Under the new setup, these men will not have to neglect their work of detecting and solving crimes to hunt for persons strayed from home."

In a report submitted to Maj. Brown by Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, it was shown that 1,074 persons were reported missing last year.

Thompson said, in addition to the large number of people missing in Washington each year, the police here also are called upon to aid the search for persons missing in other cities.

PWA Funds Plea Spurned By President

Speaker Says Advice of Hopkins Will Be Taken in Earmarking.

By Sidney Olson.

By reiterating his stand against earmarking any of the proposed $1,500,000,000 relief fund for PWA, President Roosevelt yesterday appeared to have closed the door against Secretary Harold L. Ickes and the Congressional bloc pledged to the earmark plan.

At a press conference yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt emphatically stated his objection to earmarking even $400,000,000 of the huge relief fund for the more substantial PWA projects as opposed to the lighter but more work-producive WPA projects. Several weeks ago he had vetoed a plan thus to earmark $700,000,000 of the fund.

Asked if he had any objections to the earmarking of $200,000,000 for PWA, the President asserted that he had and indicated that he objected to earmarking any part of the $1,500,000,000 fund, adding he had already explained why. He preferred to a previous explanation that if any part of the fund were earmarked for PWA, it would not be sufficient to take care of all requiring relief.

A few moments before, Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, had told newsmen that WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins was to blame for some of the delay on the present PWA program.

He said that 3,000 additional projects could be started "almost at once" if PWA obtained additional grants.

Hopes Blasted.

But an apparent coup de grace to the hopes of the Interior Secretary and the group of Congressmen, led by Representative Alfred F. Beiter (Democrat), New York, who have been seeking a PWA earmark, was administered by the President.

He said that his conferences with House Democrats and others on the subject this week had indicated that certain forms of municipal projects, now outlined in a list of about 6,000 projects pending final PWA approval and funds, could probably be handled under a $1,500,000,000 bill by the WPA under Hopkins.

The money would be routed through Reconstruction Finance Corporation lending.

The President said that if any of the huge proposed relief fund was used on municipal loans it would decrease the work that could be given persons on relief rolls by direct ratio to the amount used for such loans.

Outlined Position.

Secretary Ickes, outlining the PWA situation, where more than 900 of the 4,000 PWA projects financed out of last year's work relief fund still are not under way, insisted that PWA was not to blame for the delays "in most instances."

He said:

"A great many of our large projects were held up for final clearance by Mr. Hopkins. Then the comptroller general (John R. McCarl) in many cases took his turn at holding up the projects."

He said that more than 50 municipal power projects were held up in the courts.

He said that his only contact with the Beiter bloc had been at the conference last week when he met with the committee and outlined his position. He said he had not asked the President for money and did not plan such a request.

Although 900 are held up, 3,024 of the 4,000 projects under PWA are now under construction. Some allotments had been canceled, he said. 89.9 had been advertised for bids, 85.1 were under contract, and 77.8 were under construction.

In the meantime, Speaker of the House Joseph W. Byrns had told reporters that the deficiency appropriation bill, which probably will total more than $2,500,000,000, containing in it the $1,500,000,000 for relief, will be brought before the House on Thursday.

He said it would be earmarked on the lines suggested by Mr. Hopkins.

Hopkins had told the Appropriations Committee that about one-third of the total relief fund should be used for roads, bridges and culverts, with the balance to go for other types of work-relief.

U.S. Legation Attacked Again, Mob Repulsed; Aid Is Sent by Italians

War Over, Says Il Duce; Warns World He Will Keep Ethiopia

Rome Crowds Hail Talk; 3-Day Celebration Proclaimed.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, May 5.—An exultant Italy heard from Premier Mussolini's own lips tonight the long-awaited news that she is mistress of a vast new African empire.

In a voice hoarsely emotional, Mussolini announced the climax of the Fascist triumph while an estimated 400,000 Romans jammed the piazza in front of the Venezia Palace and adjacent streets and 20,000,000 Italians listened at radios and loudspeakers throughout Italy.

"Ethiopia is Italian!" Il Duse shouted. The crowd yelled deliriously.

"The war is ended!" he proclaimed. More cheers reverberated against the dun-colored walls of the Venezia Palace and the gleaming white columns of the national monument to the dead of previous wars.

All Fascist Italy was summoned into an "adunata," or mass mobilization, when word was flashed the conquering Italian army had occupied Addis Ababa.

Il Duce made clear that it was a "Roman peace"—one in which Italy would dictate the terms.

The dictator stood silhouetted against two tremendous floodlights as he gave the nation the tidings of victory.

He read the terse communique from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander in chief of the African armies, which said:

"Today, May 5, at 4 p. m. (8:20 a. m., E. S. T.) at the head of the vic-

Building Guarded By Fascist Troops

Group Had Returned to Scene From Safety of British Compound.

By Felix Bruner.

Four Americans in the United States Legation at Addis Ababa last night repulsed with rifle and pistol fire a howling mob of savage Ethiopians.

The surprise attack from the loot-mad marauders came long after the Italian occupancy of the city and after officials here had believed that all danger had passed.

The attackers rained rifle fire upon the legation and the occupants responded. The fighting continued briskly for 5 minutes.

As the mob was repulsed an armed automobile broke through from the legation and succeeded in reaching Italian headquarters with a request for help. The Italians responded immediately with two officers and 50 men, who surrounded the legation.

Only Four White Men.

The only white men in the legation at the time of the attack were Vice Consul William M. Cramp and three radio operators, Walter E. Tanner, John W. Ansio and Cecil F. Cavanah. Cramp kept the State Department informed as to what was happening. He did not indicate which of the group went to the Italians for assistance.

Cramp and the three radio men had gone back to the legation a short time before after spending seven hours at the British Legation, where they had been conveyed with the rest of the legation staff by a company of Sikhs, sent by the British yesterday morning. Minister Cornelius Van H. Engert and the other Americans had remained with the British.

Cramp's message was sent at 10:20 p. m. He told the State Department:

"Suddenly, at about 10:20 p. m., the Legation was fired upon from behind fences on the northern side. The entire quarter began a continuous firing, and the legation personnel concentrated a heavy return fire on the side of the attack. After about five minutes the attackers retired.

Armed Guard Requested.

"It would appear that the Italian troops have not occupied this side of the town and are probably more than a mile away in its control. I have decided to request an armed guard for the legation for the night and am sending a car heavily armed to the city headquarters."

"City headquarters" was interpreted to mean the Italian Legation, where Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian commander, has established his headquarters.

At 1 a. m. Addis Ababa time (5 p. m. Washington time), Cramp wirelessed:

"Italian headquarters have sent me captain, lieutenant and 50 men. I have placed them outside the legation compound. They have informed me that most of the occupation force is six and one-fourth miles away. Think that by morning the situation will be entirely under control. The city is now calm with only an occasional shot."

The fact that the American Legation had been abandoned early yesterday was revealed in a short message from London, relayed from the British Legation.

Abandonment Message.

The first direct message after abandonment of the legation came faintly into the Navy station late yesterday. It was signed by Cramp. It said:

"Entire white personnel evacuated by British convoy this morning at 9:30.

"Italians arrived at 4 p. m.

"Everything untouched.

"The minister and rest of personnel remaining at British legation until tomorrow."

A message sent by Cramp a short time later indicated that partial order had been restored in the city by the Italians. Meanwhile, the Italian government had assured Secretary Hull that the lives and property of foreigners in Ethiopia would be protected.

The Secretary of State instructed Robert W. Bingham, American am-

Soviet Outposts Alarm Japan, Leader Warns

Foreign Minister Tells of 'Menace'; U.S. Friendship Held Peace Key.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Wednesday), May 6.—Japan "in her solicitude for peace in East Asia cannot remain indifferent" to large Soviet troop concentrations in the Far East, Hachiro Arita, new foreign minister, told the House of Peers today.

Japanese-Soviet relations, he added, "cannot be said to be altogether felicitous. The fact the Soviet maintains excessive armaments on remote outposts of the Far East constitutes a real menace to peace in this part of the world."

Arita however, stressed Tokyo's desire for "normal and peaceful relations" with the Soviet and declared he would devote his "best efforts to furtherance of Japanese-American amity and understanding."

Only a paragraph of his speech, the first government appearance before the Diet since the February 26 army revolt in which four officials were assassinated, was devoted to American relations. This statement was:

Key to Peace.

"In Japanese-American friendship lies the very key to maintenance of peace in the Pacific. It is most fortunate that not only are the economic relations of the two countries complementary, but that the two nations, always respecting each other's position and aims, should collaborate more and more for insuring peace in the Pacific. I shall devote my best efforts to the furtherance of Japanese-American amity and understanding."

Arita expressed the hope that projected discussions to settle border clashes between Japan and Manchukuo on the one hand and Soviet Russia and Outer Mongolia on the other "will result in an early solution of all questions and particularly in the exchange of representatives between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia."

Turning to China, the foreign minister said it was essential that

Slip of Pen by U. S. Lawmakers May Open Prison for Capone

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 5.—Two attorneys were at work tonight trying to build the word "the" into a legal loophole to free Al Capone, the Nation's original "Public Enemy No. 1," from his prison cell on Alcatraz Island.

They based their hope for the former beer baron's freedom on a new decision in a Federal statute covering extension of grand juries.

Because the law said "the" instead of "a," the lawyers, William Parrillo and Lyman W. Sherwood, declared "Scarface Al's" four years behind the bars on income tax charges was a legal nullity, and he should be free.

Opposite opinion was expressed by United States Justice Department officials at Washington. They said the point was not valid because it was not raised at the racketeer's trial, and that any move to release Capone would be fought.

But Parrillo announced that he and Sherwood would go within two weeks to San Francisco to file a plea for a writ of habeas corpus.

The avenue they hoped to use already had been approved in another case by Federal Judge William M. Holly. Six indicted officials of the Trustees System Service Corporation were freed because their indictments were returned by a grand jury held over by "a" judge other than "the" judge who impaneled the jurors.

Capone had been indicted under just such circumstances, Parrillo said.

He added that he and Sherwood—who handled the Trustees case—were "convinced" the decision applied to Capone's case and they would "contend the indictment on which he was tried is void, so that he is being illegally held."

That the contention had some merit was conceded by Assistant United States District Attorney Warren Canaday. He said it was "a nice point" needing "construction by the Supreme Court."

Canaday's superior, United States District Attorney Michael Igoe, said it was "my guess that the argument would not hold because it was "permitted to go unnoticed during Capone's trial."

Italian Troops Aid Foreigners In Addis Ababa

Patrol Avenue Leading to Legations; Fires Help Drive on Disease.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, May 5.—Victorious Italian forces in Addis Ababa moved promptly to give assistance to besieged foreign legations tonight.

Field Marshal Pietro Badoglio ordered detachments of armored cars manned by veteran machine gun troops to surround each foreign mission and see to the safety of the members within.

First dispatches from the Ethiopian capital said Badoglio's soldiers found "a miserable scene." Garbags and bodies of gunfire victims littered the downtown streets.

Everything "that could be devastated was devastated," the reports said.

Italians Indignant.

Even as official circles in Rome discussed rough plans for the transformation of the former domain of Emperor Haile Selassie from a native empire to an Italian possession, Fascist hygienic officers said fires in the city had destroyed some sources of infection.

The destruction in the chief city of the Ethiopian kingdom caused indignation of the Italian command, the reports said.

Royal carabinieri were given the posted throughout the city. The native population was invited to deliver up arms.

The carabinieri were given the difficult assignment of patrolling all the most excited districts regularly to restore the natives' faith in military order.

The first reports said no incidents of resistance of a grave nature occurred, but several individuals of "suspicious" attitude were arrested as a precaution.

Detachments of hospital corps and other troops immediately began clearing the city of the dead.

Italians Complete Occupation of City

Copyright, 1936, by United Press.

Addis Ababa, May 5.—Seven months after they swarmed across the Mareb River into Ethiopia, Italy's legions tonight completed their occupation of Addis Ababa.

They came not as conquerers, but as forces to relieve beleaguered foreigners barricaded in their legations after 3½ days of fire, murder and pillage which had reduced Addis Ababa to a shambles.

They completed the occupation by 5 p. m.

It was 4 o'clock when the main force, Askaris afoot and the while Sabauda division in lorries, roared past the fortified British Legation down the Imperial highway from Dessye.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio had heard of the plight of the foreigners in this terror-stricken town.

He issued orders to his troops to proceed to Addis Ababa "as quickly as possible."

They did.

The vanguard was mounted on 20 motorcycles which roared past the British Legation without stopping. Squadrons of airplanes droned alertly overhead. The planes

Housing Accord Follows Parley With President

Agreement on Wagner Bill Reached; to Be Pushed at This Session.

President Roosevelt announced yesterday that a substantial agreement had been reached upon the principles and objectives of the Wagner housing bill.

The announcement was made following a conference with Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, author of the bill; Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee; Secretary Morgenthau, Jesse Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Earlier in the day, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called at the White House and told the President that organized labor was wholeheartedly in favor of the bill.

President Roosevelt said a number of details remain to be worked out, principally those involving financing and administration. He said he hoped a complete agreement on these details would be reached within three or four days and that the measure would be passed in this session of Congress He added, however, that the bill is not "must" legislation and that the only "must" measures are the tax and relief bills.

The President siad the Wagner bill is intended to provide housing for the lowest income group and to clean slums. One objection to the PWA housing program, he said, is that while excellent houses were erected, they were not essentially low-cost houses.

The amount of the appropriation to be included in the housing bill, the President indicated, will depend upon the results of a study of the demand for such housing projects as it provides.

The bill as it stands would provide for an expenditure of $876,000,000 during the next four years, to be financed from direct appropriations and from the sale of bonds. For the first year the direct appropriation would be $51,000,000. Projects would be initiated by local housing authorities and would be administered by them. Federal participation would not be in the PWA, as at present, but would rest with a board of which Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, would be an ex officio member.

The Senate Labor Committee has held hearings on the measure, during which it has heard housing experts in and out of the Government.

"We entertain high hopes that the Wagner bill will be passed at this session," Green said when he left the White House. He said the bill was "sufficiently flexible to permit application of any plan in a community," and that it was the best thus far worked out.

Among the President's callers yesterday was Langdon Post, New York housing authority, with whom he presumably discussed the legislation.

Film Company Lists Salaries in Report

By the Associated Press.

Compensation of more than $269,250 in 1935 to W. R. Sheehan, vice president of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, was listed yesterday in the company's annual report to the Securities Commission.

The report also showed a salary of $258,000 to the late Will Rogers, and $208,000 to Warner Baxter.

Sheehan's remuneration did not include additional payments provided for in a confidential agreement entered into on July 16, 1935.

The 1935 report said a group of 95 actors, actresses and studio officials received a total of $5,480,905, but none was named.

An increase in pay from $173,750 in 1934 to $225,416 in 1935 was reported by the McKeesport Tin Plate Co., McKeesport, Pa., for E. R. Crawford, its president.

G. V. Parkins, Tin Plate vice president, was increased from $124,166 to $137,500.

Painter Confesses Killing in 'Pact'

Hopewell, Va., May 5 (AP).—Police Chief George G. Anderson said Wilfred Thompson, 23, a sign painter, confessed today that he fatally wounded Mrs. Edith Atwater, 25, in a hotel room here in what they intended to be a suicide pact.

"Our intention was to commit suicide, but my gun jammed after I shot her and I lost my nerve," Thompson was quoted as saying.

"We wanted to kill ourselves because we loved each other and couldn't marry."

Thompson, an employe of the Du Pont plant at Ampthille, said he left the room after he shot Mrs. Atwater and walked out of the hotel.

THE significance from the viewpoint of the Presidential election of the very creditable race made in Maryland by Col. Henry Breckinridge against President Roosevelt probably will be a subject of controversy until settled by the actual results in November.

WALTMAN

But after all is said by the New Dealers and by their opponents, the fact stands out clearer than ever that Maryland must be counted a doubtful State this year—and in the last 44 years as Maryland has gone, so has the Nation gone in national elections. Certainly the Roosevelt strategists, despite the President's victory, cannot feel very cheerful about the Maryland situation.

This is not to say that Maryland is irretrievably lost to President Roosevelt. But that may happen unless the President and the Farley board of strategy make some gesture of conciliation toward the disaffected members of their party in Maryland. Indeed, the Maryland primary demonstrated clearly that the Democratic organization of the State, committed to the Roosevelt candidacy, lacked enthusiasm for him and laid down on the job.

Voting in the Maryland primary was unusually light. In Baltimore City it is estimated that only about one-fourth of those eligible to participate in a Democratic primary appeared at the polls. In the counties the Democratic turn-out was not much better. Only in the Third Congressional District did the Democrats show any desire to vote, and that was because of a heated contest between rival city leaders over a Congressional nomination.

* * * *

The New Deal explanation of the light vote is that thousands of Maryland Democratic supporters of the President, realizing he could not lose to Col. Breckinridge, saw no reason for voting in the primary, but will cast Roosevelt ballots in November.

This explanation, however, sounds strained in view of the fact that in Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Massachusetts and Illinois, the Democratic strategy has been to pile up the biggest possible preferential vote for the President, even when he has had no opposition, in order to demonstrate his strength.

The truth of the Maryland situation is that the Democratic leaders of Baltimore and some of the Maryland counties made no effort to bring more than the organization vote to the polls. And it is also true that many Marylanders, hostile to President Roosevelt, knowing Col. Breckinridge had no chance of winning the primary, believed their votes would be in vain and decided to bide their time until November, when they will vote for a Republican.

So much for those who did not vote. Approximately 18 per cent of those voting marked their ballots for Col. Breckinridge. They did not vote for him; actually they were voting against President Roosevelt. It is doubtful whether Col. Breckinridge personally attracted more than a handful of friends to his support. He is not a Marylander and until two months ago he was known only vaguely as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's lawyer. Col. Breckinridge campaigned less than two weeks in the State all told—and without doubt he reached only persons who already had determined to vote for him.

So it is clear that virtually the entire Breckinridge vote constitutes a disaffection from Mr. Roosevelt. If it can be assumed that 18 per cent represents the proportion of disaffection among Democrats who did not go to the polls, as it did among those who voted, then on the basis of the 1932 results President Roosevelt's majority in November would be reduced from the 130,000 he attained that year to about 17,000.

A prospective victory by a margin of not more than 17,000 votes—which is the best the New Dealers can make out of the result—unquestionably leaves Maryland a doubtful State, especially since the President's 1932 majority was swelled by a number of Republican votes, and normally Republican voters would more quickly abandon him than normal Democrats.

Thus it is possible that the disaffection among Republicans who voted for the President in 1932 is much greater than 18 per cent. These voters, of course, had no way of registering their present attitude in the Maryland primary. But it is not difficult to see how the slim margin now claimed by the Roosevelt forces in Maryland could evaporate over-night.

Incidentally, President Roosevelt made a better race, proportionately, against Col. Breckinridge in Baltimore City than he did in the Maryland counties. Before the primary, most observers believed that Mr. Roosevelt would make a better run in the counties where farmers had benefitted from AAA checks. But he did not. His efforts in behalf of the bituminous coal miners, however, helped him in Allegany, a mining county, which he carried by a margin of approximately 14 to 1, compared to a Statewide ratio of slightly more than 5.5 to 1.

Frank R. Kent, the Baltimore political commentator who has sharply criticized the New Deal, is one prophet with honor at home. Col. Breckinridge carried the precinct in which Mr. Kent lives by 5 to 1 over the President. Mr. Roosevelt has had difficulty carrying his home precinct at Hyde Park, New York, ever since he has been in politics.

Inquest Ordered Into 'Acid Death'

Norfolk, Va., May 5 (AP).—An inquest will be held next week in the case of George W. Wright, 55, railroad engineer, who died in a Norfolk hospital early today of burns, believed by attending physicians to have been caused by acid.

Wright remained unconscious from the time he was admitted to the hospital, April 27, until he died shartly after midnight.

Mrs. Viola Wright, widow of the victim, told police her husband appeared to be in good health when he retired April 25, after entertaining three friends in their home. When she awoke Sunday morning she found her husband unconscious.

Disaster Lurks In New Tax Bill, Hearing Is Told

Ballantine Sees Danger to Business; House Lashed; Packers Protest.

By Robert C. Albright.

A former Republican Undersecretary of the Treasury, held over through the early days of the New Deal, warned a Senate committee yesterday that the Administration's new tax bill will weaken the Nation's industrial position, and inject a new speculative factor into the stock market.

Speaking for the Merchants Association of New York, Arthur A. Ballantine told the Senate Finance Committee the new undistributed earnings tax would "put business on the path to disaster again," and strongly urged substitution of increased taxes in the lower income brackets, instead. He also suggested additional "selective excise taxes."

Ballantine said increased lower-income tax rates "are as sure to come as the sun is to rise." Discussing the likely effect of the new earnings tax on securities, he said "all stocks are going to be made much more speculative by this practice of forcing these people to clean up as they go along."

Is Sharply Questioned.

Committee members listened intently to Ballantine's testimony, and both Republican and Democratic Senators joined briskly in the questioning. It was at this point that Senator Daniel O. Hastings (Republican), Delaware, brought out that the pending tax bill actually levies a 100 per cent tax on earnings retained by a corporation, in excess of 30 per cent of their net income. Hastings said that after paying lighter taxes on the first 30 per cent of retained earnings, a corporation in effect would have to pay $10 in taxes for every additional $10 it retained.

Meanwhile, Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, said in a statement that the tax proposals offer "another example of unreasoning hostility toward private industry and utter disregard for the interests of frugal, thrifty, taxpaying citizens."

Declaring that "the only redress for business and industry will be through the courts," Magill berated the House for its passage of the measure and charged a "complete breakdown of that branch of the law-making department of our Government."

Talks of Dictatorship.

He asked if a "dictatorship" could be far away when "267 Congressmen at $10,000 per year each, plus clerk hire and mileage, became mere rubber stamps for the approval of enactment into law of a bill which most of them did not pretend to understand, and to the discussion of which only a comparatively few had listened."

Declaring business "genuinely fears" the effects of the bill, Ballantine said:

"In the end, this plan of putting heavy premiums on distributions, at the expense of heavy business savings, will tend to weaken, if not impoverish, industrial and commercial enterprises, to dry up the sources of the Government's income, to deprive workers of protection in their jobs, and of the opportunities created by normal industrial growth. Especially for an emergency revenue measure, other means of increasing taxes are more available and desirable."

William W. Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers, who recently provoked the wrath of Chairman Pat Harrison by writing letters urging packers to buy railroad tickets to Washington, yesterday was praised by the chairman for his "splendid" presentation.

Woods gave a comprehensive picture of how the processing tax had affected the packing industry, claimed it was saved from complete bankruptcy by AAA invalidation, and declared that "so far from being unjustly enriched, we were pretty near ruined."

If the proposed 80 per cent tax on processing tax refunds is enacted, Woods said there is only one place to which packers can resort, and "that is the bankruptcy court."

The committee yesterday heard its first favorable testimony for the bill, aside from the Treasury's own statement. Proposing a broad range of direct taxes in addition, but repeal of all Federal consumption taxes, Benjamin C. Marsh, executive secretary of the People's Lobby, said "the President's proposal for a tax on undistributed corporate surpluses should be tried."

Chairman Harrison plans to complete hearings on the bill by Friday, and then call the committee into executive session to consider means of raising some $380,000,000 more revenue than was in the House bill. Harrison has consistently refused to hint what plan he has in mind, nor has he called for hearings on the $221,000,000 in additional processing taxes asked by the President, but sidetracked in the House. The bill is expected to reach the Senate floor the middle or latter part of May.

More Women Now Drinking, Drys Declare

Speakers Assert Conditions Are Worse Than Ever; Attendance Slim.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., May 5 (AP).—The keynote of the prohibition party's National convention opening here today was a warning that conditions since repeal were worse than ever before because the liquor traffic was creating "women drinkers."

Charging that repeal had led to "the alcoholizing of vast numbers of women," Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, of New York, the keynote speaker, said the "incessant liquor pressure" was reaching "even to the young people of our churches."

He explained to the Associated Press later "whether the liquor interests are deliberately trying to create women drinkers or not, the traffic certainly is doing just that." He said the appeal in the effort to create sales "is both to women and men."

Dr. Harold C. Mason, president of Huntington College, Indiana, was elected permanent chairman this afternoon.

Tomorrow the convention will tackle the platform. Opposing factions forecast a fight over plans to "expand" the party program to include other issues on the same basis as prohibition. Among these are expected to be planks indorsing the Townsend old age pension plan and Father Coughlin's union for social justice.

Nominations for President and Vice President are scheduled for Thursday.

About 150 delegates were here for the opening session. The party is entitled to 1,350 delegates and pre-convention attendance predictions of leaders ranged from 600 to 1,000.

Dr. Colvin, considered a likely choice for the Presidential nomination, said mothers and daughters alike were drinking more than in the days before prohibition. "The liquor traffic is back, more aggressive, more insolent, more devastating than ever before," he said. "To its former evils it is adding debasement of women and girls and increased degeneration of the race.

Rome Officials Begin Planning Ethiopian Rule

By the Associated Press.

Rome, May 5.—Rough plans for the transformation of the vast African domain of Ethiopia from a native empire to an Italian possession already were being discussed tonight.

Premier Mussolini indicated to a group of farmers Sunday that at least 400,000 of the 500,000 troops and workmen now in Africa would be left there to colonize "those depopulated lands with the fecund families of Italian race."

Actually, plans were drafted and made ready for study before the northern and southern armies applied the final squeeze to Ethiopia with their great military pinchers.

Civil organizers in Rome believe Ethiopia will be made a colony of the Italian Empire, according to the following rough draft, patterned after the previous Italian "system-Qzation" of Libya, Eritrea and Somaliland:

1. There will be no room for an Ethiopian dynasty.

True, puppets boasting royal Ethiopian blood may be set up in various provinces and allowed to retain some of their princely privileges, but the real governors will be Italian civil commissioners and district military commanders.

2. Officers of the conquering forces will divide the conquered territory according to racial characteristics. Chieftains of known integrity and willingness to be loyal to Italy will be given civil missions to govern their tribes.

3. Civil and religious liberty will be proclaimed throughout the former empire.

(In territories already occupied the Italian command has issued proclamations abolishing slavery.)

4. Italian officers will organize a mercenary native army similar to forces maintained by Italy in other colonies. The splendid showing of Eritreans, Somalis and Libyans—themselves conquered peoples—in the Ethiopian war makes Romans certain that Ethiopians one day will add enormously to the fighting power of the territorial armies.

5. The whole territory will be policed by native troops carefully trained and scrupulously supervised by contingents from Italy's own renowned federal police—carabinieri.

Airfields will be built and maintained by a sort of aerial police, capable of transporting swift aid in men and arms to outposts anywhere in Ethiopia.

Troops

appeared over the capital two hours before the land forces arrived.

Behind the speeding motorcycles were nine baby tanks.

They were followed by military trucks—virtually armored cars with troops protecting generals and lesser ranking officers in the following staff cars. The staffs commanded the Sabauda and Second Eritrean division.

The occupation was orderly. It was a military parade. There was no opposition as the troops proceeded to most strategic centers in the town.

The abandoned palace of Emperor Haile Selassie, King of Kings and Conquering Lion of Judah, was one of the first places occupied by the Italians. It had been looted.

The few Ethiopians in sight were furtive.

On the highway and caravan trails leading out of the city to-in small groups. They were anxious ward the south many were fleeing to get away with their loot before arrival of the Blackshirt forces.

Badoglio entered the city an hour behind the vanguard.

He proceeded at once to the Italian Legation, where he established his general headquarters. Last October Count Luigi Vinci, Italian Minister to Ethiopia, was expelled from this legation when the outbreak of hostilities ruptured Italo-Ethiopian diplomatic relations.

William M. Cramp, American consul, and the Navy radio personnel attached to the staff of Cornelius Van H. Engert, United States minister resident, were able to reoccupy the American Legation, evacuated only after desperate resistance to attacking Ethiopian mobs.

The Italian occupation was a demonstration of efficiency.

While combat forces swept into the city engineers seized the Ethiopian government radio station at Akaki, 4 miles away. Other engineers seized the terminus of the Dibouti-Addis Ababa Railway, where 50 gallant Frenchmen fought valiantly against mobs trying to burn the depot.

The Italians brought the full panoply of war—for soldiers to road builders and political agents.

torious troops, I entered Addis Ababa."

Then Mussolini said: "I announce to the Italian peoples and the world the war is finished.

"I announce to the Italian peoples and the world peace has been re-established. It is not without emotion, it is not without pride, that after seven months fierce hostilities, I pronounce this great word. But it is necessary for me to add it is our peace, Roman peace, which is expressed in this simple, irrevocable, definite phrase:

"'Ethiopia is Italian.'"

The crowd roared its approval as Mussolini, in a sterner mood, went on to warn the world no one may expect to take the fruits of victory from Fascist hands.

Ready to Defend Victory.

"I must immediately add that we are ready to defend our shining victory with the same intrepid, irrevocable decision with which we achieved it," he shouted.

Excited Italians cried: "Hear that, Geneva!" and added: "and also the English."

Il Duce's next few phrases turned many cheers into sobs.

"We feel that we so interpret the will of the African combatants, of those who are dead, who have fallen gloriously in combat, whose memories will remain engraved for generations and generations in the hearts of all Italians and those of other hundreds of thousands soldiers and Blackshirts who in seven months' fighting have accomplished such prodigies as to force the world to unconditional admiration."

There was irony in Mussolini's tone when he referred to "the empire of the Lion of Judah." The crowd caught his spirit and jeered in chorus at the reference to Haille Selassie.

Fascism surrounded the announcement of the fall of Addis Ababa with all of its genius for pagentry. While the rest knew of the capital's occupation from foreign sources, the Italian population remained nearly three hours in ignorance.

Then suddenly at sunset came the first clamor of bells, the shriek of sirens for which Italian ears had been straining for a week.

National Mobilization.

It was a summons to a national mobilization. Italians knew that it meant also that Italian columns were pouring into the capital of the Negus. Instantly, streets of Rome became rivers of humanity, all emptying into the Piazza Venezia.

Simultaneously, throughout the kingdom, people of every city and village joined in less grandiose demonstrations which moved to the tempo of orders shouted over the radio from Rome.

At Naples, Crown Prince Umberto heard Il Duce's speech broadcast as he stood on a balcony of the royal palace in the presence of a tremendous crowd.

After the adunata dispersed, torchlight processions were formed by students and Blackshirts in downtown streets of Rome and many Romans congregated in wineshops and beer halls to toast the victory.

As soon as the adunata crowd arrived at the Piazza Venezia the huge plaza blossomed with posters.

"History kisses our banner," said one. "In the name of Mussolini we have conquered and we will conquer," said another. "From the Alps to the Indian Ocean the Fascist arms affirm the power of Italy."

Thousands of bamboo sticks waved in the air with small paper tri-colors bearing the inscription, "Addis Ababa Is Ours."

As darkness descended, great floodlights beat down on immense crowds. Hundreds of flickering oil lamps distributed over the facade of the palace were lighted. Great flocks of sparrows, startled by the cheering crowd and the blaring bands, shrilled over the square.

Text of Mussolini's Speech

By the Associated Press.

Rome, May 5.—The text of Premier Mussolini's address at the victory celebration in Rome today follows:

Blackshirts of the Revolution: Men and women of all Italy, Italians and friends of Italy beyond the mountains and seas:

Marshal Badoglio telegraphs: "Today, May 5, at 4 p. m., at the head of the victorious troops, I entered Addis Ababa."

In 30 centuries of our history Italy has lived memorable hours, but this today certainly is one of the most solemn.

I announce to the Italian peoples and to the world the war is finished.

I announce to the Italian people and to the world peace has been re-established. It is not without emotion, without pride, that after seven months of fierce hostilities, I pronounce this great word, but it is strictly necessary for me to add it is our peace, Roman peace which is expressed in this simple, irrevocable, definite phrase—"Ethiopia is Italian."

It is Italian in fact because it is occupied by our victorious armies. It is Italian in law because of the law of Rome and civilization which triumphs over barbarities, justice which triumphs over cruel whims, redemption of miseries which triumphs over slavery.

With the population of Ethiopia peace is already an accomplished fact. The populations of the empire of the Lion of Judah have demonstrated with the clearest sign their desire to live and work tranquilly in the shade of the Italian tri-color.

The chiefs and rases are defeated and the fugitives do not count for anything and no force in the world can make them count for anything.

In the mass meeting September 2, I solemnly promised I have done all possible to avoid that the African conflict should become a European war. I have maintained that undertaking and more than ever I am convinced to disturb the peace of Europe means the collapse of Europe.

I must immediately add that we are ready to defend our shining victory with the same intrepid, irrevocable decision with which we achieved it.

We feel thus we interpret the will of the African combatants, of those who are dead, who have gloriously fallen in combat, whose memories will remain engraved for generation and generation in the hearts of all Italians and those other hundreds of thousands of soldiers and Blackshirts who in seven months fighting have accomplished such prodigies as to force the world to unconditional admiration.

To them goes profound, devoted acknowledgement of the fatherland and such acknowledgement goes also to the hundred thousand workmen who during the months have worked with superhuman zeal.

This of today is a great date for the Blackshirt revolution and the Italian people which resisted and which do not bend under the siege and Geneva hostility deserves to live in this great hour.

Blackshirts of the revolution and men and women of all Italy: a milestone in our march has been reached, we will continue to march to peace, we will face with our courage, faith and determination the undertakings which await us tomorrow.

Viva l'Italia! May this cry arise to the combatants who are perhaps waiting for it in African lands.

bassador at London, to express to the British foreign office and through it to Sir Sidney Barton, British minister at Addis Ababa, "sincere appreciation for the prompt and effective assistance rendered in the evacuation of the American Legation at Addis Ababa."

Cramp said in his second message:

"I am informed by the Addis Ababa correspondent of the United Press and the International News Service, who had met the Italian advance guard yesterday about five kilometers from the city, that at about noon today orders were issued to proceed to Addis Ababa as quickly as possible.

"At 4 p. m. Addis Ababa time, about 20 motorcycles passed the British Legation along the Dessye road, followed by nine baby tanks and a large number of trucks and staff cars containing parts of the Sabauda division and the Second Eritrean division. They proceeded in good order without any opposition to various strategic points in the town and the palace was occupied at about 4:30 p. m.

Shorter Route Taken.

"I am told that prior to the arrival of the advance guard both the railway terminus and the Akaki radio station were occupied by road-building troops which were leading the column approaching the city and proceeded thereto via a shorter route.

Approximately one hour after the initial entrance, Marshal Badoglio is said to have entered the city and to have immediately proceeded to the Italian Legation, where general headquarters was established.

"Since dusk, the city has been comparatively quiet with only sporadic firing and it would appear that that part of the population which has caused much trouble during the last five days have departed."

With safety of the American Mission apparently assured, Government officials began to study the question of Engert's status in the captured country. With the Ethiopian government obviously nonexistent and with a strong possibility that the United States will not recognize any new government set up by the Italians, it is probable that he will be withdrawn.

It was recalled last October Secretary Hull strongly called attention to the Kellogg Pact and the anti-war convention signed at Rio de Janeiro in 1933. He said at that time:

"These instruments of peace impose upon all nations parties thereto most solemn responsibilities, and no nation can look with complacency upon their nonobservance."

Italy is signatory to both agreements. The Rio de Janeiro agreement specifically provides nonrecognition of territories obtained by force of arms.

In identical notes to Japan and China, after the Manchukuo government was set up in 1932, the United States said:

"In view of the present situation and its own rights and obligations therein, the American Government deems it to be its duty to notify both the imperial Japanese government and the government of the Chinese Republic that it cannot admit the legality of any situation de facto nor does it intend to recognize any treaty or agreement entered into between those governments, or agents thereof, which may impair the treaty rights of the United States or its citizens in China, including those which relate to the sovereignty, the independence, or the territorial and administrative integrity of the Republic of China, or to the international policy relative to China, commonly known as the open door policy.

"And it does not intend to recognize any situation, treaty or agreement which may be brought about by means contrary to the covenants and obligations of the Pact of Paris of August 27, 1928, to which treaty both China and Japan, as well as the United States, are parties."

Body of Child, Attack Victim, Found in Brush

Girl, 7, Who Disappeared Sunday, Slain; Police Hunt 3 Suspects.

By the Associated Press.

Waterville, Me., May 5.—Kennebec River Valley authorities tonight sought a fiendish slayer who criminally assaulted and strangled 7-year-old Mary Proulx.

Robert Rancourt, high school student, found the bound and gagged body of the child, for whom a posse of men and boys searched since Sunday, in a clump of alder bushes on the banks of Messalonskee Stream today.

Police immediately linked the child's slaying with the unsolved murder of Annie K. Knights, 12, of Fairfield. The Proulx family lived in Fairfield when the Knights girl was slain last October.

Circumstances of both crimes were similar, even to disposition of the bodies. In each instance twine bound the hands of the attacked children. Portions of the Proulx girl's clothing were used to gag her, even as Annie Knights had been silenced.

Police Have Clews.

On the piece of twine, described by Police Chief Alfred Poirier as a kind used by upholsterers; a pair of men's worn rubber heels; a man's shirt and handkerchief; and an empty pint bottle—articles found at the deathplace—police pinned hope of capturing the slayer.

The child apparently struggled with her assailant. Some of her clothing was found 20 feet from her body.

Dr. Napoleon Bisson, medical examiner, who said after a preliminary examination that she had been strangled and criminally assaulted, said her wrists were bound apparently after she had "fainted."

The twine, tied in a neat bowknot, held her relaxed hands. There were marks, evidently caused by fingernails, on her throat.

Seek Three Suspects.

The body was found near the Gilman Street Bridge, 200 yards from the nearest thoroughfare. The Proulx home, from which the child disappeared Sunday noon, is a mile and a half distant.

Authorities sought three suspects. One, described as wearing a brown suit, was seen with the girl on Main street, Sunday noon.

Another, the child's hysterical mother said, had given pennies to her four children recently.

The third was a 20-year-old youth who had gained the childish friendship of Mary during a brief stay at the Proulx home. He had been befriended by Mary's father, a warehouse worker, until Proulx found him stealing household articles.

Buck Starts Flight East for Record

Burbank, Calif., May 5 (AP).—Bob Buck took off from Union Air Terminal at 4:34 p. m. (Pacific standard time) today for Newark in an attempt to set a light plane distance record. With him in his small plane was his cousin, Lee Bellingrath.

A French flying team has held the distance record for light aircraft since 1930 with a mark of 1,809 miles.

"If we can stay up until we are about 45 miles east of Indianapolis we will have the record," said Buck, 22, and holder of several junior aviation records.

The ship has no radio.

Airport Head Killed.

French Cabinet Won't Impose Gold Embargo

Yellow Metal Taken by Air and Boat to London; Exchange Actvie.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, May 5.—Whatever may be the ultimate fate of the French franc, no action toward institution of a gold embargo or regulation of foreign exchange transactions will be taken for the present, the Cabinet of Premier Albert Sarraut decided today.

Marcel Regnier, minister of finance, announced after the session tonight that there would be no gold embargo and that "we will take no special measures against gold while I am here."

His announcement followed a day of extreme activity in the foreign exchange market during which the heavy outflow of gold from the vaults of the Bank of France continued.

(Financial experts in London estimated $10,000,000 in the metal arrived there by air alone today and channel ships carried great sums in addition. Passengers arriving from France at British ports brought with them jewelry and gold trinkets for deposit in England.)

The Sarraut cabinet, many members of which were defetaed in the run-off elections Sunday, which swept the "people's front" coalition of Leftists into a majority in the Chamber of Deputies, decided to retain office until the new chamber convenes June 6, thus precluding the possibility of any action against gold until after that date.

Leon Blum, the Socialist leader, his friends said, had agreed with Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the Communist Party, and Edouard Daladier, leader of the Radical Socialists, on an antivaluation policy. Both Blum and Daladier have been mentioned as leading candidates for the premiership in the new government.

Although Regnier said devaluation was definitely out of the picture, he indicated the cabinet had discussed measures to curb speculation.

Virginia Liquor Sale Decreases in March

Richmond, Va., May 5 (AP).—The Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is wondering if the State has reached the saturation point.

Income from State liquor stores for March was $1,003,340, 5.9 per cent less than the $1,065,840 in the same month last year. This is the first time sales have fallen below those of the corresponding month of the preceding year. Consumption of hard liquor has decreased despite cuts in prices, while wine gallonage has risen after prices were slashed. Two more stores were operated in March that were not open last year.

Order Baring Mail To Contests Stayed

New York, May 5 (AP).—Postmaster General Farley's orders prohibiting the delivery of mail and payment of money orders addressed to the National Conference for Legalizing Lotteries, and the Golden Stakes Advertising Corporation, were stayed today in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The ban on payment of money orders to the Grand National Treasure Hunt, Inc., also was stayed but not the portion of the order relating to impounding of mail addressed to it. This was struck out by Presiding Judge Martin D. Manton in the cases of the other two organizations.

The Grand National Treasure Hunt, Inc., was scheduled to select its prize winners before an appeal against a previous decision upholding the Farley order can be determined.

Trained Heads Need of Labor, Says First Lady

Leaders Must Be Cultured, Mrs. Roosevelt Tells Convention.

Young men and women, they are the primary needs of the labor movement in this country today, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told 68 "fellow-members" on the National Women's Trade Union League yesterday afternoon.

England, with its Oxford and Cambridge graduates who take their education and background and dedicate it to the cause of organized labor has an ideal system of leadership, Mrs. Roosevelt said. She was the main speaker on yesterday's session of the league's annual convention in the Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. Roosevelt is a member of the league in New York. She addressed the delegates informally for half an hour.

Reports of local leagues and national committees, following Mrs. Roosevelt's speech, culminated yesterday's afternoon session. The delegates will meet at 9:30 a. m. today for speeches and discussions on labor and economic problems.

Green Scores NRA Death.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, warned the delegates yesterday morning that it would be unwise to "make any change in our great forward-looking social movement—the one we have at present. Thus, without calling a name, Green was interpreted to have made plain his support of President Roosevelt for re-election.

Mrs. Roosevelt, wearing a magenta flowered chiffon dress with fur-trimmed sleeves and a brown straw hat, walked into the tea room at 2 p. m. She was introduced by Mrs. Rose Schneiderman, president of both the National League and the New York League. Mrs. Schneiderman briefly recalled the interest Mrs. Roosevelt had taken in labor problems of the women of the United States.

Speaking informally to the women in whose work she has taken a personal interest since she taught in the public schools of New York, Mrs. Roosevelt told the delegates, "if we must work out satisfactorily the problems which confront us, one of the best ways I know is to give education to the people who work with you in your leagues.

"Teach them, tell them of the experiences against which the working girl must fight."

"We must get across to others," she said, "what the working girl has to go through."

Women, Mrs. Roosevelt admitted, are "harder to get interested in labor work than men. There are many reasons. You probably know them. But most of them are unintelligent reasons.

"As for me—as for what I think of the value of trade unions for the working girl—I believe it is extremely helpful. I personally want this nation of ours to progress, and I personally want the best people working on the workmen's problems.

Good Leaders Needed.

"For the manufacturer, for the employer, better working conditions mean better work. For ourselves, better conditions mean happiness.

"We realize that to obtain better conditions, therefore, we must have good leaders—leaders who will make it their problem business to understand every side of the labor question. We must have trained leaders—leaders with education and background. We need, more than anything else, leaders with intelligence and background, who will put their time and effort into the labor problem.

"I think, in this respect, England has a particularly fine system—trained and cultured young men and women who devote their time and talents to the working class. They are men and women with money who can afford to go unhindered and unincumbered into the field of labor problems. That is what we need in this country. They must be leaders who will not be vulnerable to either money or politics."

Mrs. Roosevelt waved to the delegates and told them good-by.

A few minutes later she was appointed delegate at large to the convention to attend meetings when she was able. But she declined, saying other pressing matters would prevent her attending any more of the session.

Milo Reno Dies At 70; Headed 'Farm Holiday'

Advocate of Direct Action, Iowa Firebrand Began Career as Preacher.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., May 5 (AP).—Milo Reno, 70, hard-fighting farm organizer of the Middle West, died here today of a heart attack after a long illness.

The body of the militant agricultural leader who led an amoitious "farm revolt" against market prices and land foreclosures in 1933 was taken to Des Moines, Ia., by his widow.

Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association, came here March 7 to recuperate from an illness. His condition became worse a few days ago.

The tall, gaunt advocate of a "direct action" farm program forsook a career in the ministry to wage war against the agricultural policies of several national administrations.

He organized the Holiday Association in 1932, a sequel to a rebellion against tuberculin testing of cattle in two Iowa counties. The rebellion was put down only after martial law was proclaimed.

Fiery Oratory Made Reno Noted Figure

Milo Reno, "the Iowa firebrand," was born in Agency, Iowa, as the Civil War drew to an end. He came by his radicailsm honestly. His mother was a Greenbacker and later a Populist, while his father was a fireman and a Granger.

He studied theology at Oklaloosa College in Iowa, but soon laid aside the Bible for the plow and became a bona fide farmer.

His first recognition as a man of parts came at the 1920 Iowa State convention of the Farmers Union, when he developed into a speaker reminiscent of William Jennings Bryan.

Upset Milk Wagons.

Overnight he became a forceful figure in farm politics. His career was climaxed in 1933 when he preached the doctrine of direct action to the point that he had his followers picketing Middle West highways to block sales of produce, upset milk wagons, halt foreclosures and drag an unfriendly Iowa district judge from his bench.

Ultimately, however, his direct action became so direct he couldn't control the imported Reds from the East among the farm strikers. Before permanent damage could be done, however, the New Deal increased farm product prices and the movement died out.

At the height of the farm strike Reno's followers were guided by Mary Ellen Vease's old slogan, "Raise less corn and more hell!"

Reno was forever making fiery speeches. It was in 1934 that he urged Mid-west farmers to put guns on your shoulders and use force."

"Lord Corn Wallace."

Seldom in sympathy with any national Administration, he heaped oratorical coals on Secretary Henry A. Wallace and his predecessors, William Jardine and Arthur M. Hyde. It was Reno who nicknamed the New Deal agriculturalist "Lord Corn Wallace."

A shrewd business man, Reno long headed Farmers Union life and automobile mutual insurance companies. In 1932 he said his income over a 12-year period averaged $8,000 annually.

He was a striking figure in the saddle. He rode one of his thoroughbreds every day, his thick, black hair flapping in the air. His friendly disposition added to his popularity.

He was indorsed for the Senate in 1930 by the Iowa Farmer-Labor Party, but spurned the honor. His enemies said he wished to steer clear of political audits and investigations. His friends contended he felt he could do more good in private life.

Reno campaigned through the years for a Federal guarantee of cost of production to farmers and reduction of mortgage interest rates to 1 per cent.

He remained a critic of the AAA until the end. From his death bed he talked of making a speaking tour to flail the substitute New Deal farm program.

Land Distribution Law Is Signed in Paraguay

Asuncion, Paraguay, May 5 (AP).—President Rafael Franco today signed a land distribution law providing for the expropriation of 4,000,000 acres of idle land to be distributed among peasants.

The land will be divided into 70,000 lots. The present owners will be reimbursed.

The government decided to create agricultural schools at Asuncion, Pilar, Villarica, Concepcion and Incarnacion.

Another decree authorized the entry of Japanese families as an experiment. It stated, however, that the Japanese cannot settle in Paraguayan population centers.

Hospital Heads' Discussion of Health to Feature Medical Session.

The District Medical Society yesterday extended an invitation to the public to hear Dr. William Alanson White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, speak tonight on "The Dependency of Modern Civilization Upon Health."

A feature of the medical group's annual scientific assembly which opens here this morning, tonight's public meeting will begin at 8:15 in the Society Auditorium, 1718 M street northwest.

Dr. White, who is well known as a platform speaker, has been head of St. Elizabeth's for 33 years. He is professor of nervous and mental diseases at Georgetown and George Washington Universities and lectures on insanity before students of the Army and Navy medical schools.

Attracting 500 physicians and surgeons from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District, the scientific assembly will get under way at 9 a. m. today, with discussions of cancer, heart disease, the endocrine glands and syphilis.

A luncheon at the Hotel Mayflower will feature an address by Hugh H. Clegg, of the Department of Justice, who will speak on "The Modern Crusade." The afternoon session will be devoted principally to subjects as medical specialization, treatment of eye injuries, deafness and tumors of the intestinal tract.

The women's auxiliary of the District Medical Society will entertain wives of visiting practitioners at a luncheon today at the Congressional Club. Officers will be elected and annual reports submitted.

Roosevelt Aids Urge New Plan Of Power Sale

By the United Press.

Four New Deal Cabinet members last night outlined to President Roosevelt the makings of broad, national power policy aiming for cheaper electricity rates, and urged its immediate adoption by Congress.

The recommended that the Chief Executive appoint a three-man Federal corporation to sell energy from the Government's Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams in the Pacific Northwest "at the lowest practicable rates."

The suggestion, needing authorization from Congress, served as an Administration notice to private utility companies that, despite their court attacks, the New Deal has not retreated from the original purposes of its power policy.

The report was transmitted to Mr. Roosevelt by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, whose public works billions have financed most of the New Deal's electricity projects.

Others signing the report were Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, and Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

The study was made by the National Resources Committee to seek a plan for developing the Northwestern States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and western Montana with power and irrigation waters from the two dams.

Bonneville, on the Columbia River in Oregon, is costing the Government $45,000,000 and will ultimately produce 1,890,000 kilowatts of energy when completed in 18 months. Grand Coulee, a $55,000,000 project on the same stream in Washington, will develop 430,000 kilowatts.

"It would appear," the report said, "that a wise national policy will see to it that this new resource (the power) is so distributed as to achieve the maximum regional and national benefit.

"That requires that the surplus electric energy from Bonneville, Grand Coulee, and such federally financed public works on the Columbia River and its tributaries as may be built, shall become available to the greatest number of people at the lowest practicable rates . . ."

Wm. Beckmann (As he is today)

This is the condition of my scalp on Nov. 20th, 1935, after 3 months of Thomas' treatment. Wm. Beckmann

THE above photographs show how Thomas treatment re-grows hair even in extremely serious* cases of complete baldness. Within five weeks after Mr. Beckmann was accepted for treatment in a Thomas office, new hair was visible on his scalp.

Perhaps the condition which is causing your loss of hair may not be as serious as was Mr. Beckmann's. Regardless as to what the cause may be, it will surely lead you to baldness unless you promptly take proper steps to overcome it. Dandruff, for example, is the most common and most deadly enemy of hair health. Thomas treatment effectively overcomes dandruff, stops falling hair, itching scalp and promotes hair growth on thin and bald spots. In fact, The Thomas' successfully treat all of the 14 local scalp disorders which are responsible for 90% of all baldness.

Come in today and have a talk with a Thomas expert. No charge is made for a complete scalp examination nor for consultation. (Scalp examination, consultation, and treatment are always in private.)

The above photographs have been authenticated as genuine, unretouched, and the notary seal and signature of Jerome H. Pincus appears on original copies.

6 reasons why you should consider a PACKARD 120

TODAY, more than ever before, there are several important factors to consider before you buy any new car. Packard believes the six points listed below will make you a better judge of values, regardless of what new car you may have in mind.

1 Packard 120 gives you everything Packard stands for—for as little as $990*

The Packard 120 is a real Packard in mechanical excellence, in the precision of its parts, in long life, and in performance. It carries the most honored name in motoring. Yet it sells for only a few hundred dollars more than the cheapest cars made.

2 Packard 120 upkeep and service costs are low

The Packard 120 is probably the most service-free car in America. And such service as you do need is inexpensive. For example, a Packard 120 dealer recently kept records of all maintenance charges on 71 Packard 120's while they travelled a total of 450,000 miles—and found the average cost per owner was less than three dollars.

3 Packard 120 lessens the penalty of style depreciation

Before you buy any new car this Spring, ask yourself this important question: "How long will it be before this car is out of style?"

This question is important because loss of style means loss of identity and identity destroying style changes are the biggest cause of motor car depreciation. If you buy a Packard 120, you are protected against such loss, for you are buying a car made by a Company that has for 30 years held to a policy of protecting its owners against needless style depreciation. Because Packard adheres to one basically beautiful design, a Packard 120 stays a smart car, not just for months, but for years. Years hence, it will still be recognizable as a Packard, still be a car you are proud to own and drive.

4 Packard 120 can be purchased almost as easily as one of the lowest-priced cars

A recent survey conducted in several cities revealed that down payments made by Packard 120 buyers averaged only $87.50 after allowance had been made for their used cars. If your old car is of more-than-average value, you will probably have to make no down payment at all.

5 Packard 120 can be financed for only a few dollars more a month

Packard's 6 per cent finance plan is second to none for liberality. And because the payments on a Packard 120 can be spread over a period to suit your convenience, the car can easily be purchased out of income.

6 Packard 120 has scored an unprecedented success

The Packard 120 has climbed from scratch to second place in a price class which includes twelve cars. And remember — this car entered a brand new price-field for Packard. Such success could never have been achieved had not the car delighted every one who saw it and rode in it.

This Spring when you set out to buy a car, match Packard 120 against the field. Do this, and we leave it to you whether or not you become "the man that owns one."

True To Tradition.

A substantial protest vote against the New Deal was expected from the Democrats of Maryland, who, for so many years, gave their allegiance to Albert C. Ritchie. Democracy in Maryland, as in Virginia, can not easily be bribed from its traditional concepts of decentralized government, balanced budgets and a minimum of autocratic interference with individual liberties. Consequently, the very handsome vote for Col. Breckinridge in Monday's primary elections occasions more gratification than surprise in the Old Line State.

Ballots cast for the nomination of President Roosevelt outnumber those which Democrats cast against him by about 5 to 1. At no time was there any expectation that Col. Breckinridge could win the Free State's delegates to the Democratic National Convention. His candidacy was intended merely to permit a free expression of protests against the New Deal within the party ranks. In addition to approximately 18,000 Democratic votes squarely opposed to the Administration, a considerable number favored an uninstructed delegation to the nominating assembly. Taken together, these ballots represent a substantial disaffection.

The result of Monday's primary is to place Maryland definitely in the list of doubtful States. Her eight electoral votes may be swung either to the Democratic or the Republican side in the November election, depending largely upon the type of candidate selected at Cleveland. Whether the dissenters vote the Republican ticket or "take a walk," they will give Mr. Farley much more concern than he will acknowledge publicly between now and November 3.

The Balance Of Payments.

A preliminary analysis of the items in our 1935 balance of international payments, prepared by Dr. Amos E. Taylor of the finance division of the Department of Commerce, again shows an abnormally heavy movement of capital into this country. This is reflected in a record import of gold, amounting to approximately $1,741,000,000 for the calendar year.

The merchandise balance in our favor amounted to only $234,000,000, and if our huge silver imports are included the balance is "unfavorable"—that is, imports are $102,000,000 greater than exports. In service transactions—such as shipping charges, tourist expenditures, interest and dividends on foreign investments, remittances, etc.—the United States is a debtor on net balance to the amount of $87,000,000.

Thus the balance due to the United States on current account, exclusive of capital movements and silver imports, totals only $147,000,000. This is the difference between net merchandise income of $234,000,000 and net service outlay of $87,000,000.

The huge gold acquisitions are therefore due almost entirely to an inflow of long and short term capital, estimated at more than $1,500,000,000 for the year. Short-term funds are placed at nearly $1,000,000,000, while long-term investments by foreigners in this country account for an additional net inflow of $442,000,000 of capital. Miscellaneous capital adjustments make up the difference. Dr. Taylor states that the major part of the security transactions of the year represented investments by foreigners, although repatriation of outstanding dollar bonds was an important factor.

It is of course obvious that the capital we are currently acquiring is not sent over to develop American resources. It is placed here temporarily for safe-keeping, or has been attracted by chances of speculative gain, enhanced by dollar devaluation. The abnormality of this situation is emphasized by the mass gold movements which have raised our gold holdings to staggering proportions.

An examination of the current merchandise and service items nevertheless holds out hopes for a much better balance of our international accounts, if the world ever settles down to a condition of financial stability, thereby discouraging wholesale flights of nervous and sterile capital from country to country. The United States is fast getting into a position that should free us from the reproach attaching to the creditor nation that attempts the impossible by piling up so-called favorable balances year in and year out. Apart from extraordinary capital movements, over which we have no control, we are in fact approaching a balance.

The Reemployment Problem.

In his address before the United States Chamber of Commerce last week Secretary Roper emphasized the need for a study of methods by which business could increase employment. Among other suggestions he recommended the formation of industrial committees to "study in a comprehensive way technological unemployment and methods for speeding up the transfer into other fields of earning capacity of workers replaced by machines."

Another speaker, William L. Sweet, pointed out that both production and employment have been restored to about the same relationship that prevailed in 1929. Consequently, he was inclined to protest the assumption that industry had not done its full share to absorb the unemployed.

While Mr. Sweet's statement finds support in official statistics, the fact remains that employment over a long period of years has lagged behind increases in industrial production. Furthermore, the problem presented by millions of persons who can find no employment in private industry still remains unsolved. As Mr. Sweet well said, "calling names or distorting facts will not put a single unemployed worker back in gainful employment." For that very reason, it is time to have done both with official scoldings of business and hot-headed denials by business men of any responsibility for creating jobs for the unemployed.

Following Secretary Roper's constructive suggestion, therefore, the United States Chamber of Commerce placed first on the list of the resolutions passed on the concluding day of the session an indorsement of the appointment of a special committee to survey the possibilities of re-employment by private enterprise. It further urged the co-operation of trade, commercial and governmental agencies in expediting the work of the committee.

Whether the committee accomplishes much or little, its establishment is an encouraging sign of open-mindedness—a manifestation of willingness to explore the possibilities of constructive action that has heretofore been conspicuously lacking. It also brings assurance that the committee will not be content with merely negative criticism of Government policies, or equally futile defense of the contributions which business has undoubtedly made to further re-employment by paying out in wages much of the surplus which Congress now proposes to tax out of existence.

Flaming Verse.

Was it another "King's Henchman" or a second "Fatal Interview" that went up in flames Monday, when a hotel fire in Florida destroyed unpublished manuscripts of Edna St. Vincent Millay? A "shining palace built upon the sand" is a nice poetic flight of fancy, but surely Miss Millay had one in mind that was fireproof. Even a poet could not be so impractical as to envision castles in the air without all the modern conveniences.

This tragic occurrence recalls other instances of deprivation to literature through death, fatal accidents to manuscripts, or mere procrastination. On the other hand, the world owes much to the dogged determination of geniuses who have meticulously rewritten that which was lost or destroyed. Of such was Carlyle, whose first manuscript of "The French Revolution" was assigned to flames by a careless housemaid. Lawrence of Arabia, also, slowly recast all of his original draft of "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," which he unwisely left in a railway station.

And then there are the authors whose output was curtailed by the closing of their lives. Not all of them had definite plans but many left notes and letters actually outlining future books. Shortly before she died, Frances Newman wrote to a friend: "I have been taken with two ideas for next books—one a sort of history of sophistication . . . the other is for a novel in a very light and glittering style about a man who was terrified of being married against his will." Katharine Mansfield lamented from her sick bed that: "there is so much to write and there is so little time." Even Dr. Watson has left us the titles of many intriguing Sherlock Holmes adventures which now, alas, will never be committed to paper.

It is to be hoped that Miss Millay will not let this disaster permanently deprive her wide circle of admirers of the pleasure which fire has temporarily consumed. If viewed philosophically, the loss might even be paraphrased in some of her own lines:

> My verses burn at both ends;
> They will not last the night;
> But, ah, my foes, and oh, my friends—
> They give a lovely light!

Belated Action.

The irony of beginning hearings on the Juvenile Court bill as leaders in the House are talking of adjournment will not be lost upon those who have worked indefatigably to secure its enactment at this session. There is no excuse whatever for this legislative procrastination. Only the indifference of many Congressmen to the welfare of the municipality for which they serve as city council can explain this gross neglect of so important a measure.

Some optimists still hope that hearings can be concluded and the bill approved before the end of the session. But experience lends little encouragment to this belief. Apparently delinquent children of Washington will have no guarantee of intelligent treatment under modern rules and procedure for at least another year. And Congress must take the blame for any unfortunate results from continued handling of juvenile cases as though the youthful offenders were hardened criminals.

Fortunately, Chairman Norton of the District Committee has taken precautions against future pigeonholing of important District bills in inactive sub-committees. Indeed, hearing on the Juvenile Court bill will go forward on Thursday only because it has been assigned to a special sub-committee, composed of members with social vision and a deep sense of their governmental responsibilities.

Insofar as that practice is followed in the consideration of other District measures, it should become a valuable weapon against the obstructionists. The pity is that it was not sooner applied to the children's court bill.

Physician, Heal Thyself.

Senator Bone's fears of "political blackmail" at the hands of a "nascent and budding OGPU" are significant chiefly because they come from an ardent supporter of the Administration under which these practices are arising. It is not reasonable to suppose that so stanch a friend of the New Deal would propose to investigate "a low form of spying and general all-around espionage" if he did not have in his possession sufficient evidence to support the charge. Indeed, it must be assumed that he remained quiet until he considered this threat of "tyranny" intolerable.

Congress might well give attention to the indiscriminate probings now sponsored by executive agencies. If the proposed investigation is to be of real value, however, it will have to be launched on a more comprehensive scale than Senator Bone suggests. He has in mind "a resolution looking to an investigation by the Senate to determine the extent to which its own members may have been the object of attention at the hands of this nascent and budding OGPU". But there is no reason why Senators alone should be protected against official snooping. It would be greatly to the point if Mr. Bone would also suggest the desirability of protecting citizens against senatorial inquisitions.

Official espionage leading to coercion of legislators by executive agencies would be as indefensible as Senator Bone asserts. But Senators are quite capable of protecting themselves against such outrages. In view of Senator Bone's support of the illegal spying of the Black committee, he seems to have taken hold of this issue at the wrong end. In other words, the Senator from Washington is heaving a brick while standing in front of a lot of fragile glass.

Moreover, the issue raised by Senator Bone runs deeper than the alleged probing of senatorial activities. Several executive departments have developed investigating units to check the widespread fraud in the haphazard distribution of billions of public money. Under the slipshod spending plans approved by Congress, extraordinary precautions are essential to prevent wholesale graft and swindling. If Congress probes to the root of the problem, it will probably find that the objectionable sleuthing roots in the profligate policies which Senator Bone has been active in approving.

OGPU methods are not an isolated development. They are only a reflection of deep disorders in the conduct of democratic government. Whatever action is taken by the Senate should be aimed at the causes, not the symptoms, of political espionage.

Extending Democracy.

After long conferences between Washington officials and island leaders, a program to democratize the system of government in the Virgin Islands was recently completed. And—more to the point—a bill to put the plan in effect has now passed the Senate. The House is expected to take similar action at this session.

Chief among the provisions of the bill is the establishment of universal suffrage. Heretofore, property qualifications, persisting since the days of Danish rule, have limited the number of voters to less than 900. This, in a community of 22,000 inhabitants, made ridiculous any pretense to democracy. A delay of two years in effectuating this reform is provided, but that may be desirable in the case of an electorate perhaps more ready for the rights than the responsibilities of representative government.

Under the terms of the Gibson bill, the appointed Governor will be sharply deprived of autocratic powers. Where he now appoints nine members, or one-third, of the island legislators, he would henceforth be allowed no such appointments. Furthermore, the absolute veto is to be discarded for our custom of overriding by a two-thirds vote, though an act could still be voided by the President of the United States. And the Governor's authority to issue provisional ordinances tantamount to law would be shorn from him under the terms of the bill.

Jefferson Today.

Charles A. Beard in The Yale Review.

It is perhaps idle . . . to imagine Jefferson standing by the tomb of Lincoln . . . or sitting in the White House today. But amid uncertainties one thing seems certain: Jefferson would not despair in times when the souls of men and woman are tired.

Believing that man is "a rational animal," he would seek to use all the reason he could command. He might concede that his faith in rationality had been too strong, but he would not surrender to the new creed that man is merely an emotional animal and that government as sheer force can alone endure.

It may be well, then, for statesmen and politicians engrossed in the controversies of the hour to spend a quiet evening with the life and works of Thomas Jefferson.

Jefferson Today.

To the Editor of The Post:—Sir: No perversion of the position of a great man could be more egregious than that involved in using quotations from Thomas Jefferson to try to prove that he would have opposed "Government interference with business" if he were alive today.

In the agrarian America of the beginning of the nineteenth century Jefferson opposed centralization of power in the Federal Government because he felt that it would be conducive to predatory control by the plutocracy of his day. But Jefferson was so earnest and unshakable a foe of "the powers that prey" that, in a highly industrialized country such as now exists, it is about as certain as anything can be that he would emphatically favor the full use of governmental authority to end exploitation.

Jefferson was the undying enemy of the forces of "entrenched greed." Probably no statesman in any age or land ever assailed the abuse of authority by the courts in such stinging strictures as did he. The man who wrote the Declaration of Independence—whose original draft contained a fiery denunciation of slavery—and the religious liberty statute of Virginia; who said that no society could make a perpetual constitution or a perpetual law, even urging amendment of the basic law every third of a century; who remarked that a little revolution now and then was a good thing for any country; who advocated free speech to the utmost, even for those "who would destroy our republican institutions;" who bitterly assailed militarism; who openly defended the French revolutionists; and who all his life waged warfare on organized wealth, would assuredly not be found in the same camp with the Liberty League and the du Ponts in Anno Domini 1936.

The Wrecking Of Rome.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Results, backed up by facts and figures, show we are very definitely on our way."—Excerpt from recent political speech by Franklin Roosevelt.

On our way—to the rocks of bankruptcy, the bog of devaluation, the quicksands of inflation, the sink hole of mounting deficits and debt repudiation?

Or does he mean on our way to a political campaign ballyhooed, publicized and propagandized with public money, influenced by PWA grants, aided by a well-timed bonus (so strenuously denounced in a special speech last year but placidly "vetoed" this time in the shadow of the election) and put over to a clinching final with spoils system handouts?

In other words—down hill in high. Well, Rome wasn't wrecked in a day! E. G. BARR.

The D. A. R.'s Function.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading in The Post the vigorous apology of Mrs. Irvine L. Miller for what she calls "the largest and most powerful patriotic organization in the world," may I venture that the critics of the D. A. R. take issue with her on quite other points?

No one doubts the intenseness of the patriotism of the D. A. R., just as no one doubts the intenseness of the religious spirit of Jehovah's Witnesses. The question is whether this group of housewives accomplishes anything of benefit to the country in attempting to pass on questions of national defense and foreign relations. These are questions for experts, whose superior knowledge and intelligence gives weight to their opinions.

It is unfortunate that the D. A. R. hasn't stuck to the things that lie within its proper range, such as putting markers on patriotic shrines. As matters stand, the society only adds to the confusion of political thought in this country, working hand in hand with organizations that have been formed for the deliberate purpose of muddling the grave issues before the people.

If the D. A. R. quit politics and returned to putting up markers, it would no doubt regain many of the members who have resigned in the last two years.

To Create Work.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why continue to create all this false prosperity? It will only result in reacting upon the welfare of the Nation.

All it amounts to is mortgaging the financial future of the individual as well as the credit of America by coercing the public to assume obligations they cannot possibly meet.

This method, if continued, will result in the manufacture of more merchandise than can possibly be consumed, the laying off of employes and the throwing of the Republic into a more chaotic condition than ever before.

Work has to be created by new ideas and not manufactured by artificial methods.

Park Rehabilitation.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: As a long-time dweller in the neighborhood of Lafayette Square, I have been puzzled and distressed at the barrage of letters sent in to the newspapers. They complain bitterly, and it seems to me quite unreasonably, of the efforts to redeem the square from its run-down and unplanned condition.

It sometimes looked as if the walks had been started as a "maze" like those in famous English gardens where the bewildered wanderer finds himself heading east when he wanted to go west. Apparently subsequent planners took a hand by introducing "Where-do-we-go-from-here" paths and the innocent pedestrian, in consequence, chased his tail.

The sticky, yellow mud on each side of the narrow flagging was mashed with peanut shells and other pigeon and squirrel food, particularly around the benches. There was no way to clean this up except by shoveling off the mess. Now with the benches properly set on the wider asphalt walks, we will be spared that untidy spectacle. The picnic ground signs read:

> Where litter lies
> There beauty dies.

The soil was poor; the trees had no chance to grow to their full beauty and the shrubbery was planted in a haphazard fashion.

A few years ago the south side was opened up and improved and the half-finished plan is now to be completed on the north side. The statue of Jackson will have a chance to stand out clearly, while the vista of the White House will have an adequate foreground. I am for the New Deal for Lafayette Square.

H. P. HAMLIN.
Washington, May 4.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am glad The Post is not allowing the subject of the parks to lapse, or to accept the specious justifications for their official ruining.

Anyone who will look at those areas in which the work of "rehabilitation" is complete will find the grass burnt brown for lack of water, the transplanted trees dead or dying for the same lack, the miserable whisk broom shrubs planted in the place of once flourishing bushes to a great extent dead.

All this disaster from the one identical cause, which is lack of maintenance.

It seems to be the fixed delusion of our present park authorities that to make a park all that is necessary is to pour concrete and asphalt over large areas, insert a few green sticks in a few places and then go away and forget it—making a fool-proof product needing no further attention.

If a small fraction of the time, money and labor expended upon spoiling the parks had been devoted to keeping them in good condition there would have been no excuse for these hideous deserts of asphalt that have taken the place of once green grass, and incidentally a small army of men could have been usefully and steadily employed.

"We Need Borah."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Hoover and Borah," by Frank Putnam, of Texas, appearing in The Post of April 27, is very interesting.

He showed wisdom in leaving Roosevelt after his repudiation of 1932 pledges and joining the Republican Party. I did the same thing, only I did it before Roosevelt got his chance to repudiate. I agree with him that Hoover and Borah are about the only outstanding statesmen we have. A year ago, I would have nominated Hoover to head the ticket, but today with the same regard for Hoover, I'd place Borah as the leader with Hoover as his running mate.

We need Borah to upset the monopolies, that business and farming can once more come into their own. PERRY F. SKINNER.

Mr. Oyster's Point Of View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I will be grateful for space to answer, in part, some of your published letters objecting to "another" symphony.

Before joining hands with Mr. Yacha Bunchuk in this new endeavor, careful investigation disclosed the following:

Washington has not now a symphony orchestra, it has only an association. The members of that association were this week still engaged raising funds to support an orchestra this winter. It was also disclosed that not one member of last season's orchestra was now on the pay roll of the National Symphony Orchestra Association, nor were any negotiations or contracts under way.

Mr. Cappell, their manager, was then approached, and he stated, in the presence of witnesses, that "no summer concerts had been planned or contemplated, due to labor troubles." Several directors of the National Symphony admitted that summer concerts were out of the picture, and the winter program still in doubt. Mr. Cappell, when asked if he would consider management of the summer concerts for Mr. Bunchuk, declined as it would interfere with his vacation plans.

We were told that trouble developed because the personnel manager for the association, Mr. Gaul, allegedly refused to disclose certain figures to the union. Association directors supported their employe, thus widening the breach.

According to the press, Mr. Kindler will be in Europe the early part of the summer. He will return in July to fill engagements as guest conductor in other cities.

Mr. C. Marshall Finnan, superintendant of the National Capital Parks, when asked if the same facilities and co-operation given last year would be extended Mr. Bunchuk, replied: "Not having heard from the National Symphony Association, which introduced these concerts, I would not care to commit myself until plans are completed.

Washington is entitled to good music the year around, and musicians are entitled to employment.

Mr. Bunchuk, a great artist, seeks no financial assistance, and is in perfect accord with the union.

What's Truth—On the Stage?

Post Office, Wednesday.

WE planned that our column on David Belasco—late of New York—should appear while Claus Bogel—now of the Congressional Library—was out of town That column was written some time ago, and this department's best gumshoe reporter was assigned to shadow Mr. Bogel until he boarded a train for the little vacation in his native New Orleans which our special grapevine had informed us (by code) was in contemplation.

For the article, as you now know, said some kind things about Belasco, whereas our instinct told us that Mr. Bogel—an artist as an actor, a scholar in all subjects pertaining to the drama—did not, on the whole, entertain a high opinion of the once powerful producer's contributions to the American stage. We were sure that, if Bogel saw our sketch, he would chide us.

Well, he went to New Orleans, and we printed our piece. But some of his Louisiana relatives subscribe to The Washington Post, and Bogel couldn't suspend his habit of reading this newspaper every day.

So he has chided us, after all.

He is good-mannered about it. He is the sort of person whose good manners not even a dial-telephone can weaken. Nevertheless, his letter is a chiding.

We should be tempted to suppress it, save for one problem it presents of realism in the theater.

"Your piece on Belasco," mendaciously begins Bogel, "is most interesting. Yet wasn't Belasco's proud realism, in the matter of scenery and properties, sadly overdone?

"From his start there, New York was impressed because, when he staged a scene in a turnip-patch, he used real turnips. Naive New York! What did Mark Twain say concerning the story of Benjamin Franklin coming in to Philadelphia with only a little roll of bread in his pocket? Mark Twain said: 'Anybody could do that!

"I remember," Mr. Bogel goes on, "a Belasco production the first scene of which was set in a Childs restaurant. When the curtain rose, there was a perfect reproduction of a Childs restaurant of the type then established—mirrors, mottos 'and everything.' The audience gasped:

"'How wonderful!'

"'But was it?'

"The gaspers were so busy looking for what they could recognize that their attention was distracted from the play.

"Or take Belascos' Peter Grimm's That damned windmill turning in the distance, during the first act, occupied a spectator's whole attention!

"In another Belasco production the first act depicted a mining town. A set cottage was down-stage, left, and several characters were seated on the porch importantly developing the plot. Sunset came, then twilight, and, on the distant hills of papier-mache and the back-drop, lights began to appear in distant little cottages—showing that night had arrived, and that the community was preparing for it.

"What was the result? The whole audience was occupied solely in guessing where the next light would appear. I heard such remarks as:

"'There goes another one!' . . .

'See that one on the top of that hill there?'

"In a third typical Belasco production the heroine was discovered in bed. Her maid, entering, inquired: 'Shall I prepare your bath, madame?' Given that permission, she went out into what was indubitably a bathroom: you could see the fixtures. But, in order that the audience should not doubt their eyes, the maid turned on a faucet—you could hear the water plopping into the tub! Was this necessary? Did it help the play or the acting? If the lady was going to take a bath, wasn't it probable that she would use water?"

Well, you know, in those days some of the ladies were said to use milk—some, champagne.

Still—we get Mr. Bogel's point. As a matter of fact, we've always shared it. When he asks if all this sort of Belasco thing is art, we heartily answer "No!"

Somebody, as Mr. Bogel felicitously recalls, once queried Forbes Robertson, "What sort of scenery do you think is best for Shakespeare?" And Robertson replied, "Just sufficient." We agree with our correspondent's application of this principle to stage properties. "What is the difference whether it is a giraffe or not, if—like Samuel Clemens' animal in the Garden of Eden—it looks like a giraffe?"

About all we ever maintained for Belasco was that he was a romantic figure with a genius for stage invention not always worth while. There never was any realism in his plots, and his "props" were frequently too actual to seem real. Our opinion is this: On the stage, a conviction of reality is the desideratum—whereas being real is generally playing false.

But we do wish we knew what Harvard-taught Walter Prichard Eaton feels about it—after three years as associate professor of playwriting at Yale!

No End Of Books

These Pesky Bodies.

When John Quincy Adams was along in years and growing feeble, someone asked him about his health. With a whimsical smile, he replied: "I am feeling very well, but the house in which I am living is so dilapidated that I think I will soon have to leave it."

Very few of us can arrive at such a detachment. Fearfully and utterly, in spite of the seers and the prophets, we cling to being our bodies — an ache, and we are all aches, from our knowledge of chemistry to our estimate of the League of Nations; a disaffection in some obscure tissue, and we cannot look daylight in the face. Let the man who has never been altered by a slight biliousness cast the first stone.

And yet this pesky body is only a house—a "machine for living," in a truer sense than ever Le Courbusier meant. You would think that, if you were to take a 70-year lease on a house, you would give a little time to the study of its pipes and fittings, or at least learn how to tell the electrician or plumber what was wrong. Can as much be said for the way we understand how to tend to our bodies?

* * * *

By no means. And into that gap—between our ills and the technician we finally call in—there steps a valuable book to guide us. Dr. Marian Staats Newcomer's "Bewildered Patient" (Hale, Cushman & Flint, $1.75) is filled with the sage and friendly advice we would like to have in our heads long before we ring for the doctor.

Least unusual are the chapters on nutrition, on resistance to disease, on the creative instinct, and on the mental side of life—yet Dr. Newcomer has given them an especial aptness from her large clinical observations.

Rare, however, is it to come upon the material which she has included in such chapters as "Choosing a Physician," "What a Physician Can Do for You and Your Family," "Playing Fair and Square With the Medical Profession," and "Medical Costs to the Average Family." Take the matter of how to find a good doctor in a city where you are a stranger, a predicament more common than one would think. The "friend of a friend of a friend" formula sometimes works — with luck. But it is better to consult the local academy of medicine (a physicians' headquarters in some large cities), or a hospital (some are stiff about this though), or the county medical authorities. Likewise, there is advice on how to choose and judge a physician, and how to cooperate with him when you go to him.

* * * *

But the confusion in the matter of medical costs leaves Dr. Newcomer rather equivocal. On the one hand, doctors have to live; on the other hand, most people cannot afford adequate attendance. She has no good word for medical insurance, and only a lukewarm approval of the co-operative hospital plan. Vaguely, she sees that "it would seem that the only solution of this problem is an adjustment of our social system."

Yet on more immediate matters she is sound and decisive. The chapters on home treatment of the sick, on emergencies, and on accidents alone should earn the book a place in your medical cabinet.

* * * *

Schopenhauer was not exaggerating a whit when he remarked that "the fate of innumerable girls has been decided by the slight upward or downward curvature of the nose."

With an introduction by Alfred Adler, which stresses the importance of appearance to the personality, Dr. Maxwell Maltz gives us a vastly interesting account of the achievements of plastic surgery in "New Faces—New Futures: Rebuilding Character with Plastic Surgery" (Richard R. Smith, $3).

These are positive miracles which this book narrates. The complete transformation of a conspicuous facial defect into a regularity which is socially acceptable—what could be more invigorating to the ego of the person so afflicted? Dr. Maltz tells the history of plastic surgery (it goes back to the Hindus in 500 B. C.), and illustrates its modern triumphs in text and notable photographs. Birth-marks, baldness, skin cancer, and other bodily blemishes are included. So full and authoritative a book should be a fountain of hope to some people, and a mine of absorbing information to the more fortunate others.

* * * *

Only one person in 50 among us has hay fever, but he will be mightily interested in the topic. Oren C. Durham, chief botanist of the Abbott Laboratories in Chicago, tells all that science has discovered about this pestiferous ailment in the pages of "Your Hay Fever" (Bobbs-Merrill, $2). The amusing quack cures are narrated (everything from molasses candy to extract of onion); then the long pioneering fight against pollen, the villain; then lastly, the modern preventive treatment, and the problem of avoiding the million tons of ragweed pollen which are produced in this country each year.

* * * *

Women will be interested in Dorothy Nye's "New Bodies for Old" (Funk & Wagnalls, $2), a brief exhortation, with illustrative sketches, toward the exercises which will produce a lithe and healthy body. "Begin with the middle," adjures this physical-culturist. And she assures you, which is more than I can confess to know, that it works.

Philippine Defense

Manila Correspondent Interviews Gen. Mac Arthur, Revealing Plans For Recruiting And Training Army To Defend Newly Established Government.

By Vicente Albano Pacis.
Special Correspondence to The Post.

Manila.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, military adviser to the Philippine Commonwealth and shortly to be appointed field marshal, declared in an exclusive interview with your correspondent, on the occasion of the first call for registration to the Philippine army, that under his 10-year military plan, the Philippines, on the tenth year, will have a citizen army of 1,250,000 men and that conquest of the islands will cost the enemy at least 500,000 lives and $11,000,000,000.

"Such an adventure as the invasion of the Philippines," he stated, "will be so costly that no nation will attempt it in the first place."

The organization of the Philippine army started in earnest last month with the first call for registrants. Only 20-year-olds—the class of 1916—were required to register at this time. The first batch of trainees for the army will be chosen by lot from this class. Surpassing the best estimate of 100,000 registrants, actually 150,000 boys entered their names in the final list of the citizen army.

Plans Call For Army Of 20,000.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S figures may be startling at first. His plan calls for a standing army of about 20,000 men, but provides for the training of every able-bodied male citizen between the ages of 18 and 50. The bulk of the army will therefore be made up of reservists normally engaged in peaceful pursuits in their homes. All that the government will require of reservists will be that they undertake an initial military training of 5½ months, then an annual training of from 10 to 30 days thereafter. In this way, an adequate body of the men trained for military service will always be found everywhere in the archipelago ready for immediate mobilization in the event of enemy attack.

"The security of the Philippines is a serious matter," declared Gen. MacArthur. "It is a task which concerns not only the Filipinos or the Americans: It concerns the world.

"Civilization has moved from the Mediterranean westward. Crossing the Atlantic, it gradually travelled across the American continent. When Horace Greeley was telling Americans, 'Go West, young men!' he was signalizing the movement of enlightenment. From Western America, the movement continued across the Pacific to Hawaii, Japan and the Philippines.

"The Philippines today is the outermost frontier of western culture and civilization. With its Christianity and democracy, it is of the West rather than of the Orient. To insure its security, is to defend civilization's latest conquest; to fail to insure its territorial integrity is to leave it to be swallowed back by the radically different civilization of the East.

"This, from the world point of view. But to America, it probably also means escape from possible Pacific war. The Philippines is a rich country situated in the highways of international trade. And wars are economic short cuts employed by brigand, predatory nations. Unless the Philippines is so defended that its conquest would be extremely costly, it may prove a tempting loot to some power. If ever the Philippines is attacked in an obviously helpless condition, I presume that America will feel morally bound to come to the rescue. Thus Philippine security is part of American security."

Question Of Cost Interests Filipinos.

WILL THE MILITARY project cost the Filipinos more than they can afford?

"At the present time," Gen. MacArthur explained, "Philippine security is costing America $10,500,000 and the Philippines $4,000,000—a total of $14,500,000 a year spent for the Philippine Department of the United States Army and the Philippine constabulary. But everybody agrees that the present security is merely symbolical. The constabulary is only a police force, and the Philippine Department is composed of about only 10,000 troops, an inadequate aggregation.

"With only $8,000,000 annually we propose to build an adequate defense establishment. This is only 60 per cent of the present expense for the same purpose. And we plan a defense machine that will provide comparatively complete security."

Taking for granted that the financing of the Army will be easy enough since it will call for only $4,000,000 annually in addition to the $4,000,000 now appropriated for the constabulary, has the Philippines man power? Do the Filipinos make good soldiers?

"Off and on during the last 35 years," replied Gen. MacArthur, "I have commanded Filipino soldiers. They are natural disciplinarians, and they are brave, splendid fighters. But the fighting qualities of an army depend largely on how it is equipped, how it is trained, and how it is led. When we have organized the Philippine army, we shall have a force of over a million men equipped with modern arms, well-trained and well-led.

"The Filipinos are a patriotic people. There is no doubt that in the case of necessity, every able-bodied man will offer to lay down his life for the motherland. This is all very touching. But we propose to train Filipinos not to die for their country but to kill the enemies of their country. A dead boy is no good to the nation."

MacArthur Stresses Islands' Responsibility.

PRESIDENT QUEZON'S attempt to insure national security to the Filipino people "can only be described in heroic outlines," according to Gen. MacArthur.

"You are beginning practically from scratch," he pointed out. "Perhaps it is in the nature of things that sovereign nations hesitate to train their colonies for war. The war machine thus organized may be turned against the sovereign itself. While America has prepared you economically, politically, educationally, you yourselves must now train yourselves for defense."

From scratch, maybe. But when America sent its No. 1 military leader to advise on the building of the Philippine defense army, the effort can not be hopeless.

"The Rubber Band."

To those who love murder stories that are fearfully and wonderfully exciting, and which in addition display skill in composition, discrimination in literary style, creative power in characterization, let me recommend a new one, called "The Rubber Band"—written by Rex Stout and published by Farrar & Rinehart, New York.

* * * *

Rex Todhunter Stout was born at Noblesville, Ind., December 1, 1886, so that he is approaching his fiftieth birthday—a splendid age for creative composition. He has had a variety of experiences. He has been office boy, store clerk, bookkeeper, hotel manager, sailor, inventor, and for some time was in the United States Navy. His knowledge of assorted human beings is evident in his books.

Now the majority of murder stories are extremely dull; which means they are totally devoid of merit of any kind. For the only reason why we read a murder story is to divert and captivate our minds. A book on history or philosophy or science may be dull and yet worth reading; but a dull story is worthless. Hence, in certain moods I can enjoy a ridiculous or badly written murder tale if only its events are exciting.

* * * *

Three novels by Rex Stout are so exciting that I read them with breathless attention. But there is also an unique quality in them; they are unlike any other murder stories I know, partly because of the hero and his man Friday, partly because of the style, so perfectly adapted to the person who happens to be talking, and partly because of a shrewd worldly wisdom.

These three stories are "Fer de Lance," "The League of Frightened Men," and "The Rubber Band."

The detective is a mountain of flesh named Nero Wolfe; his first lieutenant, who combines athletic ability with keen intelligence, is Mr. Goodwin.

The ingenuity of the plot is combined with almost continuous action, which makes Mr. Stout's stories so infinitely more interesting than those which have ingenuity without excitement.

His skill in creating character is so remarkable that in this latest book, "The Rubber Band," when we meet the big fellow from the West, after two pages I feel as if I had known him all my life.

Editorial Page Was a Passion With Pulitzer

To Joseph Pulitzer, the most exhilarating thing in life was a good editorial. The editorial page was his field of combat, and the words thereon the lances of his sense of righteousness. The target was the demagogue, the public plunderer, the predatory plutocrat—everybody and everything that threatened the general welfare, as Pulitzer saw it.

When approaching blindness forced him to retire from active work 21 years before his death, Pulitzer continued his interest in the editorial page of the New York World. It amounted to a passion with him.

It was not surprising, therefore, that Pulitzer should have been thinking about editorials, among other things, when he established the now famous Pulitzer Prizes.

Endowed School in 1903.

Pulitzer, the Hungarian immigrant boy who became America's foremost crusading publisher, endowed the school of journalism at Columbia University in 1903. In his will (he died in 1911) he made a bequest to that school providing for a series of prizes for letters, the drama, music and journalism. He specified that one of the annual prizes should be awarded for "distinguished" editorial writing.

Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post, who, with George B. Parker, of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, has just been awarded the Pulitzer Prize for 1935, now joins a brilliant gallery of editorial writers heretofore so honored.

It is a gallery that includes the late Henry Watterson, whose genius lifted the Louisville Courier-Journal to a foremost place in American journalism; Frank M. O'Brien, a prose master on the old New York Herald; William Allen White, celebrated editor of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette, and other stars in the journalistic sky.

First Prize in 1917.

The first Pulitzer Prize for distinguished editorial writing was awarded in 1917 to the New York Tribune, a rival of the World. It was for an editorial written by the late Frank H. Simonds on the anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania, published May 7, 1916.

The winner in 1918 was "Marse Henry" Watterson. He was 78 years old then. "To Hell With the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns!" he he wrote over one of his editorials, and he echoed this until the end of the war.

Watterson, who was born in this city, the son of a member of Congress from Tennessee, retired from active service on the Louisville Courier-Journal the year after he won the Pulitzer Prize. He died in 1921 at the age of 81.

There was no award for distinguished editorial writing in 1919, although it was a year of many stirring events.

In 1920 the prize went to Harvey E. Newbranch, of the Omaha (Nebr.) Evening World-Herald.

There was no award in 1921.

In 1922 the return to this country of the body of the Unknown Soldier sent a wave of patriotic emotion across the United States. Two men who caught that emotion and put it into words were rewarded with Pulitzer prizes. Frank M. O'Brien, of the New York Herald, was given the prize for his editorial, "The Unknown Soldier," and Kirke L. Simpson, of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, was awarded the reportorial prize for a masterful story on the burial of the warrior in Arlington National Cemetery.

William Allen White was awarded the prize in 1923 for an editorial entitled, "To An Anxious Friend," a beautiful, human piece of writing that appeared in the Emporia Gazette, July 27, 1922.

The 1924 award went to Frank W. Buxton, of the Boston Herald, for his editorial, "Who Made Coolidge?"

Award to Kingsbury.

The 1926 award went to Edward M. Kingsbury, of the New York Times, for a pre-Christmas editorial, "The House of a Hundred Horrors," a word picture of poverty in a New York tenement.

In 1927 the prize was awarded F. Lauriston Bullard, of the Boston Herald, for his editorial, "We Submit." The following year it was won by Grover C. Hall, of the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser for his editorials against floggings and racial and religious intolerance. It was the era of the Ku Klux Klan.

The 1929 prize went to Louis Isaac Jaffe, of the Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot, for his "An Unspeakable Act of Savagery," a philippic against lynching.

There was no award in 1930. In 1931 Charles S. Ryckman, of the Fremont (Nebr.) Tribune, received the prize for his editorial, "The Gentleman From Nebraska." Again in 1932 the judges failed to make an award.

The 1933 winner was Henry J. Haskell, of the Kansas City Star, for a series on national and international subjects, particularly governmental economy.

In 1934 the judges turned to a small-town editor. He was E. P. Chase, of the Atlantic (Iowa) News Telegraph, and his prize-winning editorial was "Where Is Our Money?"

British Embassy Guarded in Rome

Rome, May 5 (U.P.).—Two companies of steel-helmeted soldiers guarded the British embassy tonight against possible demonstrations, and detachments of carabinieri and infantry surrounded the British consulate.

The embassies and consulates of other sanctionist nations also were guarded, though there were no hostile demonstrations.

Fascist groups, mostly students, paraded through brightly illuminated streets, singing songs of war and waving Fascist banners.

Students staged a mock funeral procession for Emperor Haile Selassie. Six bare-headed youths carried a bronze coffin with a caricature of the Negus on it through the streets with mock solemnity, while crowds on the sidewalks laughed and cheered.

Pulitzer Prize Paper's Drive On Graft Loses

Iowa Publication's Efforts to Convict 31 Quashed By Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 5—Only a day after a Pulitzer Prize for meritorious public service was awarded the Iowa newspaper whose campaign helped bring about their indictment, the State supreme court today wiped out grand jury charges of participating in graft and official corruption extending "into the State house" against 31 defendants.

Aggressive, 47-year-old Verne Marshall, editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette, whose publication won the award in New York last night, termed the tribunal's action against the last of the Woodbury County "graft case" defendants as something "to be expected."

He said the Pulitzer committee's recognition of the Gazette's work was "an answer to any one who interpreted the supreme court ruling as a vindication of the crowd indicted at Sioux City many months ago."

Not Qualified.

The supreme court's invalidation of the indictments was based on the grounds that Special Prosecutor H. M. Havner and M. E. Rawlings, Woodbury County attorney, were not qualified to appear before the special grand jury.

Its decision did not mention Marshall by name, but was predicated in part on the alleged payment of $700 by Marshall to Havner. This, the court said, disqualified Havner. "A man cannot serve two masters," the court commented.

The 31 persons released by the decision did not include Iowa's attorney general, Edward L. O'Connor. Indicted with 47 others a year ago, he was tried twice and acquitted the second time on a directed verdict.

Jury Failed to Agree.

A jury in his first trial failed to agree. But O'Connor's first assistant, Walter Maley, was among the 31 remaining defendants cleared today.

Only O'Connor was tried. Indictments of several defendants, including State Treasurer Leo J. Wegman, who was charged with perjury, were dismissed.

The State charged in the O'Connor trial that slot machine operators paid $1 a week per machine for protection against interference. Prosecutors estimated that this alleged "payoff" totaled as high as $5,000 a week at times and that a "cut" went to the attorney general's office.

Committee Delays Townsend Grilling

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, originator of the Townsend old-age pension plan, sat for an hour yesterday watching members of a House investigating committee argue whether they would question him concerning his plan. He was told to come back in two weeks.

Chairman Bell (Democrat), Missouri, said postponement was due to the fact that important evidence expected from California would not arrive for several days.

Asked whether the postponement was at his suggestion, Townsend said: "Lord bless you, no. I have been waiting to get it over with."

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported from Los Angeles that 80 gray-haired men and women, forming the nucleus of a Townsend caravan, had left in trucks for Washington. They expect to pick up followers along the way and to present a petition with thousands of signatures to Congress. They will arrive in time to hear their leader testify.

Bridge Condemnation Proceedings Are Halted

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 5.—Proceedings in the condemnation suit of West Virginia against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. to get possession of an old bridge across the Potomac at Harper's Ferry, for use as a temporary crossing until a permanent bridge can be built, have been suspended until all interested parties can be named in the suit.

Seven deeds of trust are on record in the County clerk's office here by the Baltimore & Ohio, securing bond issues of approximately $80,000,000. In order to get clear title to the bridge property, all the mortgages are required to be brought into the suit, which entails careful consideration of the title.

Japanese Warn Soviet

"Chinese authorities should take a truly broad view of the situation in east Asia and enter upon them with firm resolve. It is very unfortunate that apparently China as yet has not come to a full decision.

"However, in the face of obvious and imperious necessity of adjusting Sino-Japanese relations in the interest not only of the two countries, but also of peace in east Asia, it is our intention to urge the Chinese government to make up their mind and at the same time to do everything possible on our part to bring about a readjustment of our relations along all lines."

Concerned Over Reds.

"The Japanese government," continued Arita, "are greatly concerned over the inroads of Communist influence into east Asia. In view of the likelihood that the Red armies may march on northward at any favorable moment we are watching developments with particular attention."

In a discussion of international trade, the foreign minister said "the tendency is more in evidence than ever among many countries abroad to attempt the exclusion of foreign products under one pretext or another or to form so-called economic blocs heavily armed with weapons of a trade war.

"Since our nation cannot sustain its economic life except by securing abroad a supply of raw materials and a market for finished products, we shall have to continue our efforts by friendly means for the abolition of economic armaments, but should conditions fail to improve despite our endeavors we might be compelled to adopt the necessary measures to meet the situation.

"Knowledge and appreciation of one another's culture and civilization being essential to promoting amity and good understanding among nations, we shall continue to foster cultural enterprises contributing to the advancement of the world's civilization through dissemination of the noble and profound culture of the Orient."

Arita paid tribute to the late King George of Great Britain and said adjustment of British and Japanese interests should not "prove too difficult."

President Changes Forest Boundaries

By the Associated Press.

Two proclamations by President Roosevelt yesterday fixed new boundaries for the George Washington and Monongahela National forests.

The announcement of the proclamations by the Forest Service said the George Washington forest in Virginia would continue to include "for the present" some area in West Virginia, while Monongahela would be confined to West Virginia, "facilitating administration."

Last week portions of several units farther south were combined to form the Jefferson National forest, located entirely in Virginia.

Sections of the Monongahela stretching across the State line into Highland, Bath and Allegheny counties, Va., will be detached from that forest unit and added to the George Washington.

New Orchestra Comes to City At Dude Ranch

By Chanticleer.

The Dude Ranch has a new band. And when a new band comes to the local precincts—that's news. Dick Hummer is the pianist and leader of the band, known to radio audiences as the Carolina Club Orchestra. Eleven musicians there are—of the "hot" school of rhythm.

In view of the fact that many are not yet aware this new flock of Carolinians is in town, we call your attention to their presence.

Dixie Dyer and the Paige sisters are on view between dance numbers. Those Paige sisters are tap experts from 'way back.

Over at the Lotus, which is the same ratio to downtown as the Ranch is to the suburbs, Lady Mei has gathered another of her choruses. They're called the Mei-ettes.

Heading the revue this week is La Fons, in an interpretation of a Bowery dance. Grace Orlando is present with acrobatic numbers; Lenora Thall adds a toe fantasy, and Judy Ellington puts on the finishing touches with a couple of popular tunes of the day in the Ellington manner.

The Cocoanut Grove is not only a rumor—it's a certainty. The new spot will open soon. Watch for it.

For the third successive week, La Paree is featuring six dancing debutantes—taught by Elmer Day and prepared for headliners at just such a dine-and-dance rendezvous. Maria and Hall, the dance duo remembered for a five-week engagement last winter, are back again this week by the popular demand route—and Martinelli, the magician, has been held over to mystify you for a second week. Of course, that fellow, Hughie O'Donnell, remains as master of ceremonies.

Jimmy Crandall, host at Brinkley's, is the first to sneer at the idea of a vacation this year. "Poof," says Jimmy, "what would I do with a vacation?" Come on down, my friend, and I'll give you some vague ideas about how its done.

* * * *

The Heigh-Ho orchestra is going to break forth soon with a new signature song. Seems that "When Twilight Shadows Fall" is on the music publishers' restricted list. So the new tune, specially arranged, will be "In the Still of the Night." It will be used when the band gets to the Powhatan Roof for the summer.

* * * *

Those boys who do the trio vocalizing at Wardman Park are Ray Nelson, who "doubles" on the bass fiddle; Tom Casey, of the clarinet-playing Caseys, and Hugh Barteman, guitarist. They get so many requests that time runs out long before they can get to all of them. Right now, ask for "Christopher Columbus." Very good.

* * * *

George Carroll, young Washington pianist and business man, follows tune writing as an avocation. And last week he found a more than willing maestro in Leon Brusiloff. The Madrillon band liked Carroll's "Please Be Careful" so well that an orchestration was made and in one evening the tune was played half a dozen times.

Beautiful and talented—and something of a phenomenon on the dance floor. That's Frances Woods, who's showing them a thing or two about ballroom and adagio dancing this week, and who is deaf.

Frances has whipped all the obstacles and although she cannot hear a note of music, she performs with perfect grace through training to catch the tiniest vibrations through the floor. She has been dancing since she was 14.

Only a month left to see those Russian Troika revues. In observing the last month of the season, the show is bigger and better than ever.

The Countess Loney will continue at the Maryland Club Gardens. She's the lovely blond you may have seen there last week—a combination hostess, guest, stewardess and general Big Help. She came as a guest. She stayed. Then she showed she was an expert on European dishes and wines. Now she's a permanent attachment.

On View This Week at the Supper Clubs

London Arms Talk Bid Is Accepted by Soviet

Moscow, May 5 (AP).—The Soviet government announced today it had accepted a British offer to begin negotiations for concluding an agreement on naval armaments.

Negotiations will open shortly in London. No further information was given but observers expressed belief the proposal is intended principally to bring the Soviet Union into the recent agreement reached at the London Naval Conference by Great Britain, France and the United States.

Convicts Mutiny; Troops Stand By

Jackson, Miss., May 5 (U.P.).—Gov. Hugh White ordered the Mississippi National Guard to stand by tonight for a possible emergency at the State prison farm, at Parchman, where 60 mutineer convicts had barricaded themselves in one of their camps.

Ralph Fults, companion of the late Ray Hamilton, notorious outlaw executed last year in Texas, and Herbert Colson, under life sentence for bank robbery, were said to be leading the insurrection. Fults is serving a life term for helping Hamilton rob a bank at Prentiss, Miss.

Prison Superintendent Thames said he did not know whether the convicts were armed. He said he was not alarmed, however, and told the Governor he believed the men probably would surrender soon.

Snake Bite Cited In Murder Inquest

Los Angeles, May 5 (AP).—Coroner Frank Nance said today that he found an ugly little wound "characteristic of snake bites," on the exhumed body of Mrs. Mary Bush James, alleged victim of a fantastic death plot.

"That's just what we expected," declared Eugene Williams, deputy district attorney.

Williams took a lead in investigating a story he said he obtained from Charles H. Hope, former sailor, which accused Robert S. James, master barber, of drowning Mrs. James, his fifth wife, after forcing her foot into a box of rattlesnakes in an attempt to end her life.

On the Air Today

The wooing of radio by the motion-picture industry, and the almost needless to say eager response of the radio maiden, has finally culminated in a wedding involving two important organizations.

From now on, the N. B. C. Artists Bureau will serve not only as a recruiting agency for the network, but will also scout applicants and talent in general for "a prominent motion-picture company," as the bureau stages regular auditions of artists.

J. Ernest Cutting, director of auditions, has been assigned to the job of uncovering the movie talent prospects. Those whose talents seem to lie more along lines of picture work will be invited to return to the N. B. C. studios after their radio auditions for a second tryout which will be attended by motion-picture scouts.

The announcements includes: "We have already negotiated Hollywood contracts for many radio artists and we are happy to co-operate even more closely with the picture companies in their search for new talent."

A week never passes without the flickers signing some new radio star. Dorothy Page, Jackie Heller, Donald Briggs, Harry Stockwell, Arthur Jacobsen, Marten Lamont and Shaindel Kalish are recent examples. Now these names may not be familiar to you, but most of them are from the ranks of the leading dramatic stars of the air dramas, and you have herad all of them if you listen to radio dramatizations from N. B. C. Frances Langford was launched on her picture career by N. B. C. Artists Bureau.

The picture industry being what it is the names of Arthur Jacobsen and Shaindel Kalish already have been changed to Henry Hunter and Ann Preston.

Culbertson on Bridge

Cross-Ruff Technique.

The difficulty of many cross-ruff hands is phychological rather than inherent. Average and expert players alike become so accustomed to counting losing tricks and then seeking means to avoid one or more of such losers that they instinctively apply the same method to cross-ruffs. The mental criss-crossing is confusing, however, even to experienced players, and they are apt to become lost in the maze.

A much more satisfactory method is to calculate the tricks that can be won. Had the declarer in today's hand followed that precept he would have achieved a happier result. Incidentally, he also might have escaped a terrific tongue lashing from his partner for robbing him of a juicy penalty double.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	2 hearts	Pass	4 hearts
4 spades	5 dimnds	Pass	5 hearts*

*Final bid.

Obviously, South had no right to bid over East's four spade bid. His partner, North, had shown great strength and should have been given the opportunity to double or bid again, at his discretion. East would not have been happy in his four spade contract which North, of course, would have doubled.

West opened the singleton spade, East's queen won, and a low spade was returned. At this point declarer had only to count his winners to see that the contract was virtually cold. Trumping the spade return with a high heart, cashing both of dummy's aces, ruffing dummy's losing clubs with low trumps, and making his remaining two high trumps and dummy's four separately, totaled eleven tricks. But apparently this direct count was too difficult.

In the mistaken idea that he was "playing safe" he discarded a diamond on the trump return. West ruffed and led a trump. Now, too late, the cross-ruff was begun. With only three trumps left in dummy, the diamond suit could not be ruffed out. Declarer did not have sufficient entries to ruff diamonds and still draw West's trumps. Nor could dummy's spade suit be established for enough diamond discards.

Committee Maps Plans For Thrift Shop Frolics

Group Meets With Nancy Leiter at Luncheon; Decides to Limit Gowns for Venders to $5 Each.

Miss Nancy Leiter, chairman of the junior committee for the Thrift Shop Frolics, to be held at the Sulgrave Club, May 16, entertained her committee members at a garden luncheon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, yesterday afternoon.

The girls discussed plans for the plaid and checked gingham evening dresses they will wear as venders of cigarettes, programs, ice cream, flowers, and in conducting a grab bag at the Frolics. They sat about round glass garden tables, which reflected the flowers and trees of the grounds as well as the bright sports costumes they wore.

Miss Virginia Rodgers, who was among the winners in the races at Aiken, S. C., several months ago, arrived a little late, wearing her riding togs, jhodpurs and a checked coat, having been practicing for the Junior League's National Capital Horse Show opening Friday.

Discussion was somewhat divided after her arrival between the Junor League event and the Frolics, as the Junior League is one of the five organizations which benefits from the proceeds of the Thrift Shop and the girls are equally interested in the success of its program.

Miss Anne Carter Green, as chairman of the welfare committee of the league; Mrs. Philip O. Coffin, president of the board of the Children's Country Home; Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, president of the ladies' board of the Children's Hospital; Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro, president of the board of Columbia Hospital, and Mrs. Frederick DeC. Faust, of the Child Welfare, comprise the senior committee for the Frolics as representatives of the organizations to benefit from them.

The Frolics are being given to celebrate the seventh birthday of the Thrift Shop. Miss Leiter's grandmother, Mrs. John R. Williams, for several years has been chairman of the Thrift Shop committee. Miss Leiter is following in the steps of both her mother and grandmother in pursuing an interest in charity. Her mother has been actively interested in the Children's County Home for some years, and several years ago at Christmas Miss Leiter gave the children there a beautifully furnished doll house with which she had played as a child.

Mrs. Leiter arrived home yesterday just as her daughter's guests were leaving and they clambered onto the running boards of the open car to greet her and tell her something of their plans. One of the notes on the gingham ball, which they announced was that the dresses they wear are not to cost more than $5. Each guest also will "wear something you can leave behind," in keeping with Mrs. William's slogan for the party. Large hampers will be waiting to receive donations for the Thrift Shop shelves from each guest at the function.

Those of the junior committee at the luncheon yesterday were the Misses Mary Wells Marion Shouse, Nancy Ordway, Jane Esther Platt, Christine Ekengren, Angelica Lloyd, Emily Davis, Nora de With, Marguerite Hagner, Mary McDowell, Eleanor Preston, Mary Elizabeth Damon, Eleanor Flood, Yolande de Mauduit, Estherbelle McHarg, Polly Foot, Stellita Stapleton, Marie Therese de Laboulaye, Juliette Dulany, Carlisle Porter, Martha Davidge, Virginia Rodgers and Leonie McCoy.

Nine regional luncheons marked the opening of the sessions. Speakers yesterday were Mrs. Billy Shaw Howell, Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Elizabeth Lee Hailey, Portland, Ore., and Miss Gloria Chandler and Miss Jean T. Parker, New York. Dr. George E. Vincent, former president of the University of Minnesota and one-time director of the Rockefeller Foundation, was the principal speaker at yesterday's luncheon.

The executive board, headed by Miss Elizabeth P. Taylor, Little Rock, Ark., met to consider the policies to be acted upon by the conference. The budget for the coming year was discussed, and it was decided to establish a national publicity department in New York.

Mrs. Winthrop P. Stevens, Albany, made the arts and interests awards at a dinner last night.

Writers Guests Of Democratic Club's Board

Newspaper Women Feted; Mrs. Roosevelt Among Those Attending.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Newspaper women of Washington, with Mrs. Roosevelt as one of their number, were guests last night of the Board of Governors of the Woman's National Democratic Club. The function was one of the few where they went with the knowledge the party was especially for them. The fact was verified when their hostesses presented three short skits, giving them opportunity to see the inside of a newspaper office as it looks to the outsider.

Three entertaining skits were presented. The first was a take-off of the City Editor and the White House reporter, written and presented by Mrs. Edward Keating in the role of the editor. The second, of which Mrs. P. W. Chappell was the author, revealed the Society Editor with her problems of official precedence and the social climber. Mrs. Chappell had the role of the editor, her sister, Miss Margaretta Newell, that of the reporter and Miss Marguerite Wooley, of the photographer.

The third skit, presenting the trials of a columnist, was written by Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, who was unable to be present at the party as she was in New York City, attending a meeting of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation. Mrs. Emil Hurja, whose appearance was altered by a pair of large artificial ears, designed for hearing news before it happened, took the part of the columnist; Miss Caroline Thompson and Miss Laura Katherin Cheatham, those of her assistants; Mrs. Raymond Anderson, of the taxi driver and Miss Elizabeth Adams, the messenger boy.

There were frequent references to the White House, the President and the First Lady in all o fthe skits, as well as to others in official life in Washington. Mrs. Roosevelt appeared to enjoy them all, as did Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State and a member of the board of governors of the club, and the other guests present.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a gown of the neckline, and a green velvet white brocade with green velvet at sash. Mrs. Hull was in black lace with a gold thread through it. Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, president of the club, with whom Mrs. Hull received and who presided during the evening, was in a gown of green lace.

Miss Eleanor Flood and Miss Ellen Gudger, dressed as news photographers, were ready with their cameras as guests arrived, and hurried to Mrs. Roosevelt as soon as she entered, to take her picture and request an interview. Preceding the skits, a group of "foreign correspondents" also was introduced by Mrs. Meigs. They represented papers in remote sectoins of the world and beard, mustache and monocle were included in their make-up. The Micsses Peyton Hawes, Mildred Battle, Dorothy Porter, Ann Thompson and Kathryn Friant were the correspondents.

District's WPA Extends Equal Pay to Women

Acting Director Describes Work as New Kind of Social Aid.

WOMEN may not get an equal break with men in public life, generally, but they do in the D. C. division of the WPA, according to Mary Steele Funkhouser, acting director of the Women's and Professional Projects in Washington.

After the luncheon meeting of regional and State directors of the Division of Women's and Professional Projects of the WPA at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday, Mrs. Funkhouser described the relief-work picture as it affects the distaff side of the District, and emphasized: "There is positively no discrimination between men and women in WPA projects here. From the beginning we have insisted on equal pay for equal work, regardless of the employe's sex. Forewomen in the sewing rooms get as much money each month as foremen in other lines of endeavor. The same principle holds in every bracket of employment."

3,553 Women Employed.

The majority of the 3,553 women on WPA rolls in Washington are employed in sewing rooms or in preparing and serving lunches daily to 8,000 children in the District schools, Mrs. Funkhouser said.

She explained that an old church at the corner of John Marshall Place and C streets has been converted into a sewing room, where women work in two shifts. "Since December, when the sewing project got under way, these women have turned out more than 300,000 garments for persons in public institutions or on relief."

Every woman employed by the WPA has been taken from a relief roll, she pointed out. "Every one is the head of a family, with one or more dependents."

With an extensive background of training and experience in social work, Mrs. Funkhouser has brought to her part of WPA endeavor rare vision of what can be accomplished through these channels in the future. She feels that while much has already been done to provide work for the unemployed, "our job is not an adequate one, until we work ourselves out of a job;" that it is important not only to get men and women off of relief rolls but to train them in some line in which they can always find employment.

New Kind of Social Aid.

This, she believes, is the chief difference between social aid as it has been dispensed in the past and as it probably will be given in the future. "Since the Government has made a business of social work, it has improved remarkably," she said. "More and more persons are not only helping themselves and their dependents out of present difficulties, but they are training themselves for future emergencies."

Confetti Dots on Canvas

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Tell Suitor Who Continues to Postpone Marriage After Six Years to Go Jump in the Lake.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We are two young, intelligent, well-educated and attractive persons who met six years ago and became engaged four years ago. Our first meeting was one of mutual love at first sight and we have continued to love, more and more deeply, until now. My problem is this:

First of all, my fiance believes that all married women should hold some financially remunerative position outside the home, unless illness prevents. During our first two years of friendship I, too, firmly believed in careers for women, but wide reading and practical observations have shown me that this theory does not always make for happiness. I now believe that the spiritual and intangible aspects of the marriage relationship are the determining factors for happiness; and that the material accompaniments of job, activities, etc., important though they are, are secondary.

* * * *

My fiance believes that child-bearing and rearing are not sufficient alibis for the woman's staying at home. He also believes that woman makes a home chiefly for herself. I know that I should be tremendously happy if I could make a home for a husband, love him, cater to his wishes and support him with encouragement, inspiration and sympathetic understanding. I know, too, that I could not satisfy myself in this respect and also pursue a career which would absorb most of my time and energy . . . My fiance is not willing to make material sacrifices after marriage . . . Although he has been making a high salary for some years, he has had to divide his earnings and therefore felt that he could not afford to marry. Several times our marriage plans were suddenly postponed and shattered because of the prospect of possible (though scarcely probable) sacrifice afterward. Each time my heart was broken, but I tried to understand and eventually adapted myself to a different future.

* * * *

Although normally I have a very strong constitution and have no organic difficulties, a major operation to which I submited some months ago makes it definitely inadvisable for me to hold a full-time job. But I am quite strong enough for domestic life. I have tried both and find domesticity far less taxinfi on my physical and nervous system than full-time professional work. Because of my rapidly returning strength and the accumulation by my fiance of a financial margin, I have been buoyed up recently by the hope that we might soon be married and together. And although he refers to "having a home before long," my fiance does not manifest any enthusiasm and says nothing really definite.

Naturally, I revert mentally (never verbally) to bitter moments when our marriage was postponed in the past, but I feel it would be indiscreet to take the initiative in trying to discover what my fiance is really thinking and feeling. I am secretly suffering. We have always discussed the matter in the past and I feel always tried to understand the reasons for postponing our marriage. But every repetition has made the subject a delicate one.

* * * *

Weighing all this evidence you, no doubt, believe a disinclination exists toward taking the step toward the altar. It seems so, and yet we are with, each other frequently, and my fiance apparently is extremely happy when with me and still loves me realistically and romantically. But I feel that I am losing interest, chiefly because of my doubts which invariably cloud the horizon when all appears happy and serene . . . Feeling as he apparently does about me, do you believe my fiance loves me sufficiently to weather the storms of married life? What is the criterion? The anxiety, uncertainty, separations and postponements of the past six years have made the strain almost unbearable for me and have had a none-too-beneficial effect on my health . . .

* * * *

If there were no conflicts about careers for wives, financial security, robust vitality (which my fiance has to the nth degree and requires of his wife) and so on, we could be so happy. Moreover, I feel the happiest culmination of our relationship would be marriage with me devoting myself full time to home and husband. I suppose you will answer that I am foolish to have permitted so long an engagement, but one does foolish things when one deeply loves another. I thought I was doing the right thing at the time. Please advise me. VIDA.

Victim of Egoist.

DEAR VIDA: Your fiance is a bust, an opinionated stuffed shirt, a pain in the neck, a petty tyrant, a despicably and cruelly selfish egoist who is making and probably will continue to make your life a miniature hell of tormented frustration. Throw discretion to the four winds. Tear into him and find out what he is thinking and feeling about this too-long-postponed marriage business. Stop walking tip-toe, finger to lip, around and about this miserable situation.

* * * *

If you don't want to have a career after marriage, come out flat-footed and tell him so. If he is in a position to finance marriage now if he chooses to, tell him so. If you are sick and tired of waiting around for him to make up his selfish little mind about what he wants, tell him so.

In accordance with your request, I have omitted large portions of your letter. But let me tell you this: If you wish to leave town, snap your fingers at his possible recriminations and leave town. For heavens' sake, act like a human being who belongs to herself; not like a trembling slave who is all of a twitter because she can't anticipate her egoistic lord and master's next unpredictable mood and move.

It occurs to me the man might have married you a long time ago if you had shown a proper spirit and stood up to him as an individual with ideas about life and marriage quite as well defined and presumably as unalterable as his own. If it was love at first sight why should there have been a necessity for your making a rubber-stamp of yourself in order to net his continued approval? The answer is—there was no such necessity. There is no such necessity now. If he doesn't want to make you his wife on your terms, and if he won't consent to work out a platform of mutual compromise, then send him packing.

* * * *

If ever I heard fighting words mouthed by man or woman it is your fiance's statement to the effect that "child bearing and rearing are not sufficient alibis for the woman's staying at home;" that "woman makes a home chiefly for herself." If you are intelligent and well educated, you should have been able to ram those sophistries back down his throat two seconds after they were uttered.

Believe me, my dear Vida, the time is past for procrascinating longer; for miserably licking your wounds while feeding on crumbs of promise. Tell the man he can marry you as is or he can take his theories about marriage in the millinneum and go jump in the lake. M. H.

Fear of Noise, Falling, Instinct Born in Babies

Shouting and Sudden Lifting May Make Child Timid in Later Life.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

AFTER ALL is said and done there seem to remain but two instinctive fears in the human race, one of noise and the other of falling. The tiniest baby is startled by a sudden noise or by careless and uncertain handling.

Many mothers and nurses either do not know this, or feel that the baby must be taught early to overcome his inborn reactions. Doors slam, people shout and scream, the crib is jostled by careless passers-by, the baby is dandled and handed about in a heedless way, or lifted suddenly from a sound sleep.

Need Gradual Conditioning.

If, in later life, the child is timid and nervous, it occurs to no one that his early conditioning was apt to make him so. There is no use in flying directly in the face of nature. Conditioning must be gradual, if it is to be effective.

Low voices and gentle motions generally will not even rouse the healthy child from sleep unless his nerves have already been jangled by rough treatment. It is good for a child to get used to the ordinary hum of life from the outset. It is easy to spoil him and make him a household nuisance by insisting on absolute quiet while he sleeps.

Soft-Pedaling Good Habit.

On the other hand, a little soft-pedaling will hurt no one. It will, in fact, be good for the family to learn to modulate their voices, not to scream raucously at each other, or to bang doors and clatter pots and pans.

It must be terrifying to be roused from sleep with a loud and cheery "Hello!" and, without any kind of warning, to be lifted boldly into midair.

SUBSTITUTE SWEETHEART

By Priscilla Wayne

CHAPTER THIRTY.

THE DAYS passed swiftly enough in the hospital. Indeed, they fell instantly into a routine—tread-mill, but delightful to the two main actors.

Eight o'clock was no longer merely 8 o'clock. It was the hour when Jimmy lay propped up ever so slightly in bed and had his breakfast tray.

Ruth, trembling with happiness, sat at his side, breaking bits of toast to feed him, and carefully putting the coffee cup into his hand, grown slow and careful with the need to be accurate in touch.

Nine-thirty was Jim's hour to be shaved and bathed and made ready for the day. And it meant the time when Ruth would slip quickly out of the hospital, across the street and down the block to a quiet little restaurant where she could have her own breakfast. Back in the room at 10:30.

From 10:30 to 1 o'clock was a paradise of just being at the bedside of the man she loved. At this time Ruth would read the newspaper to Jim—taking care by the doctor's orders to omit any of the now rapidly lessening news of the crime and near crime that had taken place at the Bradley mansion.

Mr. Reagan and Ruth had been given instructions by the attending physicians not to dwell, in their conversation with Jim, upon the events leading up to his illness.

At this morning visit Ruth chatted with Jim or, listening with wistful ecstasy, heard him make plans for their future happiness together. It was a theme he never grew tired of discussing. And the plans she never grew tired of hearing.

It had become quite a gay little game. "Talk of what?"

"Of what?" insistently tender.

Jim, growing stronger, would pull Ruth very close to him. "Of my getting out of here. Of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bradley's going traveling. What say we go to Japan, darling? You've never seen Japan in the spring?"

"No, dear, but——"

"Don't argue. Japan is will be. And a lazy journey. I want to show you many things. Joyful things, beautiful things, things I dreamed I'd show my sweetheart—my wife—some day."

"Lovely, dear, lovely," and, hand clasped in his, Ruth would let herself believe the dream to be a beautiful, assured reality.

"And then we'll come home," Jim's kisses promised much.

Jim's returning meant to Ruth both delight and fear, delight in the recovery of the man she loved, fear of the arrival of the time when he must be told the truth.

Only the day before Mr. Reagan had mentioned it. "I wish you two would think things through. I'm having the devil's own time with the newspaper boys. They want to break a great big story about your being Jim Bradley's wife."

"They know about my——being here?"

"And why shouldn't they? You aren't any secret. You're a mighty pretty girl and the more mysterious you appear, the more you keep in the background, the more interesting an 'interview' do you become."

"I wouldn't know what to say, I wouldn't know what to do if they asked me for an interview."

"Of course you wouldn't, child. I've spun a number of very interesting yarns. I've given them my word of honor that you'll make a statement."

"You have?"

"I've told them that you and Jim are wildly in love with each other—which is quite true, isn't it?"

Ruth felt the blood mounting in a warm tide to her throat, her cheeks, even to the very roots of her hair. "That I love Jim very much? Yes."

"And that he loves you," matchmaking Mr. Reagan said emphatically. "Since you came he's getting better by leaps and bounds. Everyone notices it. So don't you see—you've got to make good on my promises.

"I've talked it over with the doctor. Of course you know that I explained the situation to him from the very start. He thinks that Jim is so much better that we can tell him almost any day now. In fact doctor is ready and anxious to have Jim told.

"Now, this is my plan. Tomorrow morning if the doctor is still willing and if Jim is still improving, I mean to walk right into his room there and tell him the truth. I don't believe it will shock him very much because at the very same time that I tell him, I'll make mighty sure to let him know that you're in the very next room, waiting."

"I can manage it very nicely and not even the nurses need know. We'll have the doctor in for one witness and I'll be the other witness. Goodness knows, we've both played cupid."

Miss Wheeler came in from Jim's room. "He's awake, Mrs. Bradley."

"How is he feeling?" Mr. Reagan asked.

"Cross with the nurses," Miss Wheeler grinned.

"I'll go and talk to Jim now," Ruth said, turning.

Robert Reagan took a step forward, put an encouraging hand on the girl's arm. "Tell him yourself. I'll wait here."

Ruth pondered wistfully. "I can't," she said at last. "I——I wouldn't dare. I don't want to be in the room when he finds out that I've deceived him. I don't believe that I could dare see him."

"I'll tell him then," Mr. Reagan said. "Try and put it out of your mind. Be happy this afternoon. Enjoy being together. I think there's a surprise for you."

There was a surprise for Ruth. Entering, her first glance discovered that the bed Jim had lain in was empty.

Jim sat by the great window on a deep, luxurious divan. He wore dark pajamas and a robe, his long legs were stretched out comfortable on a big footstool and as Ruth opened the door he lifted his head from the nest of pillows that surrounded him.

"Surprise, June. Surprise!"

In one impulsive motion Ruth was huddled at his side on the divan and Jim's arms, weak, but insistent, were around her. Jim was bewildered that she hid her head on his shoulder, that her slim young body was suddenly shaking with sobs.

"Why, darling, what is it? Are you ill? You frighten me."

"I—I'm crying." Ruth managed, trying to gulp back her sobs.

"Crying—what's the matter, darling?"

"I'm crying because I'm so—so—happy."

"I thought girls cried only when they're sad," he accused.

"Sometimes they cry when they're so——so happy that they could just—just die." Ruth said and her words were smothered in his kisses.

City Dwellers Appear Less Familiar With These Dishes Than Those in Smaller Places; First Prize Goes to Miss Agnes Adams.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that almost two-thirds of the entries in last week's contest for honey recipes came from suburban subscribers or those living in smaller towns surrounding Washington. This gives the impression that city dwellers perhaps are less familiar with honey as a cooking ingredient than their country neighbors.

The contest brought in an interesting variety of recipes. This week the prize winners, in addition to the cash awards, will each receive a 1-pound jar of honey. There were as usual many good recipes that were duplicated and so could not be awarded a prize. These women who submitted like recipes, plus other women whose recipes merited honorable mention, will also be rewarded with a 1-pound jar of honey. All awards, both money and honey, will be mailed to the winners.

First prize, $5, is awarded to Miss Agnes Adams, 2504 Thirteenth street northwest, for her recipe for ham with honey crust served with raisin sauce; second prize, $3, goes to Mrs. Edwin Lillis, 321 West Cork street, Winchester, Va., for her recipe for honey ginger squares; and the three remaining prizes of $1 each to Mrs. Hurbert Bauckman, Falls Church, Va., for her recipe for honey doughnuts; to Mrs. Alex Gray, 719 Third street northeast, for her recipe for Turkish honey omelet, and to Mrs. L. Gordon, 1424 Chapin street northwest, for her recipe for honey bran bread with dates, raisins and nuts.

Get Honorable Mention.

Honorable mention has been awarded to Miss Grace E. Virts, 313 A street northeast, for her recipe for peach honey cobblers; to Miss Joyce Talbert, 1509 Sixteenth street northwest, for her recipe for honey pumpkin pie; to Mrs. Grace Hale, 2400 Twentieth street northwest, for her recipe for honey orange almond cake; to Mrs. Harry M. Jones, Leonardtown, Md., for her recipe for honey orange almond cake; to Mrs R. F. Ward, Brandywine, Md., for her recipe for fruit lemonade; to Mrs. F. W. Heckman, 815 Mississippi avenue, Silver Spring, Md., for her recipe for frozen honey custard; to Mrs. George Canalle, New Market, Va., for her recipe for breakfast cocktail; to Mrs. Jennie Bennett, 2425 W. Lanvale street, Baltimore, Md., for her recipe for baked apples with honey and cheese; to Mrs. R. L. Coburn, 1763 Q street northwest, for her recipe for baked honey custard; to Miss Frances Fradin, 1764 Columbia road northwest, for her recipe for honeyed sweets; to Miss Daisy B. Ward, Brandywine, Md., for her recipe for honeyed sweet potatoes; to Mrs. Eva. M. Lange, 614 D street southeast, for her recipe for honey graham muffins, and to Miss Frances E. Ward, Seat Pleasant, Md., for her recipe for chocolate honey ice cream.

Ham With Honey Crust.

Scrub a 10-pound ham, rinse with cold water and place in a kettle of simmering water to which have been added:

1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 teaspoon allspice berries
½ teaspoon pepper
Leaves from a bunch of celery
¼ cup honey
¼ cup vinegar

Allow to simmer until done, allowing 25 minutes per pound. Cool in liquor in which ham was cooked, then take from kettle and remove skin. Beat two eggs and mix with them one-quarter cup honey, then brush this glaze over surface of ham. Stick whole cloves into surface of ham at irregular intervals and place ham in hot oven to brown. Serve with raisin sauce.

Raisin Sauce.

Cook together to a sirup
¼ cup vinegar
½ cup honey
1½ cups water
½ cup seedless raisins

Honey Ginger Squares.

½ cup butter
2 tablespoons caramelized sugar
2-3 cup honey
2¼ to 2½ cups cake flour
2 teaspoons ginger
½ teaspoon cloves
3 egg whites, beaten stiff
¼ cup sugar
2 egg yolks
¼ cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ teaspoons orange extract

Put jar of honey in warm room for 6 hours before using. Cream the butter and beat until light with the sugar and caramelized sugar. Add egg yolks. Beat. Add honey and stir. Sift flour, baking powder and spices together three times and add gradually to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Fold in the egg whites. Flavor with orange extract and turn into gressed tins.

Bake mixture in shallow square cake pans to a thickness of about one inch in a moderate oven. While warm, but not hot, cut into small squares with a sharp knife. Decorate with whipped cream sweetened with honey.

Honey Doughnuts.

3 eggs
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons shortening
1½ cups honey
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon lemon extract
5¾ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cream shortening, honey and sugar, add eggs, well beaten, mix well, add milk, lemon, flour, salt, soda and cream of tartar sifted together. Mix and turn out on floured board. Roll out and cut with doughnut cutter; fry in plenty of deep, hot fat.

Turkish Honey Omelet.

5 eggs
¼ cup boiling water
1-3 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup heated honey

Separate the eggs. Beat the whites until stiff and the yolks until creamy. Add the water and salt to the yolks, combine with the whites; pour into a heated frying pan in which the butter has been melted. Cook over a low heat, lifting the mixture about the edges to allow the uncooked portion to precipitate. When brown on the bottom, place under the broiler a moment to set the top. Cut at right angles to the handle to form a hinge and fold over. Transfer to heated platter, and pour the honey over the omelet. Serve at once. Strew with chopped, browned cashew nuts, if desired.

Honey Bran Bread With Dates, Raisins and Nuts.

Mix together 1¼ cups bran, 1½ cups whole wheat flour, 1¼ cups pastry flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. To these ingredients add ½ cup chopped pitted dates, seedless raisins, chopped and broken walnuts. Moisten the mixture with 1½ cups sweet milk, mixed with 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon melted shortening, ½ cup honey. Beat hard, pour into well-greased bread pans and bake in a moderate oven for one hour, or as much longer as necessary. Rub the crust over with melted butter when removing from pans. This bread spread with quince honey or orange marmalade makes delicious sandwiches.

Flavor for Shellfish.

There is a peculiar flavor affinity between mustard and paprika and shellfish. Any recipe calling for the addition of either or both of these spices with lobster, crab, shrimps, clams, mussels or scallops is bound to please.

Exclamations and Smiles Greet This Dessert

Peppermint rennet-custard dessert can be depended upon to wind up the most special kind of meal with a bang. This young chap is determined to get his share before mother and her friends make away with it, and is being generous with the topping of chocolate sauce.

Enid Szantho, Vienna Singer, Gives a Recipe

She Combines Career as a Diplomat's Wife With That of Musical Artist.

Called the young Schumann-Heink, Enid Szantho, contralto of the Vienna Opera Co., recently completed her first American tour and appeared twice in Washington this season. Still in her early twenties, Mme. Szantho in private life is the wife of Laszlo Stenzer of the Ministry of Economy in Vienna and she combines two careers—that of a singer and that of the wife of a diplomat.

Her home in Vienna is famous for good food, and she finds that some of the simple dishes which she has always enjoyed in her girlhood in her native Hungary are great favorites with her guests and colleagues, whom she entertains frequently at informal gatherings.

Mme. Szantho recommends the following most heartily.

Puszta Porkolt (Meat Stew.)

Ingredients: Equal parts of beef, veal and pork, 2 or 3 onions, 3 potatoes, 1 tomato, lard, or fat, salt, pepper and one teaspoon paprika.

Slice the onions and cook till golden brown in hot lard or fat. Then add the meat cut in large squares, season with salt, pepper and paprika. When the meat begins to brown, cover with hot water and simmer gently for 1½ hours. Twenty minutes before serving, add the potatoes, cubed, and serve as soon as these are soft.

Recipe Prizes Offered For Best Tuna Display

Housewives will tell you that canned tuna is one of those indispensable foods. In the winter it occupies a prominent place on the emergency pantry shelf, and when warm weather comes it flourishes as a popular summer dish for it can be made into so many attractive, appetite-coaxing concoctions—a crisp salad with apples or celery, a tender souffle, an a la king dish, etc.

So this week canned tuna has been selected as the theme of The Post's weekly recipe contest. Housewives are requested to enter their favorite ways for serving canned tuna this week. Cash prizes will be awarded those who submit the five best recipes. The first prize is $5; the second, $3, and the three remaining prizes, $1 each.

Write out your favorite canned tuna recipe and send it to Dorothea Duncan, in care of The Washington Post. Be sure to mail your recipe in time to reach this office not later than Saturday morning.

Boy Laziest Animal, Declares Educator

Cincinnati, Ohio (AP).—The boy is naturally the laziest of all animals, says Dr. Roscoe Gilmore Scott, writer, humorist and educator. Then he gives the lads a break by adding:

"He is philosophic. He has no hero-worship in him, not unless it is drilled into him. He's democratic. There is no gush or pose in him. He wants old-fashioned friendship and he likes to talk to grown-ups."

Simple Menu Offers Bouquet Of Vegetables

Dinner Good for Either Fete or Home Meal; Dessert of Custard.

What is your yardstick for measuring the success of a "company" dinner or any dinner for that matter? Is it ease of preparation? Or the differentness of your food? Or the exclamations wrung from your guests? Or just their satisfied facial expressions?

A menu that measures up to every one of these standards is the answer to a hostess' prayer. And here is that menu, readymade for your nicest spring party, perhaps, your last club meeting of the season, or the announcement of an engagement, yet not a bit too elaborate for a simple home dinner. It is introduced by an ice-cold clam juice cocktail, followed promptly by crisp chilly radishes and celery. Then some nicely broiled little pig sausages, or sausage cakes if you prefer them, with slices of unpeeled, cored red apples poached lightly in a sugar sirup. And a bouquet of spring vegetables handsome enough to take the place of flowers, for as long as they last. The bouquet consists of cooked whole small cauliflower (which has been well-soaked in cold salt water before cooking), sitting in the middle of a chop plate with a crown of cheese sauce, and surrounded by cooked baby beets and carrots, peas and green beans, all cooked just to tenderness and generously buttered. The vegetables should all be cooked separately and the carrots are twice as good if cooked in chicken broth or chicken bouillon.

Dessert, however, is quite properly the climax of the meal. It is as simple as you could wish, and even more delicious. It is peppermint rennet-cutard with a thick chocolate sauce, the classic flavor combination.

Peppermint Rennet-Custard Dessert.

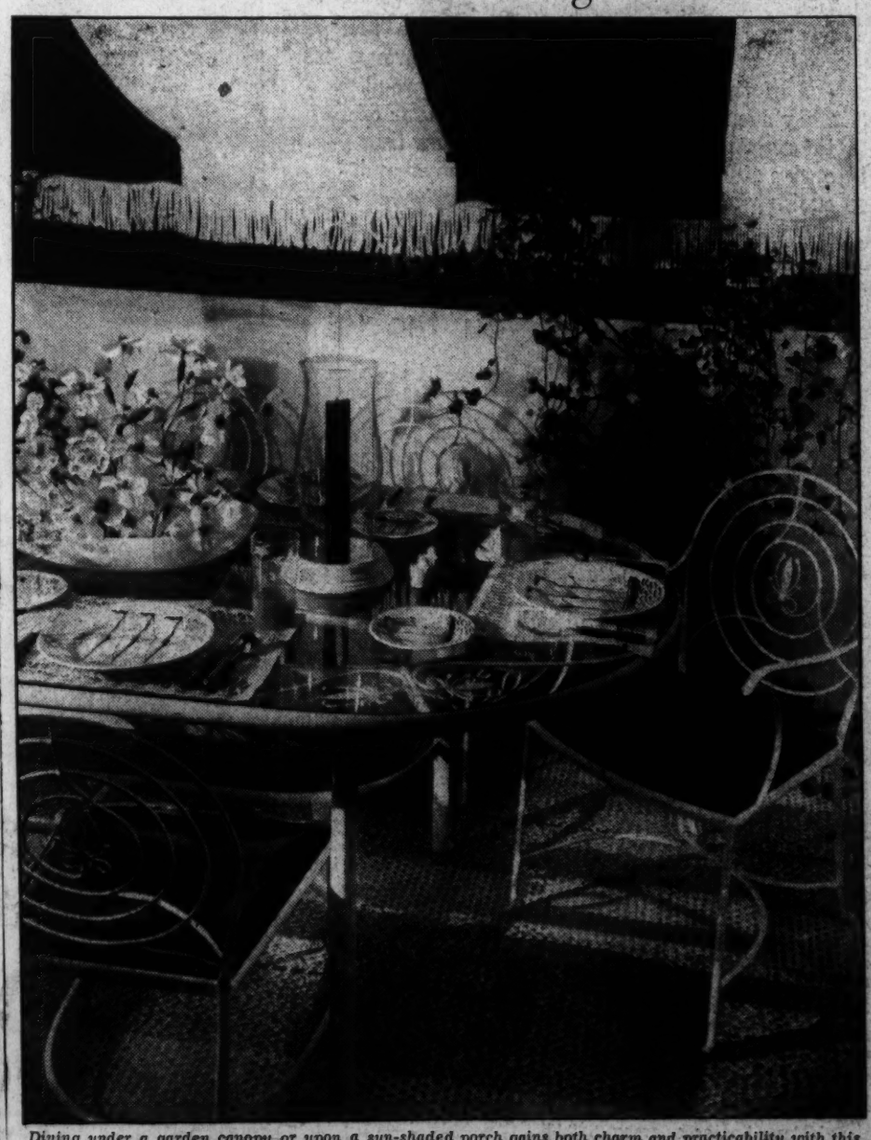
1 pint milk
1 rennet dessert tablet
1 tablespoon cold water

Crush candy into fine crumbs and let stand in milk in refrigerator for one hour. Dissolve rennet dessert tablet in cold water. Turn milk and candy mixture into top of double boiler and warm until lukewarm, stirring until candy is all disolved. Remove from stove and stir in dissolved tablet. Pour immediately into sherbet glasses or custard cups. Let stand ten minutes at room temperature; then chill in refrigerator. Just before serving, garnish with a pool of thick chocolate sauce. Yield: 5 servings.

This is a dessert which makes it difficult for even the most self-controlled guest to refrain from admiring oh's and ah's. Delicately rose-colored, cool and flavorful, it is a very special treat, as well as being both light and nutritious.

Summer Diners Are Retreating to the Porch



Dining under a garden canopy or upon a sun-shaded porch gains both charm and practicability with this white-painted furniture, showing a glass-top table and gracefully designed chairs. But what if you have no modern trimmings with which to deck out your summer retreat? Then make the most of your old porch furniture. Give it a coat of paint and treat your chair cushions to a new covering of lacquered surface upholstery that is as washable as these painted iron chairs.

Refrigerator Dough Handy For Housewife

HOT weather meals which feature crisp salads as the piece de resistance call for hot, crispy rolls with plenty of butter. It is a wise housewife, then, who keeps a supply of refrigerator dough on hand. This easy-to-make recipe can be kept in the refrigerator, and preparing hot rolls in a jiffy will number among one of the simpler kitchen feats.

Easy-to-Make Refrigerator Rolls.

2 cups boiling water
1-3 to ½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1-3 cup lard or fat
2 cakes compressed yeast
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 eggs
8 cups flour

Mix first four ingredients. Cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast and sugar in lukewarm water and add to first mixture. Add eggs and four cups of floor. Beat thoroughly. Then add four more cups flour. Do not knead. Cover and place in refrigerator. When ready to use, cut off uniform sized pieces of dough. Mold into clover leaf rolls. Let molded rolls rise in a warm place about 1 hour or until doubled in size. Place rolls in hot oven (400 degrees F.) and bake for about 25 minutes or until done.

Side Dishes Add Air of Elegance To Simple Meals

It's a tradition among housewives that no restaurant food can compare favorably with a home cooked meal, and it takes a brave or tactful family to hint that mother could pick up a few ideas from the professional caterers, especially in the matter of fancy touches which add to the pleasures of the table.

Many a restaurant has made a reputation for itself through side dishes that add an air of elegance to otherwise simple but well cooked meals. A whole spiced peach, a spoonful of spiced pear preserve, an orange fritter sprinkled with powdered sugar and some grated nutmeg—these are pleasing to the eye, nose and palate.

The fruits and preserves can be bought in cans and jars if you don't put up your own in season, and the fritters are easy to make, so why not serve them and round out your meals with these delicious additions?

Another colorful relish that is simple to prepare at home is Spiced Red Cherries. You simply simmer a large can of tart red cherries for 20 minutes with ½ cup of brown sugar, a 2-inch stick of cinnamon, 2 whole cloves, and ½ teaspoon powdered nutmeg. Remove the whole spices, and then add the mixture to a package of cherry flavored gelatin dissolved in 1 cup of boiling water. Add a half teaspoon of salt, stir well, and pour into individual molds and chill.

Odds and Ends In House Offer Charity Source

Good-Will Industries Will Take 'White Elephant' to Assist Needy.

Housecleaning is bound to bring out at least one white elephant—a picture of wild geese hanging head down that you have never had the courage to throw away nor yet permit to grace your dining room wall, a pair of shoes that you bought in a weak moment even though they were the wrong size, or a piece of furniture that would be perfectly good if someone tightened the joints and repainted it. There will be other items, too, clothes and bedding and even dishes that you have felt it your duty to keep all this time, because though they weren't good enough for use, they seemed too good to throw away.

But there is a place where all these white elephants will be appreciated. And to dispense with them will be no trouble to you. Take all your unusables—clothing, dishes, furniture, magazines and papers—down to the basement and then ring up the Goodwill Industries at Metropolitan 5566, and ask them to come and collect these articles. Ask them, too, to bring along one of their bags, so that it may be hung in the basement in the event that during the summer you have something else—silk stockings, underwear, etc., that you no longer wish to wear. You will find it convenient to have a place in which to store your unwearables as the occasion arises. Then when the bag is full, you can call the Goodwill again and have them cart the full bag away.

This organization, which is nonprofit making and nondenominational, is through its existence giving handicapped persons—the deaf, the lame, the aged—work to do this summer, according to Mrs. Stanley C. Sears, a member of the board of trustees of the Goodwill Industries. All the articles of clothing, furniture, etc., that are brought to the Goodwill Industries Workshop at 926 Fifth street are reconditioned and then resold in the four Goodwill stores. Work is offered in sewing, carpentry, shoe repair and tailoring. Many persons who are not able because of physical handicaps to hold a position are given work in the Goodwill shop. All the wages for the employes of the Goodwill shop are taken care of by the sales of the reconditioned articles sold in the four Goodwill stores.

The Goodwill Industries will move into a larger building at 1214-16 New Hampshire avenue, June 1.

At the recent election of the Goodwill Industries of Washington, D. C., the following were elected to the board of trustees: William O. Tufts, president; Mrs. Karl Fenning, vice president; James C. Dulin, treasurer; Mrs. E. W. Murray, secretary; Col. A. R. Brindley, Ernest H. Daniel and Mrs. Sears.

Moth Damages Annually Reach $200,000,000

Public enemy, No. 1, of the American housewife is mobilizing for the annual sweep that causes damage estimated at $200,000,000.

The moths are coming! With no warning buzzing or whizzing like the flies or mosquitoes, silently and stealthily under the cover of darkness they carry on their invasion of furniture, clothes, furs and other habiliments. They are, says A. Edison Badertscher, Ph. D., prominent entomologist of Baltimore, Md., the scavengers of civilization. Originally they lived outdoors, but as man moved indoors into fine houses, the moths moved with him and constantly improved their standards of living until now they delight in attacking the finest garments, the costliest furs and the most cherished furniture.

"A single moth may be the cause of a hundred holes," said Dr. Badertscher. "A buxom female moth can lay 40 or 50 eggs in a period of ten days. These hatch and the tiny worms eat their way to adulthood, and if unchecked are able to bring forth a new brood of lusty youngsters before the season is over. A patriarchal insect may be able to number thousands of grandchildren in the neighborhood during a single season. With such fecundity, the estimated moth damage of $200,000,000 annually in the United States is not difficult to understand.

"Clothes moths have probably been the distraction of housewives ever since the human race began to live in houses and to wear woolen and fur garments. The Bible refers to a moth-eaten garment as an odious thing. Our ancestors were completely at the mercy of the moths, but now modern science has provided the housewife with several types of weapons to control the pests, which are efficient and effective when correctly used.

"Today a moth hole in a garment is usually the sign of a careless housekeeper."

New Cook Book Clear, Complete, Easy to Follow

More Than 2,000 Recipes, Helpful Hints Feature Rombauer Volume.

THE AUTHOR of "The Joy of Cooking" clearly shows by her book that she is one of those rare individuals who really enjoy a day in the kitchen. The style of Irma S. Rombauer's book is informal, but it is concise rather than rambling. Her recipes, and there are more than 2,000, are set forth in a brisk, clear style that is readable and clear and naturally simple to follow.

Good food and how to prepare it was Mrs. Rombauer's hobby long before she ever attempted to place her recipes in print. Mrs. Rombauer has made it a habit to collect and perfect recipes for her own use. Her friends knew her to be unexcelled in the art and prevailed upon her to publish them privately. Her first volume created a sensation in St. Louis, where Mrs. Rombauer lives. Its fame spread far and wide and the supply was promptly exhausted. As a result, she has written this new edition, containing more than twice as many recipes as the original book.

Time and Temperatures.

"The Joy of Cooking" has certainly not overlooked any phase of American cooking. Every subject seems to be more than adequately covered. Each chapter, as is the custom in modern cookbooks, is devoted to a comprehensive study of a special food subject. Mrs. Rombauer in her book has covered cooking time and temperature tables for all types of food. Each of her recipes is complete, even to listing of the number of servings.

An interesting feature of "The Joy of Cooking" is the space devoted to cooking terms and helpful hints. Also included is a table of weights and measures which is especially helpful in that it gives cup measurements of many of the commonly used foods and their equivalent in pounds, or cup measurements of raw foods and their equivalent in cups when cooked.

Special Subjects.

Apartment dwellers will be particularly interested in Mrs. Rombauer's chapter on kitchenette cookery. Convalescent or invalid cookery is the special feature of another chapter. Recipes and suggestions for leftover food will be appreciated by every woman, for this subject never ceases to be a a nuisance.

Unlike many cookbooks, "The Joy of Cooking" gives instructions for the correct serving of wines and the making of alcoholic cocktails.

The efficiency housekeeper is not forgotten. In her book Mrs. Rombauer lists a number of delicious uncooked desserts and recipes for emergency soups that are prepared by using canned products in combination with other foods, that bring rapid and happy results.

The following recipe, which was gleaned from the pages of "The Joy of Cooking," will give you an idea of the easy workability of Mrs. Rombauer's recipes.

Graham Cracker Sponge Cake.

Whip until stiff, but not dry: Six eggs whites, one-eighth teaspoon salt.

Fold them lightly into the cake batter. Bake the cake in an ungreased 9-inch tube pan, or in three layer pans, in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit). Place a cooked cake filling between the layers.

Bananas Train Olympic Runner

Tarzan Brown's Race Diet Sometimes Lists Steak.

Banana-eating Tarzan Brown, the young Narragansett Indian who will represent the United States in the Olympic marathon at Berlin this summer, is going to be carefully watched by his handlers from now on to see that he doesn't change his diet.

Right after he finished the Boston marathon, in which he proved himself the outstanding long-distance runner in North America, few knew what he ate, except that it must be good.

Tarzan wouldn't talk about his diet at all, but in the Indian's home town of Westerly, R. I., an inquisitive reporter located a lunch wagon counterman who boasted he had often served the newly crowned town hero. What did Tarzan eat? Oh, steak if he could afford it, followed up by bananas and cream. Or a beef stew, followed up by bananas and cream. The counterman said he guessed Tarzan didn't go much for vegetables, aside from corn, "and I never heard tell of an Injun who didn't eat that, did you?"

The young brave's weakness for bananas comes to light at a time when the sports pages have been linking bananas with the saga of many a young athlete. A rabid fan some time ago sent a bunch of bananas to Joe di Maggio, outfielding star of the New York Yankees. Coaches and trainers of college athletic squads, like "Pop" Warner of Temple and Dean Cromwell of Southern California, have been placing bananas before their athletes at the training table. Now comes Tarzan Brown to join the Society of Athletic Banana-Eaters

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"WE'VE BEEN BROKE so many years that I feel positively giddy at the idea of spending a nice fat check for refurbishing our living room," exclaimed the mother of three college-age children. "So you'll have to advise me or I might go completely haywire and buy the wrong things. I don't mean that I have a young fortune to spend . . . it's a fat check to me, after the lean years we've been through holding things together during hard times. I must keep the furniture I have—thank goodness it's fairly nice Georgian mahogany. I might add a piece or two of occasional furniture.

"But I can have the walls refinished, get new furniture coverings and draperies, maybe add Venetian blinds that I've longed for such ages, buy some new lamps and accessories. But I may as well make up my mind to keep the old rug, because if I replaced it, I wouldn't have enough left for other things that I want so much. The rug is taupe, but not such a bad shade . . . more toward the gray and not too dark. Now then—what can you make out of this? I really want to be a little daring and different—without getting something that's totally impractical. The children are old enough to respect a nice place so I don't have to stick entirely to things that will resist Boy Scouts and dogs and live frogs."

Why not have the walls painted eggplant—that would be a bit on the daring side, yet smart and agreeable to live with. Then woodwork—moldings, baseboard, Venetian blinds, doors—all in beige. The fireplace could be painted beige too. For the sofa, we'd have a turquoise blue covering, then one lemon yellow chair and two coral chairs. For the windows, we'd have figured chintz or linen draperies on a light ground—a pattern that is nice with the other colors in the room. Then white lamps and white porcelain accessories.

Cold Cooked Custard.

A cooked custard, the kind that is often poured over plain or whipped gelatin, is delicious served cold as a covering for bananas. The dish is further enhanced by a sprinkling of finely chopped roasted but unsalted peanuts.

What could be more satisfying than a tall glass of chilled tomato juice?

There's something about a glass of good cold tomato juice that makes lips smack together and issue forth a long, satisfying "ah—." More than that, its vitamins are beneficial to the human system and it is one of the best appetizers known. There is, however, a wide difference in the flavor of different juices and it is a question of finding the one that suits your taste the best.

In this connection let us recommend that you try Clark's. It has a distinctive flavor quite different from any other, a tang that we believe you'll enjoy. It is pressed from carefully selected New York State tomatoes.

1-3 cup granulated sugar
½ cup pineapple juice
1 lemon (medium size)
2-3 cup powdered sugar
2½ dozen lady fingers
½ cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons powdered sugar

Drain Royal Spears and dry Spears with absorbent paper or a fresh tea towel. Soak gelatin in ¼ cup pineapple juice. Separate egg yolks and whites. Beat egg yolks slightly, beat in salt and granulated sugar. Add one-half cup pineapple juice and grated rind and juice of lemon. Cook in the top of a double boiler over boiling water until mixture forms a heavy coating on a metal spoon. Remove from heat, add soaked gelatin and stir until dissolved. Beat egg whites until peaks form when beater is removed. Fold in 2-3 cup powdered sugar and warm custard. Line the side of a (8½x2½ inch) "spring-apart" cake pan with half Royal Spears alternating with whole lady fingers. Pour in pineapple mixture. Decorate top with lady fingers and quarters and halves of Royal Spears. Place in refrigerator to set. Serve with sweetened whipped cream. 8 servings.

Director Says Bike Is Vehicle; Attacks Ruling

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A bicycle, according to a ruling yesterday by Judge Edward M. Curran, newest Police Court jurist, is apparently not a vehicle.

But a bicycle, according to Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, is not only a vehicle, but is subject to the same traffic regulations as automobiles.

And speeding, driving on the wrong side of the street, passing a stop sign and failing to stop at an alley exit were described as "petty charges" in another ruling by Judge Curran.

Those charges, however are considered by Traffic Director Van Duzer as major offenses.

These split opinions were revealed yesterday after Judge Curran, presiding in Traffic Court, dismissed charges of passing a red light against Charles R. McCamey, 18, a bicyclist, of 226 Fourth street northwest.

Policeman E. A. Horseley, First Precinct, testified he arrested McCamey for riding through a red signal light at East Executive and Pennsylvania avenues northwest.

"The light was red when he entered the intersection and was still red when he reached the other side," said Horseley.

"What did you say he was riding?" asked Judge Curran.

"A bicycle."

"Case dismissed."

Horseley also testified that when he stopped McCamey, the youth told him "bicycles don't count."

But bicycles "do count," said Van Duzer, when asked to comment on Judge Curran's decision.

"A bicycle is a dangerous vehicle," Van Duzer declared. "Under District traffic regulations, bicycle riders are required to obey the law the same as any other drivers. In my opinion, something should be done to curb reckless tendencies among cyclists—not only to safeguard these youthful riders, but to protect pedestrians and prevent auto accidents."

Traffic regulations describe a vehicle as "an object moved over any Horseley, ignored the light, darted highway on wheels."

McCamey, according to Policeman through heavy traffic and created an accident hazard.

In another case yesterday, Judge Curran dismissed parking charges against Thomas C. McDonald, 60, of the Westchester Apartments, who, it was testified, held an "official" parking permit.

Policeman W. J. Matthews, First Precinct, ticketed McDonald's car in an "official" parking zone at Eighth and E streets northwest. The auto, he said, remained parked throughout the day.

It was testified McDonald obtained the parking permit through the office of Senator Copeland and had a son employed in the AAA annex for which the parking space was allotted.

Regulations say "official parking permits may be used only when on official business.

"The defendant has a parking permit. He is entitled to park there. Case dismissed," said Judge Curran.

Charges Called "Petty."

In another recent ruling, Judge Curran released a motorist on his personal bond, describing four traffic charges as "petty," but at the same time admitting he felt the defendant was guilty.

This was the case of Clyde D. Nelson, 32, 1211 Harvard street northwest, accused of speeding, passing a stop sign, driving on the wrong side of the street and failing to stop at an alley exit. He was arrested by Policeman Irving Lubore.

Judge Curran reprimanded Lubore for not charging the man with reckless driving and declared:

"Officers are not going to be allowed to clutter up my court with petty cases."

He added that there was "no question" that the defendant was guilty of the charges. It was also learned that on the separate charges Nelson could have been fined a total of $125. The maximum fine for reckless driving is $100.

Van Duzer pointed out that what Judge Curran termed "petty" charges were considered by his department as major infractions—forming a large portion of Washington's traffic problem. He cited last year's traffic record, showing how these "petty" charges figured in accident and death tolls:

Accidents attributed to speeding—103; deaths—5.

Accidents attributed to driving on the wrong side of the street—133; deaths—3.

The casualty record for failing to stop at an alley exit was not listed.

Thus, Van Duzer pointed out, these so-called "petty" offenses contributed to a total of 350 accidents and 10 deaths of the 1935 traffic toll.

Ban on Jaywalking Tabled for Month

Traffic Director Van Duzer's proposal to punish jaywalking in the downtown area was laid on the shelf for at least a month by the District Commissioners yesterday.

His proposal to prohibit blowing of automobile horns on private vehicles, between 11 p. m. and 7 a. m., for any purpose whatever, also was laid aside despite the fact that Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who fostered the anti-noise campaign, had suggested it be presented for action by the Commissioners and had predicted its adoption.

Both proposals would have made violators subject to the general penalty provisions of the traffic law.

Pedestrian lights are to be installed within a week at the intersections of Twelfth and Thirteenth streets with F street. It was decided by Commissioners Hazen and Col. Dan I. Sultan to lay aside the proposed jay walking regulation until the pedestrian crossing lights had been tried.

Jury May Hear Story of Crime By McDermott

By Frederick B. Tuttle,
A Staff Correspondent.

Cumberland, Md., May 5.—Albert McDermott, alias John ("Slim") Dunn, Alcatraz convict on trial for the "mistaken identity" murder of Allen B. Wilson, newspaper route carrier, on October 23, 1934, may take the stand in his own behalf tomorrow.

Late today it was learned that the "poker-faced" little gunman who is charged with being one of the two triggermen in the "botched" attempt to kill Edward ("Mickey") McDonald, desires to tell the court his version of the crime.

The second day of McDermott's trial was halted abruptly this afternoon when State's Attorney for Montgomery County James H. Pugh, indicated he needed complete telephone company records which he hopes definitely will place McDermott and Claude Bailey, slain in an attempt to escape from Lorton Reformatory last year, in New York prior to the murder.

McDermott and Bailey, Pugh will try to show, went to the metropolis to purchase a machine gun, which they were to use in an attempt to murder McDonald.

When Pugh today called Lawrence Vermillion, youthful Washington manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., to the stand, the witness could not produce a complete record of telephone calls from the Alban Towers apartment to Richmond. However, he did produce a record of calls made from the apartment house to New York at the time the State says McDermott was in New York.

The Richmond calls will be established to permit the introduction of two surprise witnesses from the Virginia capital. Cleary said today, that McDermott went to Richmond after the killing. No testimony can be introduced covering the period after the shooting unless the State can show that it had a bearing on the conspiracy. The State hopes that the calls will show that the Richmond witnesses knew enough about the plot to permit them to testify.

Earlier in the day, Edward ("Mickey") McDonald provided a brief, bright interlude in the serious atmosphere of the trial. The self-confessed broker in "wagers" fenced with McDermott's counsel in the staccato parlance of the gambling world.

He dismissed briefly the attempt to kill him by blowing up his car. "I stepped on the starter and the car blew up and that was all," he said.

Fuller Barnard, jr., defense counsel, asked:

"What business are you in?"

"I'm a broker," he answered.

"What kind of a broker?"

"A commission broker."

"What do you buy and sell?"

"I handle wagers, W-A-G-E-R-S," he spelled it out, "on a commission basis."

Barnard asked him if he were not really in the gambling business, and a brisk legal skirmish developed. McDonald declined to answer because, he said, he might incriminate himself. Barnard argued that he could not incriminate himself because the statute of limitation would bar prosecution for anything he might have done at that time. The judge, however, ruled that he did not have to answer.

The fencing began anew.

"You say you sell wagers?" Barnard asked.

"I handle wagers," McDonald corrected him.

"In other words, bets?"

"That's right."

"You handle for yourself?"

"No."

"On a commission basis?"

"Yes."

"For somebody else, then?"

"Yes."

Later McDonald, questioned about a date, snapped at Barnard:

"My God Almighty, are you crazy? I don't know."

Near the end of his testimony, Barnard asked him when he first talked to his wife about the shooting.

"I started talking to her about two split seconds after they started throwing the heat into that car," he answered.

One of the State's witnesses provided valuable material for the defense. She was Mrs. Elsie Bond, of Baltimore. She testified that Cleary, the State's chief witness, and McDermott, target of his story, had never been friendly. But later the State wrested from her an admission that she had gone with McDermott.

Cleary was on the stand for two and a half hours. During this time he admitted he had spent "11 or 12" of the last 16 years in prison. He went on to tell of the first abortive attempt to kill McDonald and to tell graphically of the fatal blast of gunfire on an October dawn.

Most of the testimony today also was given at Rockville in an earlier trial arising from the same case. One new fact was read into the record by Mrs. McDonald. She said that shortly before the explosion in the car, she saw McDermott driving slowly by her home, staring at the house. She also disclosed for the first time that one of the bullets fired at Wilson in the car struck the McDonald house.

WPA Seeks Skilled Men For Projects

Private Building Creates Shortage of Labor, Officials Report.

Limited Hours Policy Held Undesirable to Workers.

Private building has speeded up in Washington to such an extent that it has proved impossible to get enough skilled workmen for two major District WPA jobs, officials revealed yesterday.

The two jobs are the sewage disposal plant at Blue Plains and the Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Glenn Dale, Md. Both are WPA projects and both are being done by union contractors. Federal rules require that workmen be paid the union scale of wages, but limit the number of working hours in a week to 30.

The wages are sufficiently attractive, but the limited number of hours men are permitted to work each week brings their weekly wage below that of men on full time jobs in private employ, officials said. This discrepancy has been such that it has been increasingly difficult to get the number of men required, it was said.

Contractors are advertising in newspapers in Baltimore, Philadelphia and other cities without success, according to reports received by Col. Dan I. Sultan, engineer commissioner.

Workers Quit.

One contractor reported that as a result of advertisements in other cities he gathered 30 skilled workmen to come to Washington, paid their fare here and told them to report to Glenn Dale. Ten never reported. Others reported and worked a few days and gave up their jobs for others in private employ so that less than a third of the men were at work a fortnight later, it was said.

At Glenn Dale only one-fourth of the number of skilled men desired are at work. The need on both projects is principally for carpenters, bricklayers, steamfitters and plumbers, Col. Sultan said.

No serious delay in completion of the projects is feared as yet, it was said, but that eventuality may develop under the pressure of private competition for skilled building men, it was admitted.

Union Studies Unemployed List

Executives of the carpenters' and bricklayers' unions pored through their membership lists late last night in an effort to furnish the WPA with 650 unemployed workers who would be available by tomorrow for work at the Resettlement Administration's low-rental housing project at Berwyn Heights, Md., known as "Tugwelltown."

The request for additional workers was made yesterday to John A. Locher, secretary of the Building Trades Council, following the announcement of a plan to speed work on the project, now several months behind schedule, by extending the working hours and permitting workers to increase their earnings.

Under the present setup, although union scale wages are paid, the number of hours put in by each worker is restricted so that no more than the security wage of $72 a month for skilled and $45 for unskilled labor can be earned.

The new plan would continue the prevailing hourly wage rate, but extend the hours of employment to as much as 130 hours a month, giving the workers a full month's salary.

Unions have been asked to furnish 300 carpenters and 50 cement finishers at $1.37½ cents an hour; 200 bricklayers, at $1.50 an hour, 100 mason tenders at 60 cents an hour for a 40-hour week or 70 cents an hour for a 30-hour week.

Group Is Called To Discuss Site Of New Airport

King or Delano Expected to Head Committee; Battle Forecast.

An organization meeting of the District Airport Site Commission yesterday was called for 5 p. m. tomorrow in the office of Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Because no chairman has yet been designated for the nine-man body, Senator King took the initiative and requested the othre members to attend.

The permanent chairmanship is expected to go either to King or Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

An early difference of opinion was foreshadowed yesterday between Senate and House appointees over the course to be followed by the commission in selecting a site for recommendation to Congresh. Senator King expressed the belief that hearings should be held this summer, after Congress adjourns, but House members complained that they would be busy carrying on campaigns for re-election.

The House District Committee representatives, who have gone on record as opposed to the selection of Gravelly Point, are apprehensive lest summer hearings, with them absent, would make the commission heavily pro-Gravelly Point.

Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief o fthe Army Air Corps, is expected to side with the House members against Gravelly Point.

Represetnative Norton, chairman o fthe House District Committee and head of the House delegation, believes that both Gravelly Point and Washington Airport should be discarded early in the inquiry to avoid anothre legislative deadlock.

France Gets 'Game Preserve' From Hammond for Embassy

Rabbits and Opossums, Strayed From Park, Are 'Squatters' on Estate; Animals Have Become Remarkably Tame.

When the French government bought the John Hays Hammond property at 2221 Kalorama road northwest, it bought not only an embassy but what amounts to a full-fledged game preserve, with rabbits, squirrels, opossums and even an owl, it was learned yesterday. At times a skunk or two have been seen.

Mr. Hammond, the famous mining engineer, moved from the residence in 1932. From that time until the recent advent of the French Embassy the place has been unoccupied, except for a short period a year ago when a friend of Mr. Hammond's passed the winter there.

During that time animal and birds from near-by Rock Creek Park have made the grounds their haven.

When Hammond was living there the four dogs he kept were an effectual discouragement to wild life. The rabbits and squirrels stayed on their own side of the border-line then.

But the animals have been undisturbed for so long now that they've become quite fearless. Even the usually timorous rabbits sometimes approach to within a few feet of the house.

The squirrels scamper about near the garden pool and, in the early morning, the owl often finds himself attacked by a noisy flock of crows. Lats week the embassy gardener caught an opussum on the grounds. He released it later, though, since the animals are apparently doing little damage.

Abel Girault, the 6-year-old son of the chef at the embassy, likes to watch the rabbits and squirrels. Last night at sundown he took a friend, Henry Agnese, 2, on a tour to see "les petites betes," as he calls them.

Abel said he could make a bow and arrow, but he wouldn't want to shoot any of the rabbits. He likes to watch them too well.

Guilday Extolls Leo Encyclical As Key to Peace

Mgr. Peter Guilday, of Catholic University, last night called upon the Washington Council of the Knights of Columbus at its thirty-ninth annual banquet to follow the spirit of the encyclical of Pope Leo XIII, issued 45 years ago May 15.

"If the nations of the world would take this famous document to their hearts, there would at least be peace on earth, goodwill towards men," he said.

"Only the church can give answer to the bankruptcy of our materialistic society," he added. "She can do it in the way she has been doing it through the centuries, not so much by commanding respect for property or for civil authority as through emphasis on the dignity of human nature."

Representative Arthur Healey, of Massachusetts, reiterated this thesis and then turned to the present economic situation. He called upon the Washington council to help in an intelligent solution of our unemployment problem.

"Still today," he said, "after four years of helping every section of the population, we find those who would keep down the more abundant life for the masses as active as ever.

"Those who control power in this country are now throwing their crutches in the face of their beneficiary and advocating a return to the old order."

Other speakers were Grand Knight Alfred McGaraghty, Thomas Fitzgerald and Bernard Morris, grandson of one of the organization's first members. Leo Francis Stock, of Catholic University, was toastmaster. George O'Connor sang several songs, including his famous "Saloon."

Parks Dry

C. Marshall Finnan, parks superintendent, appealed yesterday to patrons of Rock Creek Park and other wooded areas in the District to guard against forest and brush fires.

Fire hazards are especially great now, due to the tinder-like conditions of ground coverage, Finnan said. Three fires broke out in the parks recently, scorching more than 800 trees and destroying several acres of small plants and flowers.

"With the park police and all regular park employes overtaxed through the performance of their regular duties at this season," he said, "we must appeal to the public for full co-operation in preventing destructive fires in the parks."

Two Symphonies Bid for Concerts

With two rival symphony interests requesting his permission to hold summer concerts at the Arlington Bridge watergate, Parks Superintendent C. Marshall Finnan intimated yesterday he may let public sentiment settle the issue.

Finnan conferred yesterday with C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony Orchestra, which plans to resume its series of watergate concerts this season. Neither Finnan nor Cappel disclosed the nature of the discussion. The former, however, said he would like to know how the general public feels about the matter.

On Monday Yasha Bunchuk and Fairfax Oyster came to Finnan and presented their plans to organize a rival symphony. The parks head told them to describe their project formally in writing. Bunchuk is a cellist and stage orchestra conductor. Oyster is a local merchant.

House Votes Bill to Merge Gas Concerns

Before Congress Several Years, Measure Goes to White House.

Washington, Georgetown Operating Companies to Consolidate.

Without debate the House yesterday passed the Senate bill to authorize the Washington Gas Light Co. to absorb the Georgetown Gas Light Co. and to issue new stock under supervision of the Public Utilities Commission.

The bill has been on Capitol Hill for several years, and its sponsors feared for a time that it would again die with adjournment. The Senate adopted the measure under unanimous consent recently after it had been held up previously by Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri.

The House District Committee had reported its own bill favorably, but yesterday Representative Carpenter (Democrat), of Kansas, accepted the Senate measure so that it may go now to the White House for the President's signature.

To Save $40,000.

Merger of the two gas companies will end a division of operation that has existed for more than 80 years. The Washington Gas Light Co. was incorporated July 8, 1848, by Congressional enactment. The Georgetown Gas Light Co. was incorporated July 20, 1854, by the same method.

The Georgetown company was separately incorporated to engage in the manufacture and distribution of gas west of Rock Creek in the District. The Georgetown area since has become an integral part of Washington.

Prior to 1914 the Washington company owned a majority of stock in the Georgetown company. By 1917 it had acquired substantially the entire capitalization. Consolidation of the two operating concerns will save $40,000 a year in expenses, it was estimated.

To Allow Stock Issue.

The principal advantage of the bill, however, is that it will enable the Washington Gas Light Co. to issue new stock.

Because of the rapid growth of the residential areas of Washington within the last few years the company is badly in need of more money to extend mains and expand its service. The Public Utilities Commission holds that its funded debt should be reduced by partial conversion into stock.

Because of the past limitation on the further issuance of capital stock, the Washington Gas Co. has incurred a funded debt of $15,200,000, and only a few weeks ago an issue of $1,500,000 in 6 per cent bonds was approved by the Public Utilities Commission.

The merger bill also repeals an old charter provision which holds each stockholder of the Washington Gas Light Co. liable for all debts and liabilities of the company.

Downfall of China Boy, 10; Afraid to Come Home.

The riches of the Indies came home to Robert Lee, 10-year-old Chinese boy, of 3108 Eleventh street northwest, yesterday and it was too much of a temptation to resist.

Robert was given 35 cents to pay a bill yesterday afternoon by his father, Parklin Lee. With the money burning a hole in his tightly clenched hand, he walked past a store with a pause of indecision.

The second, an ice cream parlor, was too much for little Robert. He entered. When he left his stomach was full, hand empty.

Afraid to go home and face his father, he stayed out until 11 p. m. and tried to slip into the house without his father hearing him, but Papa Lee, worried by his son's disappearance, had tuned a keen ear and caught him.

So frightened was the youth his father spared the rod and police, who had been notified early in the evening of Robert's disappearance, were told all was again serene in Parklin Lee home.

Cecelia's Predicament Re-enacted

Mother Uses Arms, Virtually Helpless, To Rescue Child, 6

A mother, whose arms physicians said would be useless for some time, managed to use them yesterday when her 6-year-old daughter was in danger.

The child, Cecilia Mahoney, of 612 D street southwest, was riding a tricycle in the back yard when she bumped into a large heavy cupboard. It fell over on her.

The mother, Mrs. Maude Mahoney heard Cecelia's screams. She ran out to the yard and lifted the cupboard from the child.

Meanwhile, an ambulance had been called. A physician attending reported Cecial was uninjured.

H. Oden Lake Suicide by Gas; Ex-Army Man

H. Oden Lake, 66, a former officer in the United States Army and organizer of the Virginia Club in Washington, was found asphyxiated in a garage behind his home yesterday at 3732 Banton street northwest.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald last night termed the death "suicide by carbon monoxide gas." Lake had been in failing health for some time, according to his brother, Robert H. Lake, of Takoma Park, retired Navy lieutenant commander.

Efforts of firemen to revive Lake z artificial respiration failed.

Lake was born in Loudoun County, Va. After one term as an enlisted man he entered the Spanish-American War. After the war he was made chief of the Army-Navy Union.

Resigning from the Army, he turned to the insurance business.

He was married 15 years ago to Miss Alice Rogers, of Washington. No children survive.

Funeral services probably will be held Thursday.

Roosevelt Is Given First Buddy Poppy

President Roosevelt yesterday received the first buddy poppy of the 1936 national poppy sale conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked to attend the thirty-seventh annual encampment of the organization in Denver September 13-18.

He received the poppy from the hands of 6-year-old Iris Arlene Hildebrand, daughter of a deceased World War veteran. The girl was brought from the V. F. W. National Home for Widows and Orphans of Ex-Service men at Eaton Rapids, Mich.

Bishop Urges 'Canterbury' For America

Prelate, in Opening Session, Attacks Management of Group.

A campaign to make Washington the "American Canterbury," or national center of the church's administration, was begun last night by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, in an address opening the forty-first convention of the local Episcopal diocese.

Hhe attacked the system by which the church is now managed and suggested that the diocesan convention pave the way for the general convention next year to take such action as "it might deem wise in connection with this very important matter."

"For a church that has national ideals and is governed by a national body," Bishop Freeman said, "we are as yet lacking in the sense of national solidarity. We are a church comprised of unrelated dioceses, independent and often insular parishes, a wide variety of cults and parties, all loosely tied together by a body of canons and a book of common prayer.

Dangers Stressed.

"This diocese, situated as it is at the seat of government, should in all its planning seek to pursue a course that contemplates the needs of the church throughout the Nation."

He then went on to discuss the danger of this country's becoming wholly pagan, saying that a majority now consider Christianity as an "opiate of the people."

"Not only a red menace threatens," he warned, "it is an aesthetic menace—the substitution of a godless for a Christian ideal of life. Youth is made the chief attack of this propaganda. Serve the State, worship the flag, hold your life as a pawn of an autocratic and tyrannicl power—this is the new credo of our time.

"The utter abandonment of moral standards, the looseness of marital ties and the complete disregard of a sane observance of Sunday as a day of rest and reverent worship—these and other prevailing symptoms of degeneration are the hallmarks of an age that is godless and abandoned. Every semblance of religious practice goes and the Church as an institution goes, when Sunday goes."

Session Opens Today.

He said that the building of cathedrals and the enriching of ceremonial practices will not prevent "the slow but certain decline of the church as an institution."

"A new exhibition of Christian heroism is called for today," he concluded.

"A church that is militant and daring in its presentation of truth is more needed in our life than the recovery of the gold standard or the rehabilitation of industry."

Bishop Freeman also decried the use of gambling parties to raise church funds. He spoke from the pulpit of Epiphany Church, from which he had been called to the episcopate in 1923.

The convention will open its regular sessions at 10 a. m. today in the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, Newton and Center streets northwest.

School Unit to Meet.

The District of Columbia Public School Association will hold its monthly meeting today at 8 p. m. in the board room of the District Building. The nominating committee will report.

East Potomac Pool Operation Plan Explained

Finnan Says Children May Swim Free in Mornings; Prices to Be Low.

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, yesterday issued a statement to the press explaining the proposed operation of the East Potomac Park swimming pool now under construction as the result of the declaration of Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, that he favors free swimming pools for Washington children.

After putting through a bill authorizing the National Capital Parks office to turn the pool over to the S. G. Loeffler Operating Co., which operates the East Potomac golf course, Senator King said he would withdraw the bill after asking the Senate to reconsider it.

"I'm going to hold up the bill until I talk with the District Commissioners about it," he said last night.

Finnan in his statement explained that the pool will be operated on the same basis as other pools under supervision of the National Capital Parks office.

"This would include free swimming for children each morning except Sundays and holidays," Finnan said. "The same low prices which prevail in all National Capital Parks pools would apply to adults and children during the afternoon and evening at the East Potomac Park pool."

Under the present system children are charged 15 cents for afternoon and evening swimming, and adults pay 25 cents at all times. Children who use their own bathing suits and require no bath or locker facilities are admitted for 10 cents.

Conference Due Today On District Supply Bill

Unless House managers ask for another postponement, the first conference on the 1937 District supply bill will be held at 10:30 a. m. today in the rooms of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The Senate has been awaiting the convenience of the House conferees for the last ten days. Yesterday Representative Blanton, head of the House group, said he knew of no reason for a cancellation of the latest engagement.

New School of Musical Movie Craves a Name

Harburg-Arlen Combine Is Creator of Treatment; Kingfish Whiffs!

By the United Press.

Hollywood, May 5.—Messrs. E. Y. ("Yip") Harburg (words), and Harold Arlen (music), have a tail-hold on a brand new school of musical movie-making, but refuse to give it a name.

They feel that titling it would set a dangerous precedent. Other schools with other names might spring up until popular music became as cluttered with them as modern art or contract bridge. The post-impressionistic blues, and an approach-forcing system of harmonizing young love under a June moon! Can you imagine?

Admitting that its form is still largely to be worked out, the Harburg-Arlen system has two principal features—elimination of the time-honored stanza and chorus series, and the idea that the song should be part of the show.

Refrain vs. Movement.

Currently the flower of the system is the "I love to sing-A" number of Mr. Al Jolson's "Singing Kid," in which Mr. Jolson and sundry helpers begin with that premise and drag it all over the city, a long topical song without refrain but with movement.

But don't call it a "peripatetic school" unless you want to hear Harburg and Arlen chorus: "You can't do that to us!"

Prior to Astaire's stories in steps, moving dancing, movie music and the girls on magazine covers were alike. Very pretty, but they didn't have much to do with the contents of book or picture.

A Raspberry Punch!

Hollywood is chuckling over a news story of how King Levinsky, eminent surprise fighter, "knocked out" one James Murphy, who was later held by police as a "machine gun bandit" suspect, during a brawl in the cafe of Jack Dempsey's hotel.

Other accounts say the Kingfish went to bat after Murphy slapped Diane Davis, an entertainer, and popped Murphy five times on the whiskers with his terrible, terrible right but couldn't floor him, let alone put him out of action.

He Wrote a Book.

The Twentieth Century-Fox studio wears an air of expectancy, and there's a reason. Mr. and Mrs. Alan Dinehart (Mozell Britton), have a brand new son.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Seiler will be parents in July; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster (Sally Blane), late this summer, and Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Trotti about the same time.

Running true to form, Paramounties have switched titles on Gary Cooper's "The General Died at Dawn." It's "Chinese Gold" now.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington Choral Society (Louis A. Potter, conductor) gives its spring concert in Memorial Continental Hall on Tuesday night, assisted by the Pro Musical String Quartet. Program: "Rejoice in the Lord" (Balakirev), "The Thief on the Cross" (Chesnokov), "Cherubim's Song" (Pavlov), "Sunrise" (Saneiev), "The Silver Swan" (Orlando Gibbons), "You Stole My Love" (Macfarren), "Londonderry Air" (arr. Cole), 'Chanson de Mai" (Gevaert), "Hey Nonino" (Brockway), "Dumka" Quintet for piano and strings (Dvorak), "Elegy" (Beethoven) "Landsighting" (Grieg).

With some 70 voices participating, the Washington Choral Society sang with a precision and a tonal control that registered a measurable advance beyond its last public demonstration. It was quite evident that faithful rehearsals had been going on during the winter, for there was a marked improvement in the balance of the choirs, in the quality of the tone, and in the smoothness of phrasing. Moreover, the singing had that pleasurable animation which indicates both unanimity of spirit and a harmonious relation between director and choristers.

There is nothing more dull and boresome than choral singing which follows a drilled routine from which all individual interest has departed. To effect the best results each singer must feel personal zest in the work, and each voice must have in it the ring of conviction. It was a consentient interest of this kind which suffered the singing last night to such an extent that one has the expectation that the society is on its way to even better performances.

Mr. Potter's program was select-ranged, and the choristers were so ed with taste and artistically arunmistakably en'o ing their participation that there was no feeling of labor in their utterances. In the group of Russian songs one missed the resonance which a larger choir of basses and barytones would have imparted, but for all that the voices were well balanced. The best singing of the evening was done in the group of madrigals and part songs, particularly in "The Silver Swan" and the "Chanson de Mai."

The instrumental interlude was capably played by Mr. Potter and the Pro Musica String Quartet. Jeno Sevely was the first violin on this occasion in the absence of Bernard Robbins, who is taking part in the cycle of Brahms' chamber music in the Baltimore home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Garrett. Leo Krakov was at the second desk, and the viola and violoncello were in the usual hands of Hendrick Essers and Sidney Hamer.

Quesada Death Held Suicide by Coroner

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald after an autopsy had been performed on the body of Irving G. Quesada, 38, a patent attorney, of 4716 Ninth street northwest.

Quesada died in Casualty Hospital Monday after being admitted Saturday. Dr. MacDonald said he died from the effects of a sedative. He had been in ill health for a number of years.

About The Showshops

"THESE THREE." Belatedly yesterday afternoon, two of the town's so-called drama desks—one just back from Bermuda and the other just out of bed—to whom Sabbath morning screening hours are anathema, gazed for the first time upon this surprisingly effective camera version of Lillian Hellman's play of "The Children's Hour," which was popularly believed to be inadaptable to the cinema by reason of the taboo nature of its theme.

NELSON B. BELL.

Miss Hellman, who contrived the screen treatment of her own stage success, with almost inspirational skill, has demonstrated with what ease a questionable subject may be purified without dramatic vitiation and how unnecessary suggestiveness and implied perversion are to a modern drama's substantial fiber and immediate appeal.

By the simple expedient of eliminating the fabled fallacies of Lesbos from the closely-knit fabric of her play and substituting therefor a three-sided—triangular, if you wish—and wholly innocent love affair between two intelligent young college women and a youthful doctor, Miss Hellman has removed every vestige of stigma from her work and converted it into a grippingly dramatic, but entirely innocuous, entertainment.

The climax still finds its vigorous motivation in the pure cussedness of an unconscionable brat, who brings havoc to the school for young girls by her malicious lying, and the influence she is able to wield upon the weaker natures among her associates in the school's enrollment.

The full force of the play, or nearly so, rests in the skill with which the roles of the most mischievous young girls are impersonated. They are portrayed with that amazing fidelity to life that causes one to long for a bed slat and a clear swing, by a prodigious young woman by the name of Benita Granville and another named Marcia Mae Jones.

"These Three" is definitely announced to open on Friday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. On Saturday morning, therefore, there will appear in these columns a more detailed review of a film that commands earnest and respectful attention, not only by reason of the fine work of its principals, but also for the excellent support afforded them by a judiciously chosen cast.

• • • •

Outside the limitations of a conventional review, it may be permissible to note at this time that one of the important adult roles in "These Three" is played by that accomplished character actress, Alma Kruger. The patrician Miss Kruger was last seen on a local stage, it will be recalled, in the role of Lady Catherine de Bourgh in Max Gordon's production of "Pride and Prejudice," which had its premiere on the stage of the National Theater early this season. It is of further interest that this precocious young Miss Benita Granville is the daughter of Bernard Granville, popular singing and dancing comedian, who was prominent in the casts of several of the Ziegfeld "Follies," including the editions of both 1916 and 1920. "Bunny" Granville's dance depicting the misadventures of a young man-about-town deep in his cups was one of the classics of its day. And now look at his daughter!

• • • •

As a fulfillment of the highest traditions of the theater, Nazimova's production of Henrik Ibsen's play of "Ghosts," current at the National, may not be dismissed without further brief comment.

It is an eloquent tribute to the soundness of Ibsen's vision, and to his courage, in a day when realistic drama, penetrating beyond the merest polite superficialities of drawing-room society, was frowned upon in the English-speaking theater as an affront to decency and an audience's self-respect, that "Ghosts," written 55 years ago, is as unimpeachable an example of living drama as if it had been written yesterday and performed for the first time on any stage last night.

There is here none of the creaking of cumbersome dramatic machinery that requires 5 acts and 16, or more, scenes to convey its message. With a directness, a velocity and a power that are inescapable, Ibsen drives home his morbid and unpleasant tale with a bitter conviction that one must revert to the Greek tragedies to match. There is no equivocation, no lost motion, no redundancy, no waste in this drama of a tragic household or the manner of its playing. Seldom has such tremendous effect been achieved by such drastic economy in the use of essential "commodities of the theater."

"Ghosts," like so many of its cheerless author's plays, might well serve embryonic playwrights as a model of structural simplicity and perfection—provided, of course, they have something to say that is worth the trouble.

• • • •

It is to the undying glory of a playwright still living that he waged the good fight, almost single-handed, that resulted in Ibsen's eventual acceptance in England as an authentic commentator on life, rather than merely upon life's pleasant inconsequentialities. George Bernard Shaw took up the cudgels for Ibsen while still a fledgling critic. His vigorous, and sometimes vicious, campaign in behalf of the Norwegian master was the opening wedge for the later acceptance of his works as worthy of public presentation on the British stage and serious emulation by those who perceived a purpose of the drama beyond the Henry Arthur Jones-Alfred Sutro type of artificial theater. Shaw has not done so badly himself in that dynamic direction.

Selassie Not Rich, Former Aid Asserts

Alexandria, Egypt, May 5 (AP).—Emperor Haile Selassie is relatively a poor man for one of his rank, now that he has fled into exile, his former American adviser said today.

Everett A. Colson, New Englander, who until a few weeks ago was the Negus' financial and foreign affairs assistant, said the Emperor's holdings were largely in land and that reports the ruler was wealthy were "mythical."

But in Djibouti, French Somaliland, where the Negus boarded a ship yesterday for Palestine, he was asserted to have taken treasures with him.

(His possessions included, it was said, the imperial family jewels, numerous cases of gold bullion, gold coins and silver Maria Theresa thalers. He even tool six automobiles along.

(These reports said the Emperor stopped at Diredawa while en route to Djibouti by train and removed all cash from the treasury and customs houses there.)

Colson said Haile Selassie owned a villa at Vevey, Switzerland, and probably would take up permanent residence there.

Baltimore, Md., May 5. — This town, fifteenth seaport of America, is pretty nearly first in everything else . . . As a natural result, these Marylanders are happy, contented citizens, and as nice as their Governor, who is named, appropriately enough, Gov. Nice

BABE RUTH.

• • • •

Baltimore FIRSTS include these distinctions: "The Star-Spangled Banner" was written here, during the bombardment of Fort McHenry . . . This town manufactured the first umbrella, had the first iron building, the first private bank, installed the first linotype machine operated in the United States, is in the first State to vote religious tolerance, was first to use illuminating gas, manufactured the first metallic pens . . . New York will be chagrined to learn that the first elevated train was put in operation in this town, and the first American railroad started out of this depot . . . First monument erected to George Washington was erected here . . . The telegraph first sent its dots and dashes sputtering between Baltimore and Washington, D. C.

• • • •

There are other things to distinguish this rambling Southern city . . . For instance, High and Low streets meet here, intersect and amble on their separate ways. . . . And there is another street here which is named E. West street.

• • • •

Most noted Baltimore writer since the days of Mencken is Rodger Pippin, sports editor of the News-Post . . . It was he who gave Babe Ruth the nickname that has identified him in every country in the world . . . He recalls that Babe, on his first trip to the Spring training camp of the Baltimore Orioles, at Fayetteville, N. C., was almost killed . . . Taking his first ride in hotel elevator, the Babe opened the door and tried to look down and see what was making the elevator go up . . . So Pippin penned a story about this giant, and called it "Babe in the Woods" . . . That's how the nickname originated.

• • • •

About 200 miles from Broadway, as the crow flies, this town nevertheless has shared in Stem history . . . It was at Johns Hopkins that Diamond Jim Brady came to have his stomach relined . . . Brady was so grateful that he erected a research building at Johns Hopkins and gave it to Dr. H. H. Young . . . Every nurse was given a huge diamond sparkler by Brady, and today these big stones are family heirlooms in the neighborhood . . . I can't seem to lay my hands on one, however.

• • • •

It is a town dedicated to the social graces . . . Horses and liquor here occupy definite niches in the scheme of things, and the breeding of both is a solemn ritual . . . Occasionally, the younger Maryland gentlemen over-indulged in one or both, and so it was quite fitting and proper that a Baltimore citizen should discover Bromo-Seltzer as a relief for the municipal hangovers that followed Preakness Day . . . For years a tremendous reproduction of the bottle stood on the roof of the building, but recently it has been torn down . . . Time marches on.

• • • •

Outside of Louisville, Ky., no town knows so much about horses . . . cab drivers, street car conductors, bootblacks and hotel chambermaids astound you with their expert equine learning . . . Pimlico, Bowie, Havre de Grace and Laurel are four major tracks within neighboring distance of the city, and there are perhaps six half-mile tracks

The Titular Trio of Forceful New Film

In "These Three," the unexpectedly powerful film version of Lillian Hellman's widely discussed play of "The Children's Hour," the principal roles are assumed by Merle Oberon, Joel McCrea and Miriam Hopkins, pictured above in the order named, left to right. Supported by an admirable cast of both adults and children, these three make of the slightly modified story a more potent drama than the original work enacted on the Broadway stage. It is announced as the major feature for the week beginning Friday at Loew's Palace Theater.

Watching Them Make Pictures.

Hollywood, May 5.

JOAN CRAWFORD stands on the set of the flicker, "The Gorgeous Hussy," wearing a dress of wh's called "the good old Andrew Jackson days," and she also is wearing curls. Crawford looks very good in curls. Robert Taylor is next to Joan, and his hair is curled also. But only slightly, while Joan's are long flowing curls.

CRAWFORD.

While Miss Crawford and Taylor are waiting for Director Clarence Brown to tell them to emote, there is music coming from the Crawford cottage on the set. The song is "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." Joan no longer features hot jazz or what is better known now as "swing music."

Crawford and Taylor and a couple of pigeons play the scene. They all know their roles. While waiting for a new setup, Director Brown, holding a copy of the novel, "The Gorgeous Hussy," tells me about the picture.

• • • •

"This line," he says, turning the pages to find it, "explains our entire picture. After you've heard the line, you'll know what I'm trying to get on the screen." Director Brown finds the page and reads: "No man is ever going to kiss you once without wanting to kiss you again."

"That," continues Director Brown, "is Joan's character in the picture. And for every fadeout, whenever Joan is kissed, the person kisses her again. Or, at least, there is the suggestion of the other kiss."

• • • •

Franchot Tone isn't in this flicker with his wife, Joan Crawford. It is her first flicker since she was married. "It's been a long while since I made a picture," says Miss Crawford. "Seven months. I was in New York and rushed back to start work in this picture. I rushed back, and I've been waiting six months before the picture started."

Although Mr. Tone isn't in the picture, he is a visitor on the set. Franchot and Joan stand near the cottage and talk to each other.

Joan asks: "Did you get a haircut?"

"Not yet," answers Franchot. "I went to the barber shop, but it was crowded. I was going to get, it, but I can't wait in barber shops."

"You better get it," says Joan.

And that is what a screen heroine and hero, married, have to say when the camera isn't looking—if you must know.

George Raft has a Florida night club in the flicker, "Yours for the Asking," and Paramount has supplied Raft with a night club as beautiful as any in Florida, and almost as practical. In fact, as practical. For the roulette wheel spins, and the dice at the main gambling table can be rolled over the green cloth.

The large set is crowded with extras, the women in fashionable evening gowns and the men in tuxedos. They represent the wealthy tourists in Florida, and they get $10 and $15 for the day to be these wealthy tourists. There is much activity on the set.

At the bar, in the other room, Director Alexander Hall is rehearsing Ida Lupino and James Gleason in a scene. In another corner of the set, George Raft and Dolores Castello Barrymore are posing for still pictures, which will be published in the fan magazines. And in the gambling room, there is a hot dice game going on. The extras, better attired than the crowd which gathers at the Clover Club, are rolling the dice and betting 25 to 50 cents.

• • • •

Occasionally, the second assistant director will pass by, and like a policeman, say: "Come on, now, break it up." But when the policeman—I mean the second assistant director—is far enough away, the game continues.

Mack Gray, Raft's stooge, joins the crowd at the dice table. Soon featured players from other sets wander in and make bets. A certain extra, who has a particularly good run, is gathering a large salary this day. This set is hotter than the Clover Club after midnight.

The dice shooting continues and is only interrupted when Director Hall has to shoot a scene. I hope his shooting was better than mine.

U. S. Olympic Basketball Chief Calls A. A. U. 'Chiselers,' Quits

Nats Drop 3d To Indians By 6 to 4

Deshong, Russell Are Pounded for Three Triples, Homer.

Lee Manacles Griffs' Feeble Attack With Six Safeties.

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

With a fine display of extra-base pitching by Jimmy DeShong and Jack Russell, and a steady exhibition of extra-feeble hitting by the rest of the cast, the Nats yesterday succeeded in extending their current losing streak to three straight games.

The Cleveland Indians weren't trifling much with one-base hits. Against DeShong and Russell they collected ten solid socks, three of which were three-baggers, three of which were two-baggers and one of which was a home-run clout, all of which figured in their 6-4 victory that enabled them to sweep the three-game series.

While the Indians were busying themselves against DeShong and Russell, the Nats were idly employed trying to fathom the left-handed offerings of Thornton Lee. In the last five innings they made exactly one hit against Lee, who pitched a six-hit game.

But before the defeat became conclusive in the ninth, the Nats staged a furious no-hit rally that netted 'em two runs that dug into Lee's 6-2 lead. With one out, Powell walked and Kuhel was safe when Trosky's throw on his grounder was too late to catch Powell at second. At this point Trosky contributed a muff on Millies' grounder and Powell scored, Kuhel going to third. Pinch-Hitter Red Kress' line drive sliced into Gleason's glove and Kuhel scored, but the uprising met an immature end when Hill flied out to Galatzer.

Indians Score Twice in Second.

The Indians started their extra-base hit assault against DeShong back in the second inning after Gleeson walked. Trosky rapped a triple into rightfield and Sullivan smacked a double down the first-base line and they had a 2-0 lead.

It was 4-0 by the third inning, when Walter Millies tossed in a costly error. With one out, the Injuns opened up with Knickerbocker's double to centerfield and Hale walked. Gleeson forced Hale, but the Indians attempted a double steal and Knickerbocker scored when Millies heaved the ball into centerfield. Gleeson going to third on the play. Trosky scored Gleeson with a single to center.

The Nats bounced back with two runs in their half of the inning, thanks to a rare play by Catcher Billy Sullivan. DeShong singled and Hill walked. After one pitch to Lewis Sullivan tossed the ball back to Lee, but his aim was bad and when the ball rolled to centerfield DeShong scored and Hill galloped to third. Lewis then drew a walk, but Buddy Myer, a batting nonentity all day, took a third pitch across the middle and the rally sagged in the middle. Travis revived it with a single to left that scored Hill, but it expired on Reynolds' outfield fly.

With Russell in the box in the seventh, the Indians boosted their

MacFayden's Arm Beats Cards, 1-0

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 5.—Danny MacFayden held the St. Louis Cardinals in almost complete subjection today, allowed only three hits, and Boston was victorious, 1 to 0.

With only one run to bolster him, the stout-hearted veteran never faltered.

Charley Gelbert tripled in the fifth for the Cardinals' first hit after two were out, but MacFayden made Leo Durocher pop to the infield. Pepper Martin singled in the seventh, but never reached second. Eddie Morgan, who batted for Paul Dean in the eighth, hit safely, but was forced at second.

After two scoreless innings, Bill Urbanski smashed one of Dean's pitches to the leftfield wall and drew up at third. Gene Moore followed with a single, scoring Urbanski with the only run of the game.

The younger of the Brothers Dean, seeking his second victory of the season, gave up only five safeties, but he was no match for MacFayden today.

Boston took two of the three-game series. Today's defeat, coupled with Chicago's victory over Philadelphia, dropped St. Louis out of the league lead, which was taken over by the league-champion Cubs, who eked out a 5-to-4 win from the Phillies.

Reds Overcome Giants by 5 to 2

Schott Hurls 5-Hit Game, Drives In Two Runs.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, May 5.—With young Gene Schott hurling five-hit ball for his second victory of the season, the Cincinnati Reds beat their former "jinx," Hal Schumacher, today when they pounded out a 5 to 2 decision over the New Yor Giants. The victory was the second straight for the Reds over the Giants while the defeat marked the Giants' fifth setback in six Western games.

In addition to holding the Giants in check, Schott made two hits and drove in as many runs while Billy Myers banged out a triple and two doubles off Schumacher and Dick Coffman, who worked the last two rounds. It was only the second time that the Reds had beaten Schumacher, who has taken their measure in 16 games since 1932.

Ali Baba Keeps Crown, Upsetting Odds, Shikat

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 5.—The surprising Ali Baba retained his "world's heavyweight wrestling" crown tonight by defeating Dick Shikat, the German star, for the second consecutive time, in Madison Square Garden.

The mysterious Turk-Armenian upset great gobs of dope by pinning the heavier Teuton, with a crotch hold and body slam after 53:37 of more or less mediocre wrestling.

Ali's victory over the conqueror of Danno O'Mahoney, the erstwhile Irish sensation, gives him the distinction of being the recognized king of the heavies in every State except Colorado, where Everett Marshall still is considered tops.

The New York State Athletic Commission, which had refused to recognize the Turk's recent win over Shikat as official, now lists Ali as its No. 1 heavy.

The betting odds were 4 to 1 on Shikat tonight, but Ali Baba was the popular favorite with the 7,000 customers who gave him a rousing ovation as he donned his fez and left the ring.

Shikat weighed 227, Baba 205.

The new champ was outweighed 22 pounds, but his superior stretch enabled him to break the choicest holds in Shikat's wide repertoire time and time again.

For the first 20 minutes Shikat appeared to have the advantage. Then Ali began working on the German's legs, weakened in an auto accident several years ago. From then on he was the master.

Lee Wins Over Phillies For Cubs' 3d Straight

Chicago, May 5 (AP).—Bill Lee, last year's leading percentage pitcher in the National League, turned in his hird straight victory today as the Cubs crowded al their activity into two innings for a 5-to-4 series splitting victory over Philadelphia.

Lee held the Phills to five hits, but had to pitch himself out of trouble constantly because of seven passes.

Weavers Hurling Wins For Pittsburgh Pirates

Pittsburgh, May 5 (AP).—Timely hitting coupled with Jim Weaver's six-hit pitching gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-to-0 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers today. The defeat was the Dodgers' sixth successive setback, four of them shutouts.

The Pirates got only seven hits off Lefty Clark nad Dutch Leonard, but bunched three of them with a sacrifice in the fifth to score all of their runs. With one out, Tom Padden singled and when Weaver sacrificed he beat the throw to second, Jensen filed out, but Paul Waner crashed through with a double to score two runs. Bud Hafey followed with his fourth home of the season, to account for the other two tallies.

16,100 See Boston Ace Hold Champions to Five Hits.

Pitcher Also Smacks a Double to Aid in Auker's Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 5.—Bob (Lefty) Grove gave the Boston Red Sox a clean sweep in the abbreviated series with the Detroit Tigers today by blanking the world champions, 2-0, before a 16,100 crowd. It was the mighty southpaw's fifth straight victory and his third shutout of the season.

Grove, provided with brilliant support, was never threatened during his masterly pitching duel with Elden Auker, the Tigers' underhand chucker. He was hit a bit harder than usual, but Rog Cramer and Dusty Cooke robbed the Tigers of at least three two-baggers with spectacular plays in center and right fields.

Red Sox Bunch Hits.

The Boston ace gave five hits, three passes and struck out five. Auker was nicked for seven safeties, three of which were put together in the second inning, when the Golden Sockers scored their pair of tallies.

This winning rally was set off by Melillo's flukey chip-shot single. With two out he drove into the turf in front of the plate. The ball soared like a sky-rocket, and before Charley Gehringer could recover it, Melillo was on first.

Grove then sent him over the plate with a long double to center, and the pitcher scored Boston's final run after Cooke rapped a lusty triple against the leftfield wall.

Cochrane Juggles Lineup.

Manager Mickey Cochrane, back in action, although his injured instep still troubles him, shook up his batting order and placed himself into the No. 2 spot.

The scrappy pilot accounted for two of his team's five hits, a single and a two-bagger out of three tries. Billy Rogell rapped out a two-bagger to left with none on in the seventh.

The only Tiger to hit behind a runner was Marv Owen, who singled in the second with Al Simmons on first.

Ellerslie Cardinals Win Bi-State Opener

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 5.—Johnny Lowery's three-hit pitching performance, Joe McGinn's slugging and sensational catches by Van Roby and Bruce Shroyer in the outfield, were the high lights as Manager Earl Diehl's Ellerslie Cardinals defeated the Celanese Athletic Association at Ellerslie in the opening game of the Bi-State Baseball League. The score was 5 to 0.

Lowery was a member of the Celanese pitching staff when the Silkmen won the Interstate League championship last season.

Women Open Curtis Cup Matches

Gleneagles, Scotland, May 5 (AP).—With a week's hard practice behind them, the six American golfing women who will defend the Curtis Cup against Great Britain over this sodden, wind-swept course tomorrow retired untroubled tonight over the fact that British observers had almost unanimously picked them to be the first American side to relinquish the trophy.

Capt. Glenna Collett Vare, Philadelphia, who decided at the last minute to play an almost completely veteran team in the three foursomes and six singles matches, appeared her customary calm, confident self.

"I don't make any predictions," she told the Associated Press, "but if we're beaten it won't be until tomorrow night."

Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews, Coral Gables, Fla., and Mrs. Leona Cheney, Santa Monica, Calif., vs. Pam Barton, London, runner-up in last year's British Women's championship, and Mrs. J. B. Walker, Troon, present Australian champion.

Twosomes.

Mrs. Opal Hill, Kansas City, and Charlotte Glutting, South Orange, N. J., vs. Mrs. Helen Holm, Troon, 1934 British Women's champion, and Jessie Anderson Perth, 21-year-old New Zealand champ

Twosomes—Vare vs. Morgan; Berg vs. Holm, Glutting vs. Barton; Crews vs. Walker, Cheney vs. Anderson; Hill vs. Garson.

Mrs. Vare's decision to drop the two young Southern stars, Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, Forth Worth, Tex., in order to fill her team with tested veterans created some surprise but little criticism among those who have been watching practice. Some had thought that Mrs. Hill, who has not been well and has played patchy golf, might have given way to one of the younger players, but Mrs. Vare apparently decided in favor of Mrs. Hill's ability to come through in a big match.

Allen Points To Political Bartering

'Hitch-Hiking Abroad on Other People's Money,' Is Charge.

Used Funds Raised by Basketball to Aid Own Expenses.

Lawrence, Kas., May 5 (AP).—Denouncing A. A. U. officials as "oceanic hitch-hikers on the other fellow's money," Dr. F. C. "Phog" Allen, outspoken athletic director at the University of Kansas, resigned today as director of the United States Olympic basketball team.

"Being firmly convinced of the unsportsmanlike attitude of the A. A. U. members of the Olympic basketball committee and sickened by their deceitful political bartering, I am withdrawing my name as director of Olympic basketball for the eleventh Olympiad," he wrote the committee chairman, Dr. W. E. Meanwell, of Madison, Wis.

"This ambitious A. A. U. group of quadrennial Olympic oceanic hitch-hikers chisel their way across every four years on the other fellow's money," protested the veteran Kansas coach whose team was undefeated in Six Six competition this year. The Kansans lost in the Olympic tryouts.

No Personal Reward.

Allen, who with Romeyn Berry, of Cornell, and L. W. St. John, of Ohio State, was instrumental in having basketball included on the Olympics calendar, declared he "found satisfaction enough in the achievement without thought of personal reward.

"However, the collegiate group serving on the joint committee with the A. A. U. members saw fit to honor me with the appointment as director of Olympic basketball.

"The A. A. U. group ground their own axes."

Allen said the Kansas-Utah Olympic try-out series in Kansas City "proved to be the financial 'gravy wagon' on which the Olympic basketball contingent will travel to Berlin."

The series, he declared, grossed better than $10,000 and netted nearly $8,000, "while a week or so before the Missouri Valley A. A. U. tournament," also held in Kansas City, "grossed less than $700 on three nights—thereby showing the difference in public favor between college and independent basketball."

Tourney Fund.

"The $6,000 revenue from the national A. A. U. basketball tournament at Denver last March was used to pay the annual administrative expenses of the A. A. U. in New York City and Chicago," he charged. "Not a cent was contrib

Jean Bart Beats 4 Preakness Candidates to Win Pimlico Sprint

Daily Double Pays $143 Mutuel

By Walter Haight.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, May 5.—Jean Bart, whose sire, the great Man o'War won the Preakness in 1920, qualified for this year's Maryland classic by taking the Windsor Hills, today's feature event Racing over the mile and a sixteenth route. Jean Bart made every pos' a winning one and turned back four other Preakness candidates.

The colt, owned by Walter M. Jeffords, and trained by Preston Burch, of Washington, finished three parts of a length in front of Two Bob, not a Preakness entry, and Conquer. Bobs Boy, the only other non-Preakness horse, was fourth.

Jean Bart ran coupled with Giant Killer but there was no work for the latter. Ridden by Jockey Harry Richards, who is likely to have the mount in the big race, Jean Bart outsprinted his rivals to take the lead going to the first turn. Richards rated him along while setting the pace ahead of Conquer and Two Bob.

In the stretch, Richards shook up his charge a bit and then settled into hand riding. Two Bob rallied in the late stages and came with a closing bid but too late to change the result.

Baby Talk Scores.

The Green and White of E. R. Bradley flew to victory in the first race when Baby Talk emerged from the maiden class with a smashing victory over Snow Fox. Badge of Honor was third in the field of twelve. Ridden by Joe Renick, Baby Talk was allowed to settle into her stride before moving up sharply going to the far turn. When put to a drive, Baby Talk supplanted Badge of Honor, the pace-setter most of the way, but in doing so slightly bumped Snow Fox. No action was taken on the incident and a $24.50 mutuel was displayed.

Santi Quaranti, an odds-on favorite, won the day's steeplechase under the expert handling of Rigan McKinney, gentleman rider. Stir was second six lengths behind the gelding owned by Thomas Hitchcock. Third money went to Mrs. John D. Hertz's Reigh Stone. Santi Quaranti was under stout restraint while Caesar's Ghost was setting the pace. When ready to make his move, McKinney asked the veteran for speed and he bounced to the top and was not threatened thereafter. The winner paid $3.90. The Flaccus-Kaufman entry provided the day's only mishaps. Black Feather fell when his bridle broke at the ninth fence and Brad ran out going to the sixth fence. Jockey Turner remounted Brad, but was tumbled out of the saddle later.

NedomatskyPicked For Olympic Trials

Ivan Nedomatsky, University of Maryland 145-pound Southern Conference champion, will take part in the Olympic tryouts at Chicago beginning tomorrow. He will leave tonight for the scene of the tests.

Nedomatksy was chosen for the tryouts by James G. Driver, athletic director at Virginia, a member of the Olympic selection committee. He will fight in the 147-pound division.

He is in fair trim for the short time he had to prepare, but is a bit pessimistic over his chances at Chicago in a class that embraces Danny Farrar, of Duke, and other exceptional battlers. A finalist will make the Olympic team, as two men in each class will be taken to Berlin.

BABY TALK, slow to settle in her best stride, gained steadily after going six furlongs, swung to the outside when reaching contention and finished stoutly for the final test, wore the leaders down inside the closing furlong. SNOW FOX rallied stoutly when moving to the pacemakers, obtained a slight lead in the closing furlong, but failed to withstand the winner under a hard drive. BADGE OF HONOR outran his field to the first turn, shook off strong efforts from TWICE, but weakened under punishment in the last quarter-mile. BALTIMORE BOY broke slowly and was unable to enter a forward position. TWICE went strongly for the first six furlongs, then weakened. BLUE ALICE raced evenly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SANTI QUARANTI, $3.90, $2.90, $2.50; STIR, $3.80, $3.30; REIGHSTONE, $4.40.

SANTI QUARANTI went into an easy lead after clearing the eighth jump, opened up a long lead and fencing boldly held sway until the close. STIR, reserved for the first mile, entered contention after the ninth jump, but could not menace the winner. REIGHSTONE suffered repeated interference in the first mile, secured racing room in the late stages, but failed to threaten seriously in the final drive. CAESAR'S GHOST showed good speed for the first mile and one-half, then tired. He fenced nicely all the way. MATAGAIN could not reach a forward position at any stage. TITIAN KIDDIE sprinted into a clear lead soon after the start, saved ground all the way and continued gamely when strongly shaken up for the final drive. SILVERY CLOUD, forced to race on the outside while going forwardly in the early stages, moved into a contending position in the last five-sixteenths and came courageously in the closing test. PEPPERY worked her way up on the outside and held on gamely in the final issue. ADO, shuffled back directly after the start, bettered his position steadily when finding racing room and closed stoutly on the inside in the last quarter-mile.

BENDER FIRST, taken under slight restraint in the first six furlongs while racing on the outside of the leaders, responded stoutly to move into the lead when straightened into the homestretch, withstood a hard drive and outstayed TAUNTON. The latter followed JOBAKHETA closely in the early facing, challenged strongly at the final bend and continued courageously under tenacious drive. ANNIMESSIC obtained racing room on the inside to enter contention, met with slight interference when continuing on the inside at the stretch turn, then weakened after moving up strongly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COSETTE, $8.80, $5.00, $4.00; STORY TIME, $7.00, $5.30; ALEXANDRINE, $5.80.

COSETTE, away well and hurried to the front leaving the backstretch, shook off early contention from ALEXANDRINE, saved ground and came out steadily in the final drive after withstanding a bold bid from STORY TIME midway of the homestretch. STORY TIME saved ground until reaching the homestretch, drove up on the outside of the winner, but weakened nearing the finish after making a stout bid. ALEXANDRINE was hard ridden all the way and showed a good performance. BRIEF was given a listless ride and was not persevered with until reaching the homestretch. MALISPINA lacked her usual early speed and lost ground for the entire trip. MOCK MODESTY was never a factor. MONOLOGUE broke in close quarters and was unable to threaten.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JEAN BART (entry), $3.60, $2.50, $2.10; TWO BOB, $4.60, $3.30; CONQUER, $3.40.

JEAN BART, stoutly ridden going to the first turn to take command, was steadied along nicely while setting a steady pace, rallied to pressure in the last quarter-mile and outstayed TWO BOB. Latter went forwardly under mild urging, responded willingly when shaken up in the last five-sixteenths and finished determinedly on the inside of the winner. CONQUER offered good contention from the beginning and held on gamely for the closing test. BOB'S BOYS, overmatched, was unable to improve his position and interfered with GIANT KILLER repeatedly in the last five-sixteenths. GIANT KILLER broke tardily, met with interference going to the first turn, and was in trouble in the last five-sixteenths when BOB'S BOYS lunged toward the inside. CHALLEPHEN showed a dull effort. ISOLATER lacked speed at all stages.

SEVENTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. The Druid Hill. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:31. Off at 5:38½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—APPREHEND, $5.20, $3.20, $2.80; FERVID, $4.10, $3.80; CARELESS KNIGHT, $5.10.

APPREHEND kept within striking distance of the leaders in the early running, moved up strongly entering the homestretch, came through on the inside when engaging the leaders in the last furlong and drew out smartly after moving into the lead. FERVID worked her way up steadily on the outside, responded to punishment and outfinished CARELESS KNIGHT. Latter offered good contention while following PARVA STELLA and continued gamely in the late stages. FIRST PIGEON, slow to gain racing stride, weaved her way between horses to close a good gap. PARVA STELLA showed good speed while setting the early pace but failed to stay when collared. PETER PUMPKIN moved up stoutly at the turn but failed thereafter. FLOSILDA went well for a half mile. The others were held safe.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. The Strathmore (second division). For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:01. Off at 6:02. Winner, R. A. Johnson's ch. g. (a), by Dunlin—Inferno Queen. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—INFERNO LAD, $9.30, $5.70, $3.80; TIEMPO, $3.90, $2.70; REPEAL, $3.80.

INFERNO LAD entered into contention readily when leaving the backstretch, took command without effort when straightened into the homestretch and had much in reserve at the end. TIEMPO, away well but lacking speed to take command, raced on the inside until reaching the homestretch, swung to the outside and finished gamely. REPEAL entered contention midway of the backstretch, followed close to the pacemakers and continued well in the closing drive. CHIEF HOLLIS was hurried to the front, showed good speed until challenged, then stopped. MAD FRUMP dropped far out of it and was unable to menace. BUDDY BOO went wide. OUR TIME was used up early and weakened badly.

Wes Snow Pitches 4-Hit Game as Tech Upsets Eastern, 4 to 2

Series Loss Ends String Of Seven

By John R. Vosburgh.

Unbeaten in the interhigh series since early in the 1934 season, Eastern's interhigh champions were dealt full measure of defeat yesterday by the four-hit pitching of a converted first baseman twirling for Tech High. Willowy Wes Snow, Tech baseball and basketball star, was the producer of the four-hitter and a 4-2 loss for the champs.

The incident occurred on Eastern's field, somewhat marring the champions' series debut on their home plot. It tumbled the champions out of first place in the interhigh series and left Western High in undisputed possession of that pinnacle.

Tech Comes From Behind.

Tech came from behind in the seventh inning with the score 2 to 1 against it, to win the ball game principally because of a slashing double by Joe Ciomei down the leftfield line and a high fly thrown far over first by Alva Pepper, Eastern's first baseman, on an easy infield out.

Eastern's efforts to get back in the ball game were throttled by Snow to the finish. In the seventh, the champs got a man on first on a walk, but the next three went out in order and again in 1-2-3 fashion in the eighth. In the ninth, Coach Guyon rushed in four pinch hitters. The first two, Larry Sullivan and Paul Kober, grounded out and flied out respectively, but Ray Stockwell singled to left. Marshall Jacobs walked to put the tying run on base, but Maurice (Leg o') Lamb grounded to second for the final out.

Tech had scored first in the fifth when Snow and Wise singled, and Snow stole home on one of Carver's pitches. Catcher Wes Taylor, of Eastern, shoved Batter Larrich aside to catch the pitch and make the putout, and Snow was ruled safe by Umpire George Watt because of Taylor's interference with the batter. Larrich was given his base. The play brought both Coach Guyon and Coach Ed Foxley on the field in strenuous argument.

Carver tied the score in the same frame on a single, a walk to Lamb and an error by First Baseman Kendall, of Tech. Eastern took the lead in the sixth on a triple by Gordon Bartoo to center and an infield out, but Tech still had its seventh inning rally up its sleeve.

Post Boxing Contest Trend Favors Miller

Home-town pride evidently is playing no great part among entrants in The Post's boxing contests who are established Freddie Miller as the distinct favorite to retain his world's featherweight championship against Pete Sarron on May 11.

The Object.

To predict as closely as possible the official outcome of the Freddie Miller-Pete Sarron featherweight championship boxing bout to be held at Griffith Stadium May 11.

The Prizes.

First prize—One ticket, railroad transportation from Washington and hotel bill in New York for the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling bout to be held in June.

Second prize—One ticket to the Louis-Schmeling fight.

The Rules.

File your entry on the above coupon, or similar blank, showing just how you think the bout will end. If you think it will end in a knockout, mark the coupon thus, showing the round in which you believe it will end, the winner and the time of knockout. In case of a knockout, the entrant calling the winner and round will win. If two or more call the winner and round, the one coming nearest to the time of knockout will win. If two or more are tied on time, the contestant scoring the fight nearest to correctly in the rounds preceding the knockout will win.

If the bout goes the distance, the contestant whose total score most nearly approximates the average score struck by the referee and two judges as the Sarron-Miller bout will be declared the winner. In case of a tie, the contestant who has the greatest number of rounds scored correctly will be declared the winner.

All ties that cannot otherwise be broken will be decided on the time of receipt of your entry. All scoring must be done according to the rules and regulations of the District Boxing Commission. The commission rule on scoring reads as follows:

"Scoring shall be by the '5-point' system. The winner of any round is marked 5. The loser of any round is marked from '0.1' to '4.9.' When a round is even, each contestant is scored '5.'"

Employes of The Post and their relatives are not eligible to enter this contest.

lead to 5-2 very simply—Hale hitting a long homer into the left-center bleachers. With Russell still in there in the eighth, they picked up another run with some more long-distance clouting in the form of triples by Vosmik and Sullivan to make it 6-2.

That mild threat by the Nats in the ninth served only to delay the crowd's exit.

Police Win, 2-1, As Watt Gives Up 3 Hits

Owen's Wild Throw Lets in Run That Beats Treasury in Duel.

A couple of Washington's older sandlot pitching aces hooked up in a first-class mound duel yesterday with hefty Frank Watt besting Lem Owen to give Metropolitan Police a 2-to-1 victory over Treasury Department in a Government League classic. Watt allowed but three hits.

Owen, now well along in his forties, threw the ball game away in the second inning, both Police runs scoring on a wild witch. The scoring drive started with Third Baseman Grayson getting a scratch hit past the pitcher.

Lefty Stevens sacrificed him to second and Huck Wynne, Police catcher, beat out an infield hit, sending Grayson to third. Wynne stole second and then Owen proceeded to uncork a perfect wild pitch from a Police standpoint, Grayson and Wynne trotting over the plate with the tying and winning runs.

The two-hit pitching of Stewart Gessford and the timely single of Frank Coakley gave Roosevelt a 1-to-0 victory over Georgetown Prep yesterday on the Rough Riders' diamond. Olympic Basket Coach Resigns uted by the A. A. U. to the Olympic basketball fund.

"The A. A. U. is filled with a group of inert athletic directors who enjoy riding free.

"The disgraceful post Olympic tournament-exhibition game at Topeka, Kans., between the Universal Pictures and the McPherson Oilers, emphasized how precarious is the position of Olympic basketball when left in the hands of technical amateurs but actual semi-professionals."

The Kansan said his statement was made "as an individual and not as a member affiliated with the National Collegiate Association."

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 5.—Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic Union and the American Olympic committee, said in commenting on the resignation today of Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen as Olympic basketball director, that the Kansas University athletic director had quit a job that never officially existed.

"I can't comment on Dr. Allen's grievances, for I haven't given full attention to the Olympic basketball situation," Brundage said. "But I can say that he quit a job the American Olympic committee never has given its appro

Steel Profits Nearly Double In 1st Quarter

Cleveland, Ohio, May 5.—First 14 integrated producers of steel to report their financial experience for the first quarter show net earnings of $10,791,502, compared with $5,711,898 in the first quarter of 1935 and $18,436,010 in the fourth quarter of 1935, states the magazine Steel.

Since these 14 producers represent 87,624,000 gross tons of ingot capacity, or 83 per cent of the country's total, indicated profit for the entire industry in the first quarter is approximately $12,980,000, or $1.38 per ton of ingots produced. In the first quarter of 1935 the indicated profit was $6,825,000, or 80 cents per ton of ingots produced.

The improvement in earnings in the first quarter over the corresponding period a year ago is largely due to increased volume, according to Steel. The decline in profit from the fourth quarter is ascribed to price shading in January and February, increased operating expenses caused by the severe cold weather, some flood damage in March, and curtailed shipments in that month resulting from the flood.

Railroad Net For 3 Months Is 2.11 Per Cent

Class I Carriers Earned 1.73 Per Cent in First Quarter of 1935.

Class I railroads of the United States for the first three months of 1936 had a net railway operating income of $104,564,978, which was at the annual rate of return of 2.11 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics of the Association of American Railroads and made public yesterday. In the first three months of 1935 their net railway operating income was $86,366,523 or 1.74 per cent on their property investment.

Property investment is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railways, including materials, supplies and cash. The net railway operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals, but before interest and other fixed charges are paid.

This compilation as to earnings for the first three months of 1936 is based on reports from 140 Class I railroads representing a total of 237,057 miles.

Gross Up 13.5 Per Cent.

Gross operating revenues for the first three months of 1936 totaled $907,861,226 compared with $800,017,238 for the same period in 1935, an increase of 13.5 per cent. Operating expenses for the first three months of 1936 amounted to $704,263,531 compared with $624,719,489 for the same period in 1935, an increase of 12.7 per cent.

Class I railroads in the first three months of 1936 paid $68,647,464 in taxes compared with $59,714,984 in the same period in 1935, or an increase of 15 per cent. For the month of March alone, the tax bill of the Class I railroads amounted to $25,847,032, an increase of $5,768,718 or 28.7 per cent above the same month in 1935.

Thirty-four Class I railroads failed to earn expenses and taxes in the first three months of 1936, of which 12 were in the Eastern district, 5 in Southern District and 17 in the Western district.

Stock Seats Down $74,000 This Year

New York, May 5.—So rapid has been the decline in price of Stock Exchange memberships that it asks for more explanation than merely the drying up of sales volume. A seat sale was announced today at $100,000, the lowest price paid since June 21 of last year, and a drop of $30,000 from the last previous sale, April 27, which in turn was done at a fall of $20,000. The sale before that, on April 1, brought $24,000 less than the one before it. Seats are now down $74,000 from the top of the year, indicating fully as thin a market for them as exists for some fancy priced stocks.

The Market

Stocks Advance Further in Moderate Trading; Bond Prices Higher for Most Groups.

New York, May 5.—Recovery in stocks continued in spite of skepticism in many Wall Street quarters which had become progressively bearish with the decline in prices and which found it difficult to believe in the rally. Prices hardened in nearly all directions in a turnover around 1,250,000 shares. Leading stocks at the close were 1 to 3 points higher. Bonds also improved. September wheat rose ⅜ of a cent to 85⅝ cents a bushel.

Stocks found the trading by no means easy sailing, but they were subjected neither to heavy offerings at the beginning nor to a closing-hour drive. Opening prices were good for gains of a point or better for the majority of the active issues, including United States Steel, American Telephone, Standard Oil of New Jersey and General Motors. The gains at the start seemed to have less tendency to bring out profit taking or renewed liquidation than to urge fresh purchases and short covering.

Prices at any rate either held firm or advanced a little during the remainder of the trading, which was at a moderately faster pace than that of yesterday's slow market. Among the best advances on the day were Allied Chemical, with a 7-point rise; Bethlehem Steel, Case (up 6 points), Bullard, Chesapeake Corporation, Wheeling & Lake Erie (up 9 points), Union Pacific, United Carbon, Western Union, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, Ingersoll Rand, Indian Refining and Royal Dutch.

Along with strength in Chesapeake Corporation, the various classes of Alleghany registered gains of from 3 to 5 points. Railroads generally were higher, with average gains of a point or so. Metals hardened 1 to 2 points, with a sharp recovery in the coppers. Steels improved by 1 to 3 points. Republic and National joined the other leaders. Acme rebounded 4 points on one sale.

Opportunities.

Utilities did better and the oils turned strong. Rubbers continued to advance. Here and there a sour note was struck. Consolidated Textile, in receivership, was active and the stock reached the lowest price in three years at betwen 30 and 40 cents a share. The Stock Exchange apparently intends to leave the stock on the board until trading dies a natural death. The jump in Wheeling came on a ten-share sale, and the price of 69 was the highest paid since 1931.

E. G. Budd, one of yesterday's late trading features, resumed activity and reached the highest price in three years. Its sales volume made up about 5 per cent of the total. The preferred gained more than a point in selling at 105. Somebody picked up the shares at a bargain last Friday when a delayed delivery transaction from abroad (seller's 15) was recorded at 99. The previous sale, regular way, had been 103½. Fajardo Sugar was another weak spot. Yellow Truck preferred, on the other hand, climbed 10 points to the highest price on record, with only three sales. Thin markets for stocks, it may be noted in passing, make it extremely difficult to say what may be a fair price and what may be the seizing of an opportunity by those in position to seize such things.

Banking position.

The weekly figures of reporting member banks largely reflected changes which took place in New York City, whose figures appeared last Thursday. Reserve for all the reporting banks rose $68,000,000, of which $47,000,000 was the net addition to reserves here. In the week of April 29, the date of the banks' figures, the Treasury paid out of its Reserve bank accounts and other cash $61,000,000 more than it took in. Loans and investments registered slight changes. Demand deposits rose $55,000,000 in the New York district, $29,000,000 in Chicago, $20,000,000 in Cleveland and $71,000,000 in all reporting banks; declining $26,000,000 in Minneapolis. A decrease of $16,000,000 in securities other than governmental in New York was offset by increases of the same amount in other districts.

Too Busy.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis in its annual report announces a net loss of $69,000 before dividends for 1935, compared with income of $176,000 before dividends in 1934. On another page of the report the bank says that 20 officers and other representatives traveled 73,700 miles on public relations work, attending seven bankers' conventions and 39 other meetings, delivering 26 addresses, making 787 visits at member banks and 809 visits at nonmembers. The whole directorate of the bank went to the Helena branch last July and attended the Montana Bankers Association convention at Glacier Park.

Diplomatic Dun.

They do it with much more finesse in the diplomatic service than in trade. According to a letter reproduced in the Kingdom of Norway listing application, when the French government asserted claim on behalf of certain French holders of Norwegian bonds, the French Legation in Norway wrote: "Mr. Minister: Under instructions from my government I have the honor of drawing the attention of the Norwegian government to claims which French holders of Norwegian securities have presented to the Norwegian Minister of Finances. * * * I would be very grateful if Your Excellence would submit this matter to a new and sympathetic examination."

General Motors.

General Motors opened a point higher at 63½ on 5,000 shares, in appreciation of the 75-cent extra dividend voted after the close of the market yesterday. Yesterday's opening price was 60. The usual talk had been heard of a higher dividend, either extra or increase in the regular rate, although General Motors usually does not vote its extras until later in the year. This time the spring business has been exceptionally good. Other factors which possibly spurred the board to early action were the loom of pressure for payment in dividends, of a desire to help the general situation with a show of confidence on the part of a large corporation, and perhaps also as an answer to the current criticism that the more businesslike and intelligent section of the Democratic Party, along with the Republicans, is trying to bear the stock market to embarrass the Administration.

Seats and Loans.

There seems to be no inconsistency in the fall in stock exchange seat prices on the last three sales and the rise of $67,000,000 in brokers' loans for April. Brokers borrowed more money, because under the new regulations they will be able to get less for the same collateral this month and hereafter. That means either they would have to call for more margin from their customers or put up more of their own capital, or both. The increased borrowings in no sense reflect expectation of livelier markets, but, if anything, point to the contrary, or at least to caution against falling prices. Seat prices have fallen because the S. E. C. is beginning to take a greater interest in certain old practices on the floor of the stock exchange and because current sales volume is small.

If Business.

An investment banker just back from a trip which carried him over a large area in the Middle West and Southwest, has returned feeling optimistic over the business outlook. Never in his experience has he seen general business conditions so favorable for improvement, he commented. He qualified his views with reservations regarding the pending tax bill. Should that measure pass, the picture might change for the worse, he thinks. He found sentiment of businessmen, including Democrats, strongly against the tax and fearful of adverse effects of the levy.

245 Companies Net 42 Per Cent Over Year Ago

But Profit Is Less Than in Final Quarter of Last Year.

New York, May 5.—Combined net profits, less deficits, of 245 leading corporations in a variety of industry and trade, compiled by the National City Bank, were $216,000,000 in the first quarter of this year, compared with $249,000,000 for the same companies in the preceding quarter and $152,000,000 in the first quarter of last year. Upon the net worth aggregating $9,305,000,000 first quarter profits were at the annual rate of 9.3 per cent this year, compared with 6.5 per cent last year.

The aggregate gain in the first quarter of 1936 over 1935, the bank calculates, amounts to 42.3 per cent and follows a gain of 21.8 per cent for a similar group of companies in 1935 over 1934 and a net deficit in 1933, which had the worst first quarter of the depression, partly because of the bank holiday.

"These percentage gains, starting from such a low base, therefore tend to exaggerate the actual improvement that has taken place," the bank declares. "The present rate of profits, according to an index based on average rate of return on net worth of 200 leading industrial companies, is still only about 75 per cent of the 1926 level, despite the heavy writing down of capital and surplus, and revaluation of assets that have been made in recent years which automatically increases both reported profits (by lowering depreciation charges) and the calculated rate of return."

Amerada Increases Crude Oil Output

New York, May 5 (AP).—Alfred Jacobsen, president of Amerada Corporation, told stockholders at the annual meeting today the company's daily average net crude oil production had advanced to 23,834 barrels in the first four months of the year from 19,411 in the like period a year ago.

He said the company, which operates in Western States, expected to have about 60 wells in Monument Field, New Mexico, by the end of the year.

Keith-Albee Earns $4.26 on 7% Pfd.

New York, May 5 (AP).—Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation and subsidiaries (controlled by Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation), vaudeville chain with an interest in about 60 theaters throughout the United States and Canada, reported net profit after all charges for the 13 weeks ended March 28 of $274,049, equal to $4.26 a share on the 64,304 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

This compared with $28,954, or 45 cents a share for the like period a year ago.

Failures Increase For Second Week

New York, May 5 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet revealed the second consecutive increase in business failures in the United States with the report of 196 failures for the week ended April 30.

Daily Oil Output Drops 23,011 Barrels

Tulsa, Okla., May 5 (AP).—A decrease of 23,011 barrels in the daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the past week was reported today by the Oil and Gas Journal.

Bank of Japan Raises Price of Domestic Gold

New York, May 5 (AP).—Advices received in international banking circles today said the Bank of Japan had raised its gold price from 3.10 yen to 3.50 yen per gram.

The increase, it was said, applied to the price to Japanese domestic miners and was understood to be an upward adjustment to bring the price into line with the world price. The yen in New York Foreign Exchange dealings today was up .02 of a cent to 29.06 cents. On January 10, 1935, the Japanese gold price was increased to 3.10 yen per gram from 2.95 yen.

May Wheat Off 2½ as Traders Sell Holdings

New Crop Months Held to Fractional Gains Despite Forecasts.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 5.—Persistent liquidating sales of May wheat by speculative holders unwilling to accept deliveries had a bearish effect today on the wheat market as a whole. May wheat suffered a maximum fall of 2½ cents a bushel. Only fractional upturns of prices for new crop months, July and September, were achieved, notwithstanding that monthly unofficial estimates today of 1936 domestic winter wheat yield averaged 7,000,000 bushels under the Government's April forecast.

Wheat closed irregular, 1¾ lower to ⅝ higher compared with yesterday's finish, May 96⅝ @ 96, July 87¼ @ 87 corn unchanged to ¼ off. May 62; oats unchanged to ⅜ up, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents decline.

Navigation Opens On Great Lakes

Winnipeg, May 5 (AP).—Navigation on the Great Lakes was officially declared opened today by the council of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

While ships have been plying Canada's inland sea for more than a week, navigation was not officially recognized as open by the grain trade and marine underwriters until the exchange had decided the question at a meeting today.

Labor Support For Roosevelt Aided by Green

Federation Chief Pledges Personal Backing of President.

With an unequivocal personal pledge of support by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, President Roosevelt last night moved nearer to the attainment of a united labor front in support of his candidacy for re-election.

The labor chief stated that he was speaking only for himself and not for the Federation membership, 3,000,000 strong. However, he had just finished making a speech before the Women's National Trade Union League, at the Dodge Hotel, in which he strongly advocated the re-election of President Roosevelt, although not mentioning him by name.

He said:

"We cannot afford to make any change in the leadership of our present forward-looking social movement.

"We have been inspired and thrilled by the leadership that destiny has given us and we want to continue it without change."

Nonpartisan Policy.

It was but seven days ago that Green had urged all American Federation unions to adhere to the federation's "traditional nonpartisan policy."

In a letter to all unions at that time he said:

"The training and experience of labor and the lessons which it has learned all lead to the conclusion that the best and highest interests of labor will be served through a strict adherence to the traditional nonpartisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor."

Green had praised the NRA and social security acts.

He said:

"We want to think it out and think it through. Workers of every group will understand every phase of the great social security program. There is nothing that is going to stop us from obtaining eventually a social security program providing adequate protection, not only to the aged, but to the unemployed, the dependent, the sick and incapacitated.

"There is being awakened a social consciousness in America. Neither a poltical election, the development of any political program of any kind, no matter who will be in charge, can stop this new social development which has gripped the Nation.

"We are standing on the threshold of a great future.

Follows Lewis.

Green's personal step up to the New Deal labor bandwagon followed that of the United Mine Workers of America and its leader, John L. Lewis; and Sidney Hillman, president, Amalgamated Clothing Workers; and George L. Berry, president, International Pressmen's Union, all of whom joined in the recently organized Labor Non-Partisan Political League, which is pledged to indorsement of Roosevelt.

Politically the move is considered significant. The United Mine Workers, the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, and the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor formally have indorsed the President. His indorsement is confidently expected at the Cleveland convention next Monday of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

These organizations may shove closely-fought States into the Democratic column in November, especially in New York and Pennsylvania, it was pointed out. The pledged votes of about 250,000 members of the unions mentioned in Pennsylvania alone may tip the scales there for the New Deal. The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor has 400,000 members.

Green condemned heartily what he termed sweatshop practices in many industries since the invalidation of the NRA, and demanded aggressively a new recovery act and the passage of the Walsh-Healy bill, requiring decent working and pay standards in industries bidding for Government contracts.

Bear Cubs

Plump and wooly like Chow puppies, which they resemble more than bears, the three cubs were born February 21. They were quadruplets but one of the litter lived only a few weeks.

Father Locked in Den.

Their mother is Ramona, whose utter indifference exasperated the cameramen at the family's coming-out party. The father is Snowy, who was locked inside his den while the show was in progress. Dr. Mann and Head Keeper William H. Blackburne feared the excitement might engender an appetite for photographers.

One of the two male youngsters has a white ring-like marking on his neck.

"All baby kodiaks have that mark," said Dr. Mann. "Right now I'd say all three of them look more like brown bears than polars, but there's still no telling which they will resemble when they grow up."

Aggregate weight of the trio is 42 pounds as of Monday, when Ramona and her brood were transferred from the maternity ward to the exhibition pit which will be their regular home henceforward. When they are not sleeping or nursing, the cubs gambol with their 700-pound mother.

Photographers Take Posts.

Their debut was scheduled yesterday for 2 o'clock on the dot. Long in advance the newsreel cameras were set up and "still" photographers were deployed hazardously along the curved grillwork top of the cage partitions.

At the stroke of 2, Head Keeper Blackburne gave the signal, "Up door!" An assistant hoisted the barrier separating Ramona and her cubs from the outdoor pit. The newsreel and camera men poised for action.

But nothing happened.

When 10 or 15 minutes passed and still mother and children refused to come out, peanuts were thrown in. These succeeded in bringing out Ramona, although not exactly at a gallop, but her daughter and two sons did not appear. After each peanut she would retire to her dark quarters.

Brought Out by Hand.

This went on for three-quarters of an hour, with cameramen constantly in danger of falling into the pit.

Finally, Dr. Mann and the patriarchal Blackburne decided that, if a score or so cameramen were not to be disappointed, they would have to do something.

So luring Romona far out into the open cage, they dropped the sliding door and went around the back way to fetch the three hybrids to pose for the picture men.

When it was all over and the cubs had been returned to the brown half of their parentage, Dr. Mann and Blackburne sighed in relief.

Court Brief Scores News Matter Theft

By the Associated Press.

Condemnation of "Pilfering by one news gatherer from another" was expressed yesterday by the Associated Press in a brief filed with the Supreme Court.

The document, signed by John W. Davis, New York attorney, urged the tribunal to leave intact an injunction restraining radio station KVOS, of Bellingham, Wash., from broadcasting Associated Press news until 18 hours after publication.

The press association opposed a review, requested by the radio station, of the action by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in granting the restraining order.

"Piracy" of its news from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, the Seattle Times and the Bellingham Herald was charged by the Associated Press.

Cabinet Post Statement Denied by Gov. Green

Providence, R. I., May 5 (AP).—Gov. Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island today issued a denial, through his office here, of published reports quoting him as stating that he would be appointed Secretary of the Navy within a few weeks.

At no time, it was stated at the Governor's office, has the executive made any statement concerning the reported appointment.

The report was published after the Governor's attendance at the annual dinner of the Andrew Jackson Club at Worcester Saturday. He was credited with having told friends there that he had been informed he was to be given the appointment.

Rival Forces Claim Triumph In Md. Voting

Legore Apparent Winner in 6th District Race for Congress.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 5.—Rival Democratic camps, viewing Maryland's primary in terms of the November general election, read both victory and defeat tonight in President Roosevelt's 5½-to-1 majority over Col. Henry Breckinridge.

Unofficial returns from 1,382 of the 1,434 polling places in yesterday's Democratic Presidential preference contest showed:

For Breckinridge 17,720
For Roosevelt 96,928

"I think the vote demonstrates the State is safe for Roosevelt," said Lawrence B. Fenneman, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Maryland, which sponsored the President's address here in April.

"The election returns show that President Roosevelt is going to lose Maryland at the election in November," said C. Bowie Rose, executive secretary of the Association for the Defense of the Constitution, Breckinridge's sponsor.

Republican voters did not participate in a State-wide contest, but in the election of State convention delegates, they assured Gov. Harry W. Nice of being a "favorite son" candidate for the Presidential nomination.

The Republican State Convention, meeting May 20, will name the National Convention delegates. In the primary, Nice swept a full slate of 150 State delegates pledged to him.

Representatives Renamed.

Each of the State's six Representatives in Congress, all Democrats, won renomination, two without opposition. All will have Republican opposition in the general election.

Late returns indicated tonight State Senator Harry Legore, of Frederick, had won the bitterly contested Republican nomination in the Sixth Congressional District.

With only four of the 253 polling places unreported, and those containing only a handful of votes, unofficial returns from yesterday's primary showed Legore had a lead of 348 votes over his nearest rival, A. Charles Stewart, of Frostburg.

The returns from 249 of the 253 polling places in the western Maryland district showed 5,624 votes for Legore and 5,276 for Stewart. The other five Republican candidates were out of the running.

At Frederick, Legore announced the receipt of a telegram indicating Stewart had conceded defeat.

The message said:

"My sincere congratulations. My services are at your disposal."

It was signed by Stewart. He could not be reached for comment early tonight.

Bound to Tracks, Farmer Escapes; Train Cuts Thumb

By the Associated Press.

Russellville, Ark., May 5.—Bound to a railroad track with bailing wire by two unidentified assailants who had held him captive four hours, Jeff Mackey, 52, Adkins, Ark., farmer, narrowly escaped death beneath a fast passenger train near here today.

The farmer, in a serious condition at a Russellville hospital from shock and loss of blood, told officers he saved his life by rolling outside the rail so the wheels slashed away only his right thumb.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Burl Harris said that two men were arrested for questioning, but apparently were not involved in the case.

Mackey told the officers that he was walking to his home about 8 o'clock last night when two men accosted him. He said the men apparently were intoxicated, and when he struck at one of them, the other covered him with a pistol and said:

"We'll make you sorry you did this."

When the midnight passenger train came through Russellville, Mackey said, the men were within two and a half miles of this city. They saw the train coming, forced him to kneel, bound his right wrist to the rail, then stood guard over him with the pistol until the train was within 200 yards. Then they fled into the woods. Mackey attempted to flag the train, and, failing, hurled himself outside the rails so that the wheels cut away his thumb and broke the wire, freeing him.

No Anti-Landon Group Member, Says Borah

Zanesville, Ohio, May 5 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, said here tonight that he was not a party to any combination to stop the nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, or any other potential candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination.

"I don't join combinations," the Idaho Senator said in the second speech of his final week of campaigning for Ohio delegates. "I have not joined a combination and I don't intend to join one to stop anyone.

"If Mr. Landon or Mr. Knox comes up to the Cleveland convention with a fair expression of the people that he is their choice, I'm not going to stand in the way."

Farm, Worker Rights Amendment Is Sought

By the Associated Press.

The national affairs committee of the Socialist Party said yesterday that nine State federations of labor and a large number of city and county federations, trade union locals, and fraternal organizations had pledged their support to a resolution calling for a farmers' and workers' rights amendment to the Constitution.

The Proposed amendment, introduced by Senator Benson (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota,, would give Congress specific power to deal with child labor, minimum wages, collective bargaining, old age, sick and natural resources.

The committee said that the State federations which had indorsed the proposed resolution were, Idaho, Arizona, Connecticut, Indiana, Minnesota, Montana, New Jersey, Rhode Island, and Wisconsin.

100 Who Sailed With Pershing Will Celebrate

Baltic Society Group to Be A. E. F. Leaders' Guests at Dinner Here.

Nineteen years after the first American Army group sailed for France, more than 100 surviving members of that party will be guests of Gen. John Pershing at a dinner at the Army and Navy Club on May 30.

Of the 57 officers, 68 field clerks and civilians and 67 enlisted men who made up this group that sailed with Gen. Pershing on board the Baltic on May 28, 1917, only a few weeks after the declaration of war, all but 19 still are alive.

Included in the group were some of the most distinguished figures in the American Expeditionary Force, among them Generals Harbord, Ireland, Noland, Alvord, Bradley, Bethel, Connor, Feland, Hines, Palmer, Rockenbach, Williams and Taylor. Also in the party were Eddie Rickenbacker, the noted aviator; Frederick Palmer, ace war correspondent, and Col. Charles E. Stanton, who on arriving in France, uttered that famous phrase, "La-Fayette, we are here."

A "Baltic" Society—named after the ship on which they sailed—has been formed by members of the original Pershing party, and most of them are expected to attend the dinner. Army officers stationed in Washington who belong to the society are:

Capt. George E. Adamson, Kenesaw Apartments; Maj. Gen. Walter A. Bethel, 6607 East avenue, Chevy Chase; Col. Arthur L. Conger, 810 Jackson place, Takoma Park; Capt. Dixie B. Guynn, 530 Whittier street northwest; Col. Milosh R. Hilgard, 3541 Quebec street northwest; Maj. Gen. M. W. Ireland, 1870 Wyoming avenue northwest; Sergt. Frank Lanckton, 2215 Fourteenth street northwest, and Capt. Ray Middleton, National Press Building.

Also, Sergt. Carl Mokne, 1800 C street northwest; Warrant Officer Charles B. Shaw and Sergt. Leo J. Smith, both the War Department; Capt. Thomas M. Wilson, the State Department, and Col. David S. Stanley, the United States Soldiers' Home.

Landon Leads in S. Dakota

Borah Falls Behind In South Dakota

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 5 (AP).—Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, built up a steadily-growing lead over Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, for South Dakota's eight Presidential delegates to the Republican National Convention as returns were tabulated tonight from more than a third of the State's precincts in today's primary.

Delegates pledged to Landon polled 15,822 votes in 592 of 1,955 precincts in the State, compared with 13,726 for Borah delegates.

Borah delegates were definitely listed for him, whereas those for Landon was listed as uninstructed, although all have pledged to vote for the Kansan as long as his nomination appeared possible.

The contest was the first test of strength between the two in the Midwest.

In the Republican fight for the senatorial nomination victory was forecast for J. Chandler Gurney, Sioux Falls oil man, over C. A. Christopherson, former Congressman, who conceded his opponent's nomination on returns from 121 precincts in 27 counties.

Hildebrandt Chosen.

Representative Fred Hildebrandt, of Watertown, Democrat, and staunch supporter of the New Deal, apparently was renominated over C. L. Chase, rural credit director, who also had declared himself in favor of the national Administration's policies. Returns from 91 precincts out of 1,302 in the First Congressional District gave:

Hildebrandt, 2,766; Chase, 1,090.

President Roosevelt was unopposed for the State's eight delegates to the Democratic National Convention and little effort was made to count the vote for his slate, although his name appeared on the ballot.

Gov. Tom Berry, seeking his third term, was renominated without opposition, as was Senator William J. Bulow on the Democratic ticket. Berry will oppose Leslie Jenson, former collector of internal revenue who had no opposition for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and Bulow will compete with Gruney in the November election.

Tennessee Backs Landon Unanimously

Nashville, Tenn., May 5 (AP).—Unanimous indorsement was given by the Republican State convention today to Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas for the Presidency and Tennessee's four delegates at large in the National convention were pledged to him.

The 4 votes were in addition to the 11 of delegates instructed for the Kansan by district conventions.

Only two more delegates remain to be selected. The Eighth District convention will be held next week and is expected to instruct for Landon.

In the Ninth District (Memphis) one faction named a delegate pledged to Landon and an opposition group selected an uninstructed delegate. The factional dispute is over local issues, not over a Presidential candidate. Their contest will be carried to the national committee.

While sharply attacking the New Deal in general, the convention indorsed and expressed "full accord" with the Tennessee Valley Authority's program.

Landon was praised in the indorsement resolution as one "who knows how to reduce expenditures, who knows how to cut out the many thousands of unneceshary officials and who knows how to stabilize the business conditions of the country so that business will feel free to employ those who want work."

A platform adopted condemned "the regimentation, confiscatory taxes, the crackpot experiments, the autocracy, the communistic propaganda, the deficits, the debts and the broken promises of the present national Administration during the past three years."

After the platform had been adopted a delegate arose to protest inclusion of indorsement for the Tennessee Valley Authority, saying "It's a bureaucracy." He was ruled out of order.

Indiana Incumbents Lead Congress Vote

Indianapolis, May 5 (AP).—Scattered returns from 12 Congressional districts of Indiana indicated early tonight that voters in today's primary election favored renomination of all Representatives running for re-election.

The vote count proceeded so slowly, however, that there were not nearly sufficient returns tabulated four hours after the polls closed to indicate the final result in Democratic and Republican contests where the outcome was much in doubt.

Two former Republican Congressman—Andrew J. Hickey, of Laporte, in the Third district, and David Hoff, of Fort Wayne, in the Fourth—apparently staged political comebacks in their campaigns for renomination. Hickey was defeated in 1930 by Representative Samuel B. Pettengill, of South Bend (Democrat), against whom he apparently will contest again this year. Hoff, well ahead in the Republican race in the Fourth district, served four terms in Congress, before being defeated in the 1932 Democratic landslide.

The result of the Congressional contest in the Fourth district among the Democrats was still undetermined when early returns had been tabulated. The leading contenders were Representative James I. Farley, of Auburn, and Circuit Judge Clarence M. McNabb, of Fort Wayne.

Three-Way Fight.

Outside of the congressional races most interest centered in the three-way fight being waged by Democratic gubernatorial candidates for convention delegates.

Lieut. Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, Pleas E. Greenlee, former secretary to Gov. McNutt, and E. Kirk McKinney, of Indianapolis, all had slates of convention delegates entered in various parts of the State.

Five Republican candidates for governor made no outward bid at the primary for support.

Precinct committeemen, who form the backbone of the party organizations, also were elected today and in the background of these contests was a fight by James E. Watson, former United States Senator, to regain control of the Republican organization. A band of young men known as Hoosier Republicans, Inc., seeks to oust Watson's State chairman, Don Irwin, and replace him with Ralph F. Gates, of Columbia City.

Department of Justice agents were reported watching the voting at South Bend, the city named recently by United States Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), Independent, as one of the places where the WPA was involved in politics.

South Bend, Ind., Congressional Vote

South Bend, Ind., May 5 (AP).—With one-third of the vote unofficially counted in St. Joseph County—44 of 121—the vote for nomination for Congress in the Third District was as follows:

Republican—Albert Bjoraas, of South Bend, 185; Andrew J. Hickey, Laporte, 2,064; Floyd O. Jellison, South Bend, 2,233; Herman W. Voges, Elkhart, 179; Glenn Y. Warner, Laporte, 255.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Primary Returns.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 5 (AP).—Thirty precincts out of 84 in Allen County give in the Congressional contest for the Fourth District:

Democrats—Representative James I. Farley, Auburn, 2,483; Clarence R. McNabb, Fort Wayne, 2,179; Thomas P. Riddle, of Ray, 291.

Missouri Convention Pledges Roosevelt

Joplin, Mo., May 5 (AP).—Amid wild cheering, resolutions pledging Missouri's 30 votes at the Democratic national convention "unqualifiedly and unalterably" to President Roosevelt were adopted unanimously by the State convention here today.

United States Senators Bennett C. Clark and Harry S. Truman praised the national and State Democratic administrations.

James P. Aylward, of Kansas City, was re-elected national committeeman from Missouri, and Mrs. Nat S. Brown, of St. Louis, national committeeman. Neither had opposition.

Predicting the re-election of President Roosevelt, Senator Clark told the convention the choice is "between Roosevelt and reaction and reaction spells chaos."

Senator Truman said Roosevelt is the "man who can take it." He pictured a smiling and persistent President who faced reshaping of his national program after AAA and NRA had been ruled unconstitutional.

"His critics say he can't take it when he is thwarted," Truman said, "but I tell you from the fullness of my personal knowledge it isn't true."

Senator Bankhead Leads in Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., May 5 (AP).—Senator John H. Bankhead piled up a commanding lead over Henry L. Anderton, Birmingham attorney, on early returns from today's Democratic primary.

With 157 of 2,200 voting places tabulated, Bnakhead was leading by nearly 5 to 1. The count stood:

Bankhead, 9,801.

Anderton, 1,9.

Congressional races found all incumbents well ahead, Representative William B. Bankhead, brother of the Senator and House Democratic laeder, was out in front of the combined totals of two opponents.

Alabama Democrats, as a formality, instructed the State's 30 votes at the Philadelphia convention for President Roosevelt.

Roosevelt Told Of Employment Needs of Youth

Appearing as a member of the American Council of Education in behalf of the unemployed youth of the Nation, Owen D. Young called at the White House yesterday to inform President Roosevelt of a concerted movement to save youth from the stigma of joblessness.

The Education Council has just completed a two-day session here, studying the problems of youth and seeking some solution to the problem of unemployment which now confronts boys and girls of the Nation.

Young said the council had appointed him chairman of a committee of four to confer with representatives of labor, industry, the Government and social organizations about joblessness among youth, and about "filling the gap between education and vocational training."

The purpose of the conference will be to do something for young people from the time they leave school until they get jobs.

The committee which Young heads soon will call another conference to further their study of why youth is "uncharted," why they have no jobs. The committee then will confer with representatives from the fields of labor, industry, from the Federal Government, the United States Chamber of Commerce, educational, welfare and social agencies. The purpose of the conference will be to find some mans of youth's spanning the gap between the yay a youth finishes school and the day he starts work.

This may call for an entirely new education-vocation program, said Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the commission apropos "the way out for youth."

"If present conditions continue it may be necessary to develop some form of part-time education and employment for youths between the ages of 16 and 21."

That gap—between the ages of 16 and 21 or that gap between school and a job—the commission found is due probably to due fact that:

Cites Jobless Period.

"At present, there is too little relationship between an individual's education and his vocational adjustment to life, and there is often a long period between the time a youth leaves school and the finding of employment."

Will W. Alexander, Atlanta, Ga., winner of the Harmon National award for services to American race relations; Ralph Budd, railway executive; Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota; Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Arlington, Vt., prominent authoress.

Willard E. Givens, of this city; Henry I. Harriman, past president Chamber of Commerce, Boston, Mass.; Robert M. Hutchins, president, University of Illinois; the Rev. George Johnson, Catholic University; Chester H. Rowell, San Francisco, editor; Edith B. Stern, New York, educator.

John W. Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education; Miriam Van Waters, Framingham, Mass., State Women's Reformatory superintendent; Matthew Woll, New York, vice president, American Federation of Labor, and Owen D. Young.

Single Mortgage System Is Planned

"I am ready to state without fear of contradiction from any financial interest that the Federal Housing Administration mortgage offers the best opportunity for investment today of any security available for trust funds, at an ample rate of interest and with principal protected by the Government guarantee. These Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages offer financial institutions security, yield, and liquidity, a combination not excelled by any other investment."
